Subchapter C—Production and Subsistence Loans

[Administration Letter 451 (441)]

PART 341—POLICIES AND AUTHORITIES

ANNUAL LOANS

Section 341.8, Title 6, Code of Federal Regulations (20 F. R. 395), is revised to authorize the making of annual Production and Subsistence Loans to established farmers who operate family-type farms or less than family-type farms, and to read as follows:

§ 341.8 Authorities for making annual Production and Subsistence loans. Annual loans will be made in accordance with §§ 341.1 to 341.7 and Part 342 of this subchapter, except that:

(a) Annual loans will be made to established farmers who do not need adjustment loans, or who cannot qualify for adjustment loans because they are not operators of family-type farms, and who are in need of credit primarily for operating purposes.

(b) There must be a sound basis for credit. This means that the applicant's anticipated gross income from farming and other sources will be sufficient to repay the annual Production and Subsistence loan, meet farm and home expenses not provided for in such loan, and provide a reasonable margin above such amounts. It also means that there will be a reasonably safe margin between the amount of such loan and the estimated farm income from which the loan is to be repaid.

(c) Annual loans may be made to operators of smaller than family-type farms as well as to operators of family-type farms. Accordingly, subparagraphs (4) and (7) of § 341.2 (a) of this part are not applicable to annual loans.

(Sec. 41 (1), 60 Stat. 1066; 7 U. S. C. 1015 (1). Interprets or applies secs. 21, 44 (b), 60 Stat. 1072, as amended, 1069, as amended; 7 U. S. C. 1007, 1018 (b))

Issued this 27th day of March 1956.

PART 373—LICENSING POLICIES AND RELATED SPECIAL PROVISIONS

SELENIUM-BEARING SCRAP MATERIALS

Section 373.41 Nonferrous commodities, including ores, concentrates, or unrefined products is amended by adding a new paragraph (g) to read as follows:

(g) Selenium-bearing scrap materials—(1) General. License applications to export selenium-bearing scrap materials, Schedule B No. 664998, will be considered for approval only where it is shown that (i) the materials are unsalable in the domestic market; or (ii) the export is to be made under toll or conversion agreement which provides for the return of the selenium or selenium products to the United States. # TITLE 14—CIVIL AVIATION

Chapter I—Civil Aeronautics Board

Subchapter A—Civil Air Regulations

PART 4b—AIRPLANE AIRWORTHINESS: TRANSPORT CATEGORIES

AUTOMATIC PILOT SYSTEMS

This supplement outlines various procedures for testing the reliability of automatic pilot systems and information relative to the installation of such systems.

The following new § 4b.612–4 is hereby added:

§ 4b.612–4 Automatic pilot systems (CAA policies which apply to § 4b.612 (d)). To preclude hazardous conditions which may result from any failure or malfunctioning of the automatic pilot system, or its inadvertent use by the human pilot, the conditions of paragraphs (a) through (e) and paragraph (h) of this section should be investigated by flight test.

(a) A signal about any axis equivalent to the cumulative effect of any single failure (or if multiple axis failures can result from the malfunction of any single component, combined signals about all affected axes) should be induced into the automatic pilot system during normal climb,[1] cruise, and descent regimes. When corrective action is taken 3 seconds after the airplane response [2] to the malfunction neither the simulated failure nor the subsequent corrective action should create loads beyond an envelope of 0 to 2 g, or speeds beyond $V_{NE}$ (or $M_{NE}$ where appropriate), or dangerous deviations from the flight path, except that the positive g limitation may be increased up to the positive design maneuvering load factor if it has previously been determined analytically that neither the simulated failure nor subsequent corrective action would result in loads beyond the design limit loads of the airplane.

[1] The configuration for normal climb will be that for operational all-engine climb with 75 percent maximum continuous power and flaps retracted.

[2] Adequate instrumentation should be installed to register response of the airplane to the induced malfunction. One acceptable method would be by measurement of airplane acceleration.

(1) Recovery should be demonstrated either by overpowering or by manual use of an emergency quick disconnect device after the 3-second delay. The pilot should be able to return the airplane to its normal flight attitude under full manual control without exceeding the loads or speed limits defined in this paragraph and without engaging in any dangerous maneuvers during recovery. If an emergency quick disconnect button is not installed on the control wheel it should be possible to overpower servo forces plus resultant airloads in all configurations and attitudes of flight demonstrated, including maximum speed for which approval is sought, without exceeding the following control forces measured at the pilot's controls: pitch 50 pounds; roll 30 pounds (force applied at rim); yaw 150 pounds. The maximum altitude loss experienced during these tests should be entered in the Airplane Flight Manual under "Emergency Operating Procedures."

(b) The automatic pilot system should be able to perform its intended function throughout all appropriate maneuvers. All such maneuvers should be accomplished smoothly and without subjecting the airplane to loads greater than those described in paragraph (a) of this section.

(c) If the automatic pilot system includes an approach coupler it should be able to perform its intended function, and the following should apply:

(1) Throughout an approach no signal or combination of signals simulating the cumulative effect of any single failure or malfunction in the automatic pilot system should produce hazardous deviations in the flight path or any degree of loss of control if corrective action is initiated 1 second after the airplane responds to the malfunction.

(i) The airplane should be flown down the ILS (or along a flight path simulating the ILS) in the approach configuration. At a predetermined point a failure should be induced in the automatic pilot system. One second after the airplane responds to the malfunction, the pilot should take corrective action by either overpowering or manually disconnecting the automatic pilot (utilizing the emergency quick disconnect button on the control wheel). The vertical distance below the glide path, measured from the point at which level flight is regained, should be entered in the Airplane Flight Manual under "Emergency Operating Procedures."

(2) An engine failure during a normal ILS approach should not cause a lateral deviation of the airplane from the flight path at a rate greater than 3° per second.

(3) If approval is sought for ILS approaches initiated with one engine inoperative, the automatic pilot should be capable of conducting the approach, and the provisions of subparagraph (1) of this paragraph should be complied with.

(4) A visual means should be provided between the automatic pilot and the flight path coupler to indicate to the pilot when the automatic pilot is uncoupled from the airborne navigational reference.

(d) For an automatic pilot without an approach coupler, where the applicant desires approval for low approaches, the conditions outlined in paragraphs (c) (1), (2), and (3) should apply.

(e) If an automatic trim system is incorporated into the automatic pilot, it should be so designed and installed that any failure will not create a hazardous condition to either automatic or manual flight.

(f) When an emergency quick disconnect device is installed on the automatic pilot, the release buttons should be located on both the pilot's and copilot's control wheels, on the side of the wheel opposite from the throttles.

(g) The automatic pilot system should be so installed that its operation will not be adversely affected by spurious signals from other sources, or as a result of normal variations in the automatic pilot system power source, or feedback by other equipment operating from the same power source (see §§ 4b.625 (b) and 4b.650 (c)).

(h) The automatic pilot system should be so installed and adjusted that the servo stall forces established during certification tests can be maintained in normal operation. This may be assured by conducting flight tests throughout the envelope of servo stall forces. Those tests conducted to determine that the automatic pilot system will adequately control the aircraft should establish the lower stall force limit; and those tests to determine that the automatic pilot will not impose dangerous loads or deviations from the flight path should be conducted at the upper stall force limit.

(i) A positive means should be provided to indicate to the pilot when the automatic pilot is ready for operation or when the gyroscopic components are uncaged, unless it is impossible (as a result of design features) to engage the automatic pilot before it is ready for operation.

(j) The following information should be placed on the Aircraft Specification:

(1) Servo motor and gear train model numbers.

(2) Servo unit pulley sizes.

(3) Upper and lower limiting stall forces measured at the servo motors.

(k) The following information should be placed in the Airplane Flight Manual:

(1) Under the Operating Limitations section, airspeed limitations and other applicable operating limitations.

(2) Under the Operating Procedures section, normal operation information.

(3) Under the Emergency Operating Procedures section, a statement of altitude lost in the cruising configuration (see subparagraph (a) (1) of this section); a statement of altitude lost on ILS approaches (see paragraph (c) (1) (i) of this section); and any other applicable emergency procedure information.

PART 27—AIRCRAFT DISPATCHER CERTIFICATES

EXAMINATIONS

The purpose of this supplement is (1) to establish a 24-month validity period for Form ACA–578A, and (2) to clarify the eligibility requirements for an applicant for an aircraft dispatcher certificate.

Section 27.30–1 (a) is revised to read as follows:

§ 27.30–1 General; examinations (CAA policies which apply to § 27.30). (a) The applicant for the written or practical portion of the aircraft dispatcher examination must meet the eligibility requirements contained in §§ 27.2 through 27.8. The written examination should be satisfactorily completed by the applicant before taking the practical examination. However, where delay would cause inconvenience to an applicant, the practical examination may be taken first. If the practical examination is taken before the written and the applicant is successful, the agent will issue Form ACA–578, Evidence of Aeronautical Knowledge. Form ACA–578A issued by the Washington office for reporting an applicant's performance on the written portion of the examination will be accepted for a period of 24 months from the date of issuance. Forms ACA–578A issued to an applicant on or before April 30, 1956, and acceptable under policies existing on that date, will continue to be acceptable until April 30, 1958.

In the Matter of S. A. Barker Company, a Corporation; and S. A. Barker and Lester Friedman, Individually and as Officers of Said Corporation

This proceeding was heard by a hearing examiner on the complaint of the Commission—charging a corporation and its officers, engaged in Springfield,

Illinois, in the sale and distribution of fur products, with violating the Fur Products Labeling Act through advertising said products deceptively in newspapers; through misbranding certain of them in that labels attached to them and the information thereon did not comply with the requirements of the act; and through false invoicing—and an agreement between the parties providing for the entry of a consent order.

Upon this basis, the hearing examiner made his initial decision and order to cease and desist, which, by the Commission's order of March 14, 1956, became the "Decision of the Commission".

The order to cease and desist is as follows:

It is ordered, That respondents S. A. Barker Company, a corporation, S. A. Barker and Lester Friedman, individually and as officers of said corporation, and respondents' representatives, agents and employees, directly or through any corporate or other device, in connection with the introduction, or the sale, advertising or offering for sale, or the transportation or distribution of any fur product in commerce; or in connection with the sale, advertising, offering for sale, transportation or distribution of fur products which have been made in whole or in part of fur which has been shipped and received in commerce, as "commerce," "fur," and "fur product" are defined in the Fur Products Labeling Act, do forthwith cease and desist from:

A. Falsely or deceptively advertising fur products through the use of any advertisement, representation, public announcement, or notice which is intended to aid, promote or assist, directly or indirectly, in the sale or offering for sale of fur products, and which:

1. Fails to disclose:

(a) The name or names of the animal or animals producing the fur or furs contained in the fur products, as set forth in the Fur Products Name Guide and as prescribed under the rules and regulations;

(b) That the fur products contain or are composed of bleached, dyed, or otherwise artificially colored fur when such is the fact;

(c) The name of the country of origin of imported furs contained in fur products.

2. Contains the name or names of any animal or animals other than the name or names provided for in Paragraph A (1) (a) above.

B. Misbranding fur products by:

1. Failing to affix labels to fur products showing:

(a) The name or names of the animal or animals producing the fur or furs contained in the fur products as set forth in the Fur Products Name Guide and as prescribed under the rules and regulations;

(b) That the fur product contains or is composed of used fur, when such is a fact;

(c) That the fur product contains or is composed of bleached, dyed or otherwise artificially colored fur when such is a fact;

(d) That the fur product is composed in whole or in substantial part of paws, tails, bellies or waste fur when such is a fact;

(e) The name, or other identification issued and registered by the Commission, of one or more persons who manufactured such fur product for introduction into commerce, introduced it into commerce, sold it in commerce, advertised or offered it for sale in commerce, or transported or distributed it in commerce;

(f) The name of the country of origin of any imported furs used in the fur product.

2. Setting forth on labels attached to fur products, the name or names of any animal or animals other than the name or names provided for in Paragraph B (1) (a) above.

3. Setting forth on labels attached to fur products;

(a) Required information in abbreviated form or in handwriting;

(b) Non-required information mingled with required information.

4. Attaching to fur products labels which fail to meet the minimum size requirements of Rule 27 of the rules and regulations (§301.27).

C. Falsely or deceptively invoicing fur products by:

1. Failing to furnish invoices showing:

(a) The name or names of the animal producing the fur or furs contained in the fur product as set forth in the Fur Products Name Guide and as prescribed under the rules and regulations;

(b) That the fur product contains or is composed of used fur when such is a fact;

(c) That the fur product contains or is composed of bleached, dyed, or otherwise artificially colored fur when such is a fact;

(d) That the fur product is composed in whole or in substantial part of paws, tails, bellies or waste fur when such is a fact;

(e) The name and address of the person issuing such invoices;

(f) The name of the country of origin of any imported furs contained in the fur product.

By said "Decision of the Commission", report of compliance was required as follows:

It is ordered, That the respondents herein shall within sixty (60) days after service upon them of this order, file with the Commission a report in writing setting forth in detail the manner and form in which they have complied with the order to cease and desist.

In the Matter of John Hull Cutlers Corporation, a Corporation, and John Hull Silversmiths, Inc., a Corporation, and William Berger and Max E. Landau, Individually and as Officers of Said Corporations

This proceeding was heard by a hearing examiner upon the complaint of the Commission—charging two corporations and their common officers, engaged in the sale and distribution of cutlery and flatware from their offices in New York City, with affixing to their merchandise, before shipment to retailer customers, tags or tickets printed with fictitious excessive prices, and with furnishing such customers with advertising mats reading "Save $10 . . . Stainless Steel Flatware. Regularly 19.98—9.98", when $19.98 was a fictitious price and the price of $9.98 did not afford purchasers a saving of $10—and an agreement between the parties for the entry of a consent order.

Upon this basis, the hearing examiner made his initial decision and order to cease and desist, which, by the Commission's order of March 14, 1956, became the "Decision of the Commission".

The order to cease and desist is as follows:

It is ordered, That respondents John Hull Cutlers Corporation, a corporation, and John Hull Silversmiths, Inc., a corporation, and their officers, and respondents William Berger and Max E. Landau, individually and as officers of John Hull Cutlers Corporation and John Hull Silversmiths, Inc., and respondents' representatives, agents and employees, directly or through any corporate or other device, in connection with the offering for sale, sale and distribution of merchandise in commerce, as "commerce" is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, do forthwith cease and desist from:

1. Representing in any manner that certain amounts are the regular and usual retail prices of merchandise when such amounts are in excess of the prices at which such merchandise is usually and regularly sold at retail.

By said "Decision of the Commission", report of compliance was required as follows:

It is ordered, That the respondents herein shall within sixty (60) days after service upon them of this order, file with the Commission a report in writing setting forth in detail the manner and form in which they have complied with the order to cease and desist.

HERBERT B. SYKES ET AL.

Subpart—Advertising falsely or misleadingly: § 13.15 Business status, advantages, or connections: Personnel or staff; Qualifications and Abilities; § 13.90 History of product or offering; § 13.135 Nature: Product or Service; § 13.170 Qualities or properties of product or service; § 13.205 Scientific or other relevant facts.

In the Matter of Herbert B. Sykes, an Individual Trading as Sykes Hernia Control Service and Griffith and McCarthy, Inc., a Corporation

This proceeding was heard by a hearing examiner upon the complaint of the Commission—charging an individual engaged in the interstate sale of the "Sykes Hernia Control" device, with representing falsely in advertising in newspapers and magazines that the device was not a truss but was radically different and revolutionary; that it would retain all ruptures or hernias, improve the condition in a majority of persons fitted, and completely cure many; that use of the device would stimulate circulation in the abdominal tissues, restore them to a more normal condition, and assist nature in building muscle tone and strength; that the device would hold a rupture or hernia securely in place at all times and under all conditions of activity and strain; and that he and his representatives conducted clinics where sufferers from hernia might be examined and treated by a physician—respondents' answer and hearings, and submission by counsel of proposed findings of fact and conclusions of law.

Thereafter the hearing examiner made his initial decision, including findings of fact[1] and order to cease and desist, from which counsel supporting the complaint appealed. After hearing the matter on the whole record, the Commission granted the appeal in part and denied it in part, and directed modification of the initial decision as specified in the accompanying opinion, and in its "Final Order" of March 8, 1956, ordered that the initial decision, as modified, become the "Decision of the Commission".

The order to cease and desist, as modified, is as follows:

[1] Filed as part of original document.

It is ordered, That respondent Herbert B. Sykes, an individual trading under his own name or any other name or trade designation, and his representatives, agents and employees, directly or through any corporate or other device, in connection with the offering for sale of a device designated as Sykes Appliance, or any product or device of substantially similar construction or design, whether sold under the same name or any other name, do forthwith cease and desist from, directly or indirectly:

1. Disseminating, or causing to be disseminated, any advertisement by means of the United States mails or by any means in commerce, as "commerce" is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, which advertisement represents, directly or through implication:

a. That said device is not a truss;

b. That said device is revolutionary;

c. That the use of said device will retain hernias or ruptures unless limited to reducible hernias or ruptures;

d. That said device will cure hernias or ruptures;

e. That the use of said device stimulates the circulation of blood, contributes to the improvement of impaired muscular tissue, or assists nature in building muscle tone and strength;

f. That said device will hold ruptures or hernias securely in place under all conditions of activity or strain;

2. Disseminating, or causing to be disseminated, any advertisement which contains any of the representations prohibited in Paragraph 1 of this order, by any means for the purpose of inducing, or which is likely to induce, directly or indirectly, the purchase of said device in commerce, as "commerce" is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act.

It is further ordered, That respondent Herbert B. Sykes, an individual trading under his own name or any other name or trade designation, his representatives, agents and employees, directly or through any corporate or other device, in connection with the offering for sale of a device designated as Sykes Appliance or any product or device of substantially similar construction or design, whether sold under the same name or any other name, do forthwith cease and desist from, directly or indirectly: Representing or causing to be represented, that respondent Herbert B. Sykes, or his agents or representatives, conduct or operate clinics where professional medical experts, specialists, or physicians will be present to consult with, examine, advise or treat persons suffering from hernia, unless and until such is actually the fact.

It is further ordered, That the complaint herein, insofar as it relates to respondent Griffith and McCarthy, Inc., a corporation, be, and the same hereby is, dismissed.

By said "Final Order", report of compliance was required as follows:

It is further ordered, That the respondent herein shall, within sixty (60) days after service upon him of this order, file with the Commission a report in writing setting forth in detail the manner and form in which he has complied with the order to cease and desist, as modified.

Issued: March 8, 1956.

PART 687—HOSIERY INDUSTRY IN PUERTO RICO

WAGE ORDER GIVING EFFECT TO RECOMMENDATIONS

On January 19, 1956, pursuant to section 5 of the Fair Labor Standards Act of 1938 (52 Stat. 1060, as amended; 29 U. S. C. 201 et seq.), the Secretary of Labor by Administrative Order No. 455 (21 F. [Docket No. G-9667]

IROQUOIS GAS CORP.

NOTICE OF APPLICATION AND DATE OF HEARING

MARCH 28, 1956.

Iroquois Gas Corporation (Applicant), a New York corporation, with its principal place of business located at Buffalo, New York, filed on November 17, 1955, an application for a certificate of public convenience and necessity pursuant to section 7 of the Natural Gas Act, authorizing it to construct and operate certain gas facilities as hereinafter described, subject to the jurisdiction of the Commission, all as more fully represented in its application which is on file with the Commission and open for public inspection.

Applicant proposes to construct and operate certain underground storage facilities and pipelines for the Nashville Storage Project located in Erie, Chautauqua and Cattaraugus Counties in the State of New York, approximately 35 miles south of the city of Buffalo.

Applicant further states that the estimated cost of the project is summarized as follows:

|---|---|
| 14 miles of 12-inch main pipeline | $500,000 |
| 22 miles of 12-inch, 8-inch, 6-inch and 4-inch gathering lines | 499,200 |
| Drilling and reconditioning wells (total 80) | 1,263,000 |
| 900 h. p. compress station | 615,000 |
| Total | 2,877,200 |

Applicant also states that National Fuel Gas Company of New York, N. Y., the controlling corporation, will provide the necessary funds during the years 1956 and 1957, for common stock or long term promissory notes, or both from Applicant.

Applicant alleges that the proposed Nashville Storage Project anticipates the use of a former gas producing reservoir in the Medina sandstone formation 3,000 feet below the surface and that Applicant has developed five similar storage pools in this formation and has a sixth almost completed. These all lie to the northeast of the Nashville project within a distance of 45 miles.

Applicant further alleges that during the production life of the Nashville Field Applicant produced or bought substantially all of the gas produced, and now has 95 percent of the acreage overlying the proven productive area under lease. The remaining 5 percent comprises small parcels on which drilling operations would be impractical or impossible; they are not under lease to anyone and they are unavailable for oil and/or gas leasing.

Applicant also alleges that it and its affiliate, Republic Light, Heat and Power Company, Inc. (Republic), are serving an ever-expanding market in western New York. The demand for additional gas for space heating has continued at an unprecedented rate requiring development of additional storage areas. Applicant's present storage fields were almost completely filled during the current season and will be inadequate for the 1956 storage cycle. Additional storage will be needed in 1956 to handle the new supply of gas to be made available from Tennessee Gas Transmission Company at Docket No. G-2331. Also it is advantageous financially to have storage capacity available for additional quantities of low cost "surplus gas" when offered. By acquiring and storing quantities of such gas, the company will be able to reduce its gas manufacturing operations during any abnormally cold winter season, thereby reducing the manpower requirements as well as the cost of such operations; and that the total storage field data is summarized as follows:

|---|---|
| Approximate depth (feet) | 3,000 |
| Estimated reserves, original (Mcf) | 8,500,000 |
| Present reserves (Mcf) | 450,000 |
| Reservoir pressure, original, p. s. i. g. | 940 |
| Reservoir pressure, present, p. s. i. g. | 50 |
| Proposed storage pressure, Top, p. s. i. g. | 940 |
| Proposed storage pressure, Base, p. s. i. g. | 450 |
| Proposed volume to be stored above native gas (Mcf) | 8,000,000 |
| Proposed base or cushion (Mcf) | 3,600,000 |
| Proposed volume, active per season (Mcf) | 4,400,000 |
| Injection rates, daily average (Mcf) | 20,000 |
| Withdrawal rate (Mcf) | 45,000 |
| Maximum daily deliverability from 940 p. s. i. g. storage pressure to station facilities (Mcf) | 80,000 |
| Number of wells when completed | 80 |

This matter is one that should be disposed of as promptly as possible under the applicable rules and regulations and to that end:

Take further notice that, pursuant to the authority contained in and subject to the jurisdiction conferred upon the Federal Power Commission by sections 7 and 15 of the Natural Gas Act, and the Commission's rules of practice and procedure, a hearing will be held on April 30, 1956, at 9:30 a. m., e. d. s. t., in a hearing room of the Federal Power Commission, 441 G Street NW., Washington, D. C., concerning the matters involved in and the issues presented by such application: Provided, however, That the Commission may, after a non-contested hearing, dispose of the proceedings pursuant to the provisions of § 1.30 (c) (1) or (2) of the Commission's rules of practice and procedure. Under the procedure herein provided for, unless otherwise advised, it will be unnecessary for Applicant to appear or be represented at the hearing.

Protests or petitions to intervene may be filed with the Federal Power Commission, Washington 25, D. C., in accordance with the rules of practice and procedure (18 CFR 1.8 or 1.10) on or before April 15, 1956. Failure of any party to appear at and participate in the hearing shall be construed as waiver of and concurrence in omission herein of the intermediate decision procedure in cases where a request therefor is made.

[Docket No. G-9809]

IROQUOIS GAS CORP. AND PENN-YORK NATURAL GAS CORP.

NOTICE OF APPLICATION AND DATE OF HEARING

Iroquois Gas Corporation (Iroquois), a New York corporation, and Penn-York Natural Gas Corporation (Penn-York), a Pennsylvania corporation, both wholly owned subsidiaries of National Fuel Gas Company (National) and having their principal place of business located at Buffalo, New York, filed on December 22, 1955, a joint application for a certificate of public convenience and necessity pursuant to section 7 of the Natural Gas Act for authorization to construct and operate an emergency interconnection and the exchange of gas during emergency periods, subject to the jurisdiction of the Commission, all as more fully represented in their joint application which is on file with the Commission and open for public inspection.

Iroquois proposes to construct a 5-mile, 8-inch emergency interconnecting pipeline from its Porterville Station in the Town of Elma, Erie County, New York, to the existing Penn-York transmission pipeline in the Town of Marilla, Erie County, New York. This location is a few miles east of Buffalo. The Applicants state that they have an existing emergency connection where gas is exchanged in the Town of Collins, Erie County, New York, south of Buffalo.

Applicants state that construction is expected to commence by April 1, 1956, and is to be completed by May 30, 1956.

Applicants also state that the proposed emergency connection will permit Iroquois to coordinate the dispatching schedules of Iroquois, Penn-York and Republic Light, Heat and Power Company (Republic) [1] during emergency periods. Penn-York will have a direct connection with Iroquois' Porterville Station, a major dispatching center which receives gas purchased from Tennessee Gas Transmission Company. In the event of an emergency situation involving Republic's Niagara District, Iroquois will be able to supply additional gas to that District and be repaid with equal volumes from Penn-York, directed through this proposed new line to Porterville.

Applicants further state in the event of an emergency involving Republic's Batavia or Dunkirk Districts, gas can be diverted through the proposed interconnection to the Penn-York transmission pipeline supplying Republic for resale in Batavia and Dunkirk.

[1] Republic is an affiliate of Applicants, distributing gas to retail in the outskirts of Buffalo and vicinity and receiving its supply from Penn-York and from Iroquois.

Applicants allege that an agreement dated May 31, 1949, filed by Iroquois as its X-1 rate schedule, presently is in effect covering emergency exchanges of gas through the present emergency connection between Iroquois, Penn-York and Republic in the Town of Collins. Applicants propose to revise this X-1 rate schedule by agreement dated December 19, 1955, to provide for emergency exchanges through the emergency interconnection proposed herein.

Applicants further allege that no money changes hands under this agreement as the gas delivered by one Applicant is returned in kind at Applicants' sole discretion within a reasonable time after deliveries are first made.

Applicants also allege that the total estimated costs of the proposed construction is $120,000 and is to be financed by issuance of securities by Iroquois to its parent, National Fuel Gas Company.

Iroquois states that it will apply to the New York Public Service Commission for permission to issue stock or long-term notes, or both, to finance part of its overall 1956 construction program, of which the proposed construction herein is a minor part; and since Iroquois is a subsidiary of National Fuel Gas Company, a registered holding company under the Public Utility Holding Company Act of 1935, applications for the same purpose will be filed with the Securities and Exchange Commission by Iroquois and National under this act.

Applicants point out that their present plans call for eventual merger of Republic, Penn-York and Iroquois.

This matter is one that should be disposed of as promptly as possible under the applicable rules and regulations and to that end:

Take further notice that, pursuant to the authority contained in and subject to the jurisdiction conferred upon the Federal Power Commission by sections 7 and 15 of the Natural Gas Act, and the Commission's rules of practice and procedure, a hearing will be held on April 30, 1956, at 9:30 a. m., e. d. s. t., in a hearing room of the Federal Power Commission, 441 G Street NW., Washington, D. C., concerning the matters involved in and the issues presented by such joint application: Provided, however, That the Commission may, after a non-contested hearing, dispose of the proceedings pursuant to the provisions of § 1.30 (c) (1) or (2) of the Commission's rules of practice and procedure. Under the procedure herein provided for, unless otherwise advised, it will not be necessary for Applicants to appear or be represented at the hearing.

Protests or petitions to intervene may be filed with the Federal Power Commission, Washington 25, D. C., in accordance with the rules of practice and procedure (18 CFR 1.8 or 1.10) on or before April 15, 1956. Failure of any party to appear at and participate in the hearing shall be construed as waiver of and concurrence in omission herein of the intermediate decision procedure in cases where a request therefor is made.

AUTHORITY: §§ 421.2126 to 421.2139 issued under sec. 4, 62 Stat. 1070, as amended; 15 U. S. C. 714b. Interpret or apply sec. 5, 62 Stat. 1072, secs. 301, 401, 63 Stat. 1053, 1054, as amended; 15 U. S. C. 714c, 7 U. S. C. 1447, 1421.

§ 421.2126 General. This subpart states the requirements with respect to the 1956-crop Texas Flaxseed Purchase Program formulated for price support purposes by Commodity Credit Corporation (referred to in this subpart as CCC) and the Commodity Stabilization Service (referred to in this subpart as CSS). CCC, through designated Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation county committees, will stand ready to make direct purchases from eligible producers of eligible flaxseed delivered to authorized dealers from the time of harvest through July 31, 1956. All such purchases shall be made in accordance with this subpart.

§ 421.2127 Administration. (a) This program will be administered in the field through the CSS Commodity Office, Dallas, Texas, the Texas State Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee, and Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation county committees (referred to in this subpart as county committees). A producer desiring to sell flaxseed under this program must apply to the county committee of the county in which the flaxseed was produced for written delivery instructions on the quantity of flaxseed he wishes to sell to CCC.

(b) Such application must be made sufficiently in advance of the date of the intended delivery to enable the county committee to schedule deliveries in an orderly manner. Delivery instructions issued by the county committee will set forth the approximate quantity of flaxseed and the time and place of delivery for the account of CCC. All flaxseed delivered under such instructions must meet the eligibility requirements specified in § 421.2132. All documents will be approved by the county office manager, or other employee of the county office designated by him to act in his behalf. Such designations shall be on file in the county office. County office managers, State and county committees, and CSS commodity offices do not have authority to modify or waive any of the provisions of this subpart or any amendments or supplements to this subpart.

§ 421.2128 Period and area of operation. This program will be available on eligible flaxseed from the time of harvest through July 31, 1956, in the Texas counties indicated in § 421.2129 (a). Deliveries of flaxseed under this program must be completed on or before July 31, 1956.

§ 421.2129 Basic purchase prices. (a) The basic purchase price per bushel of flaxseed, grading No. 1, delivered under this program for the account of CCC will be at the rate established for the county where the flaxseed is delivered. Texas counties authorized under this program and basic purchase rates will be announced at a later date, by an amendment to this subpart.

(b) (1) The basic purchase price per bushel for No. 1 flaxseed delivered to authorized dealers at the Corpus Christi and Houston terminal markets will be issued as an amendment to this bulletin at a later date. Such purchase price will be established for flaxseed delivered in carload lots which have been shipped by rail on a domestic interstate freight rate basis, from a country shipping point to the said terminal markets as evidenced by paid freight bills duly registered for transit privileges and other documents as required in this subpart: Provided, That, in the event the amount of paid-in freight is insufficient to guarantee the minimum proportional freight rate from the aforesaid terminal markets, there shall be deducted from the applicable terminal purchase price the difference between the amount of freight actually paid in and the amount required to be paid in to guarantee outbound movement at the minimum proportional freight rate. The terminal warehouse receipt must be accompanied by a registered freight bill, or by a supplemental certificate signed by the warehousemen, containing data like that on such freight bills, in the form prescribed by the CSS Commodity Office, Dallas, Texas.

(2) The basic purchase price of flaxseed delivered at the aforesaid terminal markets by Rail in carload lots for which neither registered freight bills nor such freight certificates are presented, will be the terminal basic purchase price less 8 cents per bushel. Flaxseed delivered by truck at the designated terminals in the State of Texas will be purchased by CCC under this program on the basis of the terminal rate minus 12½ cents.

(c) The basic purchase price for No. 2 flaxseed shall in all instances be 6 cents per bushel less than the price indicated for No. 1 flaxseed.

(d) To compensate CCC for storage charges on flaxseed acquired under this program, the following deduction per bushel of flaxseed purchased shall be made from the basic purchase prices set forth in this section:

| For flaxseed deposited in: | Deduction per bushel (cents) |
|---|---|
| April 1956 | 13.5 |
| May 1956 | 12.0 |
| June 1956 | 10.5 |
| July 1956 | 9.0 |

§ 421.2130 Basis of purchase. Eligible flaxseed will be purchased on the basis of weight and grade. The grade shall be determined in accordance with the Official Grain Standards of the United States for flaxseed by a grain inspector licensed by the Secretary of Agriculture, except that wherever the services of such a licensed inspector are not available the CSS Commodity Office shall designate in writing a person qualified to determine the grade of flaxseed in accordance with the Official Grain Standards of the United States for flaxseed. Such designation may be revoked in writing by the CSS Commodity Office at any time.

§ 421.2131 Eligible producer. An eligible producer shall be any individual, partnership, association, corporation, estate, trust, or other business enterprise, or legal entity, and whenever applicable, a State, political subdivision of a State, or any agency thereof which (a) has produced flaxseed in 1956 in one of the counties named in § 421.2129 as landowner, landlord, tenant, or sharecropper, and (b) has applied to the appropriate county office for delivery instructions.

§ 421.2132 Eligible flaxseed. Eligible flaxseed shall meet the following requirements:

(a) The flaxseed must be produced by an eligible producer in 1956 in one of the counties named in § 421.2129 (a).

(b) (1) The beneficial interest in the flaxseed must be in the eligible producer tendering the flaxseed for purchase, and must always have been in him, or must have been in him and a former producer whom he succeeded before the flaxseed was harvested.

(2) To meet the requirements of succession to a former producer, the rights, responsibilities and interest of the former producer with respect to the farming unit on which the flaxseed was produced shall have been substantially assumed by the person claiming succession. Mere purchase of the crop prior to harvest, without acquisition of any additional interest in the farming unit, shall not constitute succession. The county committee shall determine whether the requirements with respect to succession have been met.

(c) The flaxseed must grade No. 1 or No. 2. Sample grade flaxseed will not be purchased under this program.

§ 421.2133 Authorized dealer. An authorized dealer shall be any individual, partnership, association or corporation operating under a 1956 Flaxseed Dealer Agreement with CCC, which authorizes such dealer to accept delivery of eligible flaxseed under this program for the account of CCC. A list of authorized dealers to whom flaxseed may be delivered for the account of CCC under this program may be obtained from the offices indicated in § 421.2127.

§ 421.2134 Purchase documents. (a) The purchase documents shall consist of (1) the "Non-Negotiable Flaxseed Dealer's Receipt and Grade Certificate" (or other similar document if approved by CCC) issued to the producer for flaxseed delivered, and in the case of a terminal warehouse receipt, the registered freight bill or warehouseman's supplemental certificate, (2) the purchase settlement form, and (3) such other forms and documents as may be prescribed by CCC.

(b) The receipt must be issued in the name of the producer for the account of CCC and must be dated on or before July 31, 1956. Each receipt must show: (1) Gross weight or bushels, (2) grade, (3) test weight, (4) dockage, and (5) percentage of damage, when such factor and not test weight determines the grade. The receipt must show whether the flaxseed arrived by rail, truck or barge. In the case of warehouse receipts issued for flaxseed delivered by rail or barge, the grading factors on the receipt must agree with the inbound inspection certificates for the car or barge.

§ 421.2135 Determination of quantity. (a) The number of bushels of flaxseed delivered shall be determined by weight at time of delivery. A bushel shall be 56 pounds of flaxseed free of dockage.

(b) The percentage of dockage shall be determined in accordance with the Official Grain Standards of the United States for Flaxseed, and the weight of said dockage shall be deducted from the gross weight of the flaxseed in determining the net quantity for purchase.

§ 421.2136 Liens. The flaxseed must be free and clear of all liens and encumbrances, or if liens and encumbrances exist on the flaxseed, proper waivers must be presented to the county committee at the time of application for delivery instructions.

§ 421.2137 Service charge. A service charge of one-half cent per bushel or a minimum of $1.50, whichever is greater, shall be charged the producer on each purchase of flaxseed made by CCC under this program. The amount of the service charge shall be deducted from the purchase price at the time of settlement.

§ 421.1538 Setoffs. If the producer is indebted to CCC on any accrued obligation, or if any installment or installments on any loan made available by CCC on farm-storage facilities or mobile drying equipment are past due, or are payable under the provisions of the note evidencing such loan out of the proceeds of the price support purchase, he must designate CCC or the lending agency holding such note as the payee of the proceeds of the price support purchase to the extent of such indebtedness or installments, but not to exceed that portion of the proceeds remaining after deduction of service charges and amounts due prior lienholders. If the producer is indebted to any other agency of the United States and such indebtedness is listed on the county debt register, he must designate such agency as the payee of the proceeds as provided in this section. Indebtedness owing to CCC or to a lending agency as provided in this section shall be given first consideration after claims of prior lienholders. Compliance with the provisions of this section shall not constitute a waiver of any right of the producer to contest the justness of the indebtedness involved either by administrative appeal or by legal action.

§ 421.2139 Payment. Payment to the producer for flaxseed delivered under this program shall be made by the ASC county office by means of sight draft drawn on CCC, and on the basis of the purchase documents indicated in § 421.2134, subject to the provisions relating to setoffs and service charge.

Issued this 29th day of March 1956.

[SEAL] WALTER C. BERGER,
Acting Executive Vice President,
Commodity Credit Corporation.

Chapter I—Civil Aeronautics Board

[Reg. No. SR-406B]

PART 40—SCHEDULED INTERSTATE AIR CARRIER CERTIFICATION AND OPERATION RULES

PART 41—CERTIFICATION AND OPERATION RULES FOR SCHEDULED AIR CARRIER OPERATIONS OUTSIDE THE CONTINENTAL LIMITS OF THE UNITED STATES

PART 42—IRREGULAR AIR CARRIER AND OFF-ROUTE RULES

SPECIAL CIVIL AIR REGULATION; APPLICATION OF TRANSPORT CATEGORY PERFORMANCE REQUIREMENTS TO C-46 TYPE AIRPLANES

Adopted by the Civil Aeronautics Board at its office in Washington, D. C., on the 30th day of March 1956.

On June 30, 1954, the Civil Aeronautics Board adopted Special Civil Air Regulation SR-406, effective July 1, 1954, which provides the basis for the modification and operation of C-46 type airplanes in passenger service. On June 7, 1955, the Board adopted Special Civil Air Regulation SR-406A, effective June 7, 1955, which added certain substantive and clarifying amendments to SR-406. The preamble material of these two Special Civil Air Regulations is incorporated herein by reference.

Special Regulation 406A requires that all C-46 airplanes in passenger service be modified to comply with certain provisions of Part 4b of the Civil Air Regulations on and after October 1, 1955, but it gives the Administrator authority to permit operation of these airplanes, without being so modified, under certain conditions, until April 1, 1956. By letter dated February 18, 1956, the Aircraft Engineering Foundation, (Foundation) requested that the deadline date of April 1, 1956, in Special Civil Air Regulation No. SR-406A be extended until December 31, 1956.

In addition to the foundation, Air Carrier Engineering Service (ACES) and Riddle Airlines (Riddle) have applied for type certificates for C-46 airplanes under SR-406A. To date, no C-46 airplane has been type certificated under SR-406A. The manufacture of kits for the modification contemplated by said special regulation cannot be started until respective type certification is accomplished. It is apparent, therefore, that the type certification process contemplated by SR-406A will not be completed in sufficient time to permit full compliance with said special regulation by April 1, 1956. This situation is particularly disappointing to the Board in consideration of the fact that we have been repeatedly advised during the past year that the completion of type certification was imminent. In view of the prolonged delay in the type certification of C-46 airplanes under SR-406A, it becomes especially difficult to estimate a date by which individual aircraft modifications may reasonably be accomplished.

When SR-406A was adopted by the Board, it was anticipated that the April 1, 1956, deadline date for full compliance with the special regulation would give ample time for type certification and modification of all C-46 airplanes in passenger service. Although there may be subsidiary reasons why the C-46 airplanes were not modified and recertificated, it appears that the principal reason lies in the failure of C-46 operators to take appropriate action to insure completion of type certification as required. The Board is of the view, therefore, that, subject to persuasive reasons for failing, type certification must be accomplished within the next 90 days before any commitment is made for the extension of the April 1 effective date as requested by the Foundation.

The Board is mindful of the fact that the C-46 airplane is operated extensively under contract to the Department of Defense for the carriage of military personnel. Accordingly, the Board will grant the Foundation's request only to the extent that temporary relief will be afforded from those provisions of SR-406A which prevent the use of C-46 airplanes in passenger operations under Part 42 of the Civil Air Regulations on and after April 1, 1956. So much of the Foundation's request as relates to the establishment of a later end effective date by which recertification of these airplanes in the transport category must be completed will be considered further during the effective period of this regulation pending a bona-fide showing of meeting the type certification requirements.

Since this regulation continues in effect the same rules as are presently applicable to C-46 type airplanes, with the exception of the compliance date listed herein, without diminution in safety standards, and since it would be in the public interest to prescribe rules to become effective on April 1, 1956, to permit the continuation of operation of C-46 type airplanes in passenger service, the Board finds that omission of notice and public procedure is not contrary to public interest and that good cause exists for making this regulation effective on less than 30 days' notice.

In consideration of the foregoing, the Civil Aeronautics Board hereby makes and promulgates the following Special Civil Air Regulation effective April 1, 1956.

1. All provisions of Special Civil Air Regulation No. SR-406A made and promulgated by the Board, effective June 7, 1955, are incorporated herein by reference and shall be of the same force and effect as if included herein, except that there shall be substituted the date July 1, 1956, in lieu of April 1, 1956, in each and every place where said date of April 1, 1956, appears.

2. This Special Civil Air Regulation supersedes Special Civil Air Regulation SR-406A.

(Sec. 205, 52 Stat. 984, as amended; 49 U. S. C. 425. Interprets or applies secs. 601, 603, 604, 52 Stat. 1007, as amended; 1009, as amended; 1010, as amended; 49 U. S. C. 551, 553, 554)

DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE

Agricultural Research Service

[ 7 CFR Part 301 ]

DOMESTIC QUARANTINE NOTICES

PINK BOLLWORM

Notice is hereby given under section 4 of the Administrative Procedure Act (5 U. S. C. 1003) that the Administrator of the Agricultural Research Service, pursuant to sections 8 and 9 of the Plant Quarantine Act of 1912, as amended (7 U. S. C. 161, 162) is considering amending §§ 301.52–5 (l) (2) and 301.52–8 of the regulations supplemental to the quarantine relating to the pink bollworm (7 CFR 301.52–5 (l) (2), 301.52–8, 20 F. R. 4935), to read, respectively, as follows:

§ 301.52–5 Conditions governing movement of regulated articles. • • •

(2) Edible okra. (i) Edible okra produced in Texas may be moved under a certificate to any destination during the period December 1 to April 30, inclusive, when produced, handled, and marketed under such conditions as in the judgment of the inspector render it free from infestation.

(ii) Edible okra produced in Texas may be moved to any destination during the period May 1 to November 30, inclusive, under a certificate which may be issued if the okra has been produced, handled, and marketed in such a manner that such movement in the judgment of the inspector, will not disseminate infestation, or has been treated under the supervision of an inspector in accordance with methods selected by him from administratively authorized procedures known to be effective under the conditions applied.

(iii) Edible okra produced in Texas, when suitably identified on the container thereof with a stamp as required by the inspector, may be moved during the period May 1 to November 30, inclusive, without certificate or limited permit to any destination in the noncotton-producing States of Colorado, Connecticut, Delaware, Idaho, Indiana, Iowa, Maine, Maryland, Massachusetts, Michigan, Minnesota, Montana, Nebraska, New Hampshire, New Jersey, New York, North Dakota, Ohio, Oregon, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, South Dakota, Utah, Vermont, Washington, West Virginia, Wisconsin, and Wyoming; or the District of Columbia; or the following cities in cotton-producing States: Chicago, Illinois; Kansas City and Wichita, Kansas; Kansas City and St. Louis, Missouri; and Louisville, Kentucky; for immediate processing or consumption therein.

(iv) Edible okra produced in Texas may be moved therefrom without restriction to destinations in New Mexico and Oklahoma when suitably identified on the container thereof with a stamp as required by the inspector.

(v) Edible okra produced in any other part of the regulated area may be moved without restriction to any destination when produced, handled, and marketed under such conditions as in the judgment of the inspector render it free from infestation. Otherwise, it must be treated as provided in subdivision (ii) of this subparagraph or must meet the requirements of subdivision (iii) of this subparagraph (other than the requirement of production in Texas).

§ 301.52–8 Cleaning or treating requirements for articles when contaminated. Railway cars, trucks, and other means of transportation; bagging and other containers and wrappers for cotton and cotton products; picking, ginning, and oil mill equipment, and other cotton processing machinery and cotton harvesting machinery; other farm equipment; farm household goods; farm products; and any other commodities; which are found to be contaminated with live pink bollworms, or with cotton or cotton products originating within the regulated area or imported thereinto from contiguous areas of Mexico, may be moved from or within the regulated area only after they have been freed from such contamination by cleaning or treatment to the satisfaction of an inspector, after which cleaning or treatment no certificate or limited permit will be required except as prescribed by an inspector for bagging, for other containers and wrappers for cotton and cotton products, and for cotton processing or harvesting machinery. Cotton harvesting machinery or cotton ginning machinery that has been used or otherwise kept within the regulated area will be deemed to be contaminated within the meaning of § 301.52 and may be moved to a nonregulated area or to that part of the regulated area in Arizona, Arkansas, or Louisiana from any part of the regulated area not in one of these three States only if it has been cleaned and given an approved fumigation and is covered by a certificate: Provided, however, That approved fumigation of such cotton ginning machinery as a requirement for certification may be waived when in the judgment of the inspector the machinery has been disassembled, cleaned, and reconditioned in such a manner as to preclude the possibility of its harboring seed cotton or living pink bollworms.

The amendment of § 301.52–5 (l) (2) (i) would extend by one month the period during which certain edible okra produced in Texas may be moved under certificate. Corresponding changes would be made in § 301.52–5 (l) (2) (ii) and (iii). Provision in § 301.52–5 (l) (ii) for certification of edible okra, for movement, after processing under authorized methods would be eliminated. The amendment of § 301.52–5 (l) (2) (iii) would eliminate a restriction therein as to the shipper and manner of shipment of edible okra to certain destinations and add St. Louis, Missouri to the list of such destinations. A new § 301.52–5 (l) (2) (iv) would be added to allow the unrestricted movement throughout the year of identifiable Texas-grown edible okra when shipped from Texas to New Mexico or Oklahoma. Present § 301.52–5 (l) (2) (iv) would be redesignated as § 301.52–5 (l) (2) (v) and a reference therein to a processing requirement would be eliminated for conformity with the proposed amendment of § 301.52–5 (l) (2) (ii). Provisions in § 301.52–5 (l) (2) (i) and (ii) and redesignated (v) would be changed specifically to require as a condition of movement that certain edible okra must have been handled and marketed, as well as produced, under various specified conditions. Section 301.52–8 would be amended to allow waiver of fumigation requirements for certain cotton ginning machinery.

All persons who desire to submit written data, views, or arguments in connection with this matter should file the same with the Chief of the Plant Pest Control Branch, Agricultural Research Service, United States Department of Agriculture, Washington 25, D. C., within 30 days after the date of the publication of this notice in the FEDERAL REGISTER.

(Secs. 8, 9, 37 Stat. 318, as amended; 7 U. S. C. 161, 162)

FEDERAL COMMUNICATIONS COMMISSION

[ 47 CFR Parts 1, 17 ]

[FCC 56-284; Docket No. 11665]

PRACTICE AND PROCEDURE; CONSTRUCTION, MARKING AND LIGHTING OF ANTENNA TOWERS AND/OR THEIR SUPPORTING STRUCTURES

NOTICE OF PROPOSED RULE MAKING

1. Notice is hereby given of rule making in the above-entitled matter.

2. Two of the principal factors that determine the distance over which usable signals can be transmitted by stations operating on higher radio frequencies are effective radiated power and antenna height. In the process of striking a balance between the practicable limits on each of these factors, and in making effective use of the frequencies, there are distinct advantages to the employment of high antennas. This is particularly true for television, and the Commission has encouraged the use of high antennas in this service.

3. The Commission is aware, however, that the erection of high antenna towers creates problems in aeronautical navigation; and the Commission in cooperation with the aviation interests, has established procedures and standards designed to reconcile the conflicts between the aviation and broadcast industries to the greatest extent practicable. With the continuing growth of the television industry in recent years, the employment of high towers throughout the country has been increasing rapidly; and the aviation interests have been vitally concerned with the ever increasing number of high antenna structures, especially those over 500 feet above ground. The Joint Industry-Government Tall Structure Committee (JIGTSC) was established to study and consider the problems involved and on October 3, 1955, issued a Report urging, inter alia, that radio and television transmitting antenna towers should, insofar as possible, be grouped in areas designated for that purpose, and that the use of structures for supporting multiple antennas should be encouraged. These recommendations were approved by the Air Coordinating Committee on October 18, 1955.

4. With respect to the television broadcast service, in areas and communities where more than one such service is contemplated, there are distinct advantages to locating all transmitting antennas in the same general area; and this is true both from the standpoint of generally improving television reception as well as minimizing hazard to aviation. Every effort should be made, therefore, to group high antenna structures and to encourage the use of a single structure for supporting multiple antennas. The principal objective is, of course, to choose an area where the towers will not constitute a hazard to aviation.

5. In view of the foregoing, the Commission is proposing to amend its rules to encourage the grouping of antenna towers and the multiple use of structures for supporting antennas. The proposed amendment will require applicants for radio and television stations, both broadcast and nonbroadcast, proposing the erection of transmitting towers over 500 feet in height above ground, to specify location of their antennas within an acceptable area suitable for grouping towers or on existing structures, or, failing this, to demonstrate why their antennas cannot be so located. It should be clearly understood that the proposed amendments would apply only to the construction of new antennas and will not apply to existing authorizations. However, where an existing station proposes to move its transmitting antenna to a new location, the new rules would apply.

6. To implement its new policy, the Commission is proposing to add the following provision to both Parts 1 and 17 of its rules as §§ 1.348 and 17.5, respectively:

Antennas which require a height in excess of 500 feet above ground should, whenever possible, be placed on existing structures. Further, all antenna structures in excess of 500 feet in height above ground should be grouped insofar as possible within areas designated for that purpose.

(a) An application for permit to construct a radio station, or for authority to change the location of an existing station, which proposes the erection of an antenna structure over 500 feet in height above ground will not be granted unless the Commission finds that an adequate showing has been made that:

(1) an existing structure cannot be used;

(2) the proposed structure cannot be located in an area in which one or more existing antenna structures of a comparable height are already situated or in an area designated by the Airspace Panel of the Air Coordinating Committee as acceptable from an aeronautical viewpoint for grouping of such structures; and

(3) the proposed structure will not constitute an undue hazard to air navigation.

(b) All applications for permits to construct radio stations, or to change the location of an existing station, proposing the erection of antenna structures over 500 feet in height above ground should include the following information:

(1) A statement indicating the availability of the proposed structure and site for use as an antenna or support for antennas by other radio stations. When such additional use of the structure by other radio stations is not contemplated by the applicant, a statement should be supplied indicating the basis on which such use by other stations is refused.

AVIATION SERVICES

STANDARD TECHNICAL REQUIREMENTS

In the matter of amendment of Part 9 of the Commission's rules to provide standard technical requirements in the aviation services.

The Commission having under consideration a petition dated March 26, 1956, filed by Aeronautical Radio, Inc., requesting an extension of time in which to submit comments directed to the Commission's Notice of Proposed Rule Making in the above-captioned matter:

It appearing that further coordination within the air transport industry must take place before the petitioner is in a position to enter final comments in this proceeding; and

It further appearing that, according to the petitioner's representations, the interval between January 26, 1956, and April 2, 1956, specified in the Notice of Proposed Rule Making, does not afford sufficient time to complete such coordination; and

It further appearing that the petitioner expects to complete its study and to formulate a coordinated position in this matter within thirty days; and

It further appearing that extension of time for reception of comments in this Docket, in the manner requested, would serve the public interest by permitting the development of additional information concerning the above-captioned matter:

It is ordered, That, pursuant to authority contained in section 0.291 (b) (4) of the Commission's rules, the time for filing comments in the above-captioned matter is hereby extended from April 2, 1956, to May 2, 1956, and that rebuttal comments may be filed within ten days from the extended closing date for original comments.

(1) Manifolding is authorized for containers of the following gases, provided, that each container is individually equipped with approved safety devices as required by § 73.34 (f) or § 73.315 (i): Air; Argon; Carbon Dioxide; Helium; Nitrogen; Nitrous Oxide; Oxygen.

(2) Manifolding is authorized for containers of the following gases, provided individual containers are equipped with approved safety devices as required by § 73.34 (f) or § 73.315 (i) and further provided that each container is equipped with individual shut-off valve, or valves, which shall be tightly closed while in transit. Manifold branch lines to these individual shut-off valves shall be sufficiently flexible to prevent injury to the valves which otherwise might result from the use of rigid branch lines. When a temperature measuring device is used on a cylinder the manifold shut-off valve shall be deemed the equivalent of the individual shut-off valve: boron trifluoride; ethylene (nonliquefied); hydrogen; hydrocarbon gases (nonliquefied); methane.

(3) Manifolding is authorized for containers of the following gases, provided individual containers are equipped with approved safety devices as required by § 73.34 (f) or § 73.315 (i), and further provided that each container is equipped with individual shut-off valve, or valves, which shall be tightly closed while in transit, and that each such container must be separately charged and means shall be provided to insure that no interchange of container contents can occur during transportation. Manifold branch lines to individual shut-off valves shall be sufficiently flexible to prevent injury to the valves which otherwise might result from the use of rigid branch lines: Ethane; ethylene; propylene; liquefied petroleum gases; liquefied hydrocarbon gases.

(4) Manifolding is authorized for containers of acetylene, provided that each container is individually equipped with approved safety devices as required by § 73.34 (f) or § 73.315 (i), and further provided that each container is equipped with an individual shut-off valve, or valves, which shall be tightly closed while in transit. Manifold branch lines to these individual shut-off valves shall be sufficiently flexible to prevent injury to the valves which otherwise might result from the use of rigid branch lines. All manifolded containers shall be transported in a vertical position. For the checking of tare weights or for replacement of solvent the container shall be removed from the manifold. This subparagraph is not intended to prohibit the charging of the acetylene cylinders while manifolded.

(5) Manifolding is authorized for cargo tanks of the following gas provided individual cargo tanks are equipped with the safety relief valves and gaging devices, as required by § 73.315 (h) and (i); and further provided, that each cargo tank is equipped with individual valve, or valves, which shall be tightly closed while in transit and that each such container must be separately charged: anhydrous ammonia.

NORTH CENTRAL BROADCASTING CO. AND MUNISING-ALGER BROADCASTING CO.

ORDER FOR THE CONDUCT OF HEARING

In re applications of North Central Broadcasting Company, Munising, Michigan, Docket No. 11607, File No. BP–10004; Charles A. Symon, Stanley L. Sadak and Richard E. Hunt d/b as Munising-Alger Broadcasting Company, Munising, Michigan, Docket No. 11608, File No. BP–10142; for construction permits.

Appearances. Corwin R. Lockwood, Washington, D. C., on behalf of North Central Broadcasting Company; Maurice R. Barnes and Samuel Miller, Washington, D. C., on behalf of Charles A. Symon, Stanley L. Sadak and Richard E. Hunt, d/b as Munising-Alger Broadcasting Company; and Ray Paul, Washington, D. C., on behalf of the Chief, Broadcast Bureau, Federal Communications Commission.

1. Pre-hearing conferences in the above-entitled proceeding were held February 20 and March 19, 1956. The parties attending were as indicated in the appearances above.

2. In the Commission's order of January 11, 1956, designating the applications for hearing, the issues were specified as follows:

1. To determine the areas and populations which would receive primary service from each of the proposed operations, and the availability of other primary service to such areas and populations.

2. To determine which of the operations proposed in the above-entitled applications would better serve the public interest in the light of the evidence adduced under the foregoing issues and record made with respect to the significant differences between the applicants as to:

(a) The background and experience of each of the above-named applicants to own and operate its proposed station.

(b) The proposals of each of the above-named applicants with respect to the management and operation of the proposed stations.

(c) The programming service proposed in each of the above-mentioned applications.

3. To determine, in the light of the evidence adduced pursuant to the foregoing issues, which, if either, of the applications should be granted.

3. The engineering proposals contained in the applications place the sites for the proposed transmitters approximately six-tenths of a mile apart. Except for the slight difference in coverage which can be attributed to the exact location of the transmitter, both engineering proposals are substantially the same. It was agreed that in the event the engineering studies disclose that either of the proposed stations will serve a larger "white" or "grey" area than the other, both applicants would submit separate engineering exhibits. In the event the engineering studies disclose that neither of the proposed stations will bring primary service to a "white" or "grey" area which will not be served by the other, a single joint exhibit in response to Issue 1 will be adequate. As used herein, the term "white" area refers to an area which does not receive primary service from any standard broadcast station and the term "grey" area refers to an area which receives primary service from but one standard broadcast station.

4. The parties agree that as of the present, the areas within which each applicant proposes to show facts which would warrant its receiving a preference over the other are in the areas of (a) background and experience, (b) integration of ownership and management, (c) past operation of broadcast stations, (d) proposed programming, and (3) management and staffing of the proposed stations.

5. There is a rebuttable presumption that:

a. Each applicant has made sufficient studies and surveys of the community which are reflected in its program proposal and as a result of such studies and surveys, each applicant has reasonable grounds for assuming that he can present the programming as proposed.

b. The studio, transmitter and auxiliary broadcast equipment proposed by each applicant is adequate in every respect.

c. The studio, office and transmitter building facilities proposed by each applicant are adequate in every respect.

6. In the event any party challenges the rebuttable presumptions specified in paragraph 5, such challenge shall be made in exhibit form and exchanged with all parties to the proceeding at the same time the exhibits and affirmative written case relating to the matters specified in paragraph 4 of this order are exchanged. In the absence of a challenge to the presumptions, neither applicant need present any exhibit or affirmative evidence with respect to the several matters referred to in paragraph 5. In the event of a challenge, the party challenged may offer in rebuttal exhibits and oral testimony in support of his application.

7. The following time table has been agreed to:

a. All exhibits to be offered in evidence in support of the affirmative case shall be exchanged with the parties on or before Monday, April 23, 1956.

b. On or before Monday, April 30, 1956, counsel for each applicant will notify counsel of the competing applicant by letter of the identity of the witness or witnesses of the competing applicant he desires to cross-examine or the subject or subjects which he wishes to explore by cross-examination.

c. The hearing for the introduction of evidence and cross-examination of the witnesses identified in b above will begin Monday, May 7, 1956.

It is so ordered, This 28th day of March 1956.

[SEAL] MARY JANE MORRIS,

[File No. 70-3447]

POTOMAC EDISON CO. ET AL.

ORDER GRANTING AND PERMITTING TO BECOME EFFECTIVE APPLICATION-DECLARATION REGARDING ISSUE AND SALE OF COMMON STOCK BY SUBSIDIARIES AND ACQUISITION THEREOF BY PARENT

MARCH 29, 1956.

In the matter of the Potomac Edison Company, Potomac Light and Power Company, South Penn Power Company; File No. 70-3447.

An application-declaration and amendment thereto have been filed with this Commission by The Potomac Edison Company ("Potomac Edison"), a registered holding company and public-utility subsidiary of The West Penn Electric Company, a registered holding company, and Potomac Light and Power Company ("Potomac Light") and South Penn Power Company ("South Penn"), public-utility subsidiaries of Potomac Edison, pursuant to sections 6 (a), 6 (b), 7, 9, 10, and 12 of the Public Utility Holding Company Act of 1935 ("act") and Rule U-43 promulgated thereunder, regarding certain proposed transactions, which are summarized as follows:

Potomac Light and South Penn propose to issue and sell additional shares of their authorized and unissued capital stocks, and Potomac Edison proposes to acquire such shares in each case for a cash consideration equal to the aggregate par or stated value thereof. Potomac Light has presently outstanding 109,000 shares of common stock with a par value of $100 per share and it proposes to issue and sell 14,000 additional shares of such stock to Potomac Edison for a cash consideration of $1,400,000. South Penn has presently outstanding 654,200 shares of no par value capital stock with a stated value of $5 per share and it proposes to issue and sell 50,000 additional shares of such stock to Potomac Edison for a cash consideration of $250,000.

Potomac Edison owns all of the outstanding shares of capital stock of both Potomac Light and South Penn. Such shares are pledged under the Indenture of Potomac Edison dated as of October 1, 1944, as supplemented, securing its First Mortgage and Collateral Trust Bonds. The additional shares proposed to be acquired by Potomac Edison will be issued from time to time as necessary prior to December 31, 1956, and on issuance will be pledged under said Indenture in accordance with the requirements thereof.

Potomac Edison states that it has in its treasury funds in excess of the aggregate purchase price of such shares, and that, accordingly, no financing will be required in connection with such acquisitions.

Potomac Light desires to issue and sell additional shares of its common stock to provide for necessary property additions and improvements, and South Penn desires to issue and sell additional shares of its capital stock for the same purpose and to enable it to repay an open account advance in the amount of $50,000 owing by it to Potomac Edison. Potomac Edison desires to purchase the additional shares to enable the subsidiaries to make such property additions and improvements and to enable South Penn to pay such indebtedness.

The issue and sale of the additional shares of the common stock of Potomac Light, a West Virginia corporation doing business in West Virginia, are not subject to the jurisdiction of any State commission. The issue and sale of the additional shares of the capital stock of South Penn have been expressly authorized by the Pennsylvania Public Utility Commission, the State commission of the State in which South Penn is organized and doing business. The acquisitions by Potomac Edison, a Maryland corporation doing business in Maryland and West Virginia, of the additional shares of stock of its subsidiaries have been authorized by the Public Service Commission of West Virginia. No other State commission, and no Federal commission other than this Commission, has jurisdiction over the proposed transactions.

The application-declaration as amended states that the fees and expenses in connection with the sale and acquisition of the capital stock are as follows:

|---|---|
| Legal fees (estimated): | |
| James McSherry (Maryland counsel) | $100 |
| Edwin D. Strite (Pennsylvania counsel) | 100 |
| Clarence E. Martin, Jr. (West Virginia counsel) | 200 |
| Federal stamp tax | 1,915 |
| Pennsylvania excise tax | 500 |
| Miscellaneous (estimated) | 60 |
| Total | 2,875 |

The foregoing fees and expenses will be allocated as follows: to Potomac Edison $300, to Potomac Light $1,550, and to South Penn $1,025.

Notice of said filing having been duly given in the manner prescribed by Rule U-23 and no hearing having been requested of or ordered by the Commission; and the Commission finding that the applicable provisions of the act and of the rules promulgated thereunder are satisfied, that the fees and expenses set forth above are not unreasonable, and that the application-declaration as amended should be granted and permitted to become effective:

It is ordered, Pursuant to Rule U-23 and the applicable provisions of said act that said application-declaration as amended be, and the same hereby is, granted and permitted to become effective forthwith, subject to the terms and conditions prescribed in Rule U-24.

By the Commission.

Assistant Secretary.

(Sec. 6, 38 Stat. 721; 15 U. S. C. 46. Interpret or apply sec. 5, 38 Stat. 719, as amended; 15 U. S. C. 45) [Cease and desist order, Abel Allan Goodman t. a. Weavers Guild, Hollywood, Calif., Docket 6153, March 14, 1956]

In the Matter of Abel Allan Goodman, an Individual Trading as Weavers Guild

This proceeding was heard by a hearing examiner on the complaint of the Commission—charging an individual, engaged under the name of "Weavers Guild" in the sale and distribution in commerce from his office in Hollywood, California, of a correspondence course designed to prepare students for work as commercial reweavers, with representing falsely in advertising for agents that typical earnings were greater than they actually were and that he would furnish leads and other sales assistance and sales material; with representing falsely through oral statements made by his sales agents to prospective purchasers that his course constituted a complete course in reweaving which was easily and quickly learned and that he arranged for personal instructors to assist students, that prospective earnings were greater than was the fact, and that needles supplied with the course were worth far more than they actually were, that he would refund all monies paid under contracts if persons could not complete the course, and that the courses had been approved for training by the Bureau of Education of California and the United States Veterans Administration; and with representing falsely through use of his trade name "Weavers Guild" that his business was a national association or guild of weavers organized for the benefit of members of that trade—respondent's answer and submission by both parties of proposed findings of facts and conclusions.

Thereafter the hearing examiner made his initial decision, including findings and order to cease and desist, from which both counsel appealed; the Commission rendered its decision denying respondent's appeal and granting in part that of counsel supporting the complaint; and, by its "Final Order" of March 14, 1956, adopted the initial decision, as modified, as the "Decision of the Commission".

The order to cease and desist, as thus modified, is as follows:

It is ordered, That the respondent, Abel Allan Goodman, and his agents, representatives and employees, directly or through any corporate or other device, in connection with the offering for sale, sale and distribution of courses of instruction in reweaving in commerce, as "commerce" is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, do forthwith cease and desist from:

1. Representing, directly or by implication:

a. That the typical earnings of persons selling respondent's course of instruction are greater than they actually are in fact;

b. That respondent will furnish sales leads or other selling assistance to those selling his course of instruction unless he actually does furnish such leads and assistance;

c. That sales kits and other advertising material are furnished to sales agents unless it is clearly disclosed that such articles are furnished only after said agents have made deposits or payment therefor;

d. That respondent's course of instruction constitutes a complete course in reweaving unless and until such is in fact true;

e. That reweaving is easily learned, or quickly learned, by taking respondent's correspondence course, unless such representation be specifically restricted to the overweaving or patch type of reweaving;

f. That respondent will arrange for personal instructions for those purchasing his course;

g. That the potential earnings of persons completing respondent's course and engaging in the reweaving business are greater than they are in fact;

h. That the needles supplied with the course are worth any amount in excess of the amount ordinarily charged for such needles by respondent;

i. That respondent will refund payments made on contracts unless he in fact makes such refunds upon demand by the purchasers;

j. That respondent's courses of instruction have been approved for training by the Bureau of Education of the State of California or the United States Veterans Administration;

2. Using the word "Guild" in his trade name or otherwise;

3. Representing, directly or by implication, that respondent's business is anything other than a private business enterprise selling a correspondence course of instruction in reweaving, unless such representation is true.

By said "Final Order", report of compliance was required as follows:

It is further ordered, That the respondent Abel Allan Goodman shall, within sixty (60) days after service upon him of this order, file with the Commission a report in writing setting forth in detail the manner and form in which he has complied with the order to cease and desist.

By the Commission.

TITLE 50—WILDLIFE

Chapter I—Fish and Wildlife Service, Department of the Interior

PART 102—GENERAL PROVISIONS

REGISTRATION OF BOATS AND GEAR

Basis and purpose: On the basis of continued increases in the movement of the mobile salmon fishing fleet from area to area in Alaska, it has been determined that such movement must be curtailed in the interests of sound conservation. Therefore, effective immediately upon publication in the FEDERAL REGISTER, and in compliance with the notice of intention to adopt amendments issued by the Secretary of the Interior on July 25, 1955 (20 F. R. 5434, July 29, 1955), § 102.8 is amended to read as follows:

§ 102.8 Registration of boats and gear. (a) Each year, 30 days prior to the opening of any fishing season in any regulatory area as defined herein, the units of gear and all boats intended to be used in fishing in such area shall be registered for the regulatory area of proposed operation and for no other. Such registration shall be made with the local representative of the Fish and Wildlife Service. No person shall be permitted to register any gear or boat so as to permit his fishing for salmon, except by trolling, in more than one regulatory area during the calendar year. Such registration shall include the furnishing of information on the size, type, crew, gear, and identity of boats, the name and address of any and all fishermen who will fish with such gear or boat, the fishery (salmon, crab, etc.) in which such gear, boat or fisherman intends to operate. When registration for boats, such plates are furnished for any plates shall be displayed in a prominent place on the port side. No gear or boat which has not been registered as required herein shall be permitted to engage in any fishery.

(b) No gear or boat fishing for salmon, but not including trolling lines and boats fishing with such excepted gear, which has been registered for fishing in a designated regulatory area, may thereafter be used for fishing in any other area, nor may any person or persons other than the person or persons designated in the original registry fish such boat or gear, except that substitutions in crew members or gear operators may be made with the approval of the local representative where such substitutions are made for the purpose of replacing fishermen who become ill or are otherwise removed from the fishery.

(c) Salmon trolling gear and boats and all other gear and boats used in fishing for species other than salmon may change their operations from one regulatory area to another and from such other fishery to salmon fishing, but only after such proposed change has been reported to a local representative of the Fish and Wildlife Service in advance of such change.

(d) Registration of boats and gear shall not be required of any boat engaging solely in the halibut fishery.

(e) Registrations subsequent to the specified time of registration and changes in area of fishing operation may be permitted to avoid unusual hardships and for other good cause provided such registrations and changes are consistent with needs of fishery conservation in the affected area. For the purpose of this section only, the following regulatory areas or combinations of regulatory areas are considered to be single regulatory areas:

(1) Bristol Bay area.

(2) Aleutian Islands-Alaska Peninsula-Chignik areas.

(3) Kodiak area.

(4) Cook Inlet-Resurrection Bay areas.

(5) Prince William Sound-Copper River-Bering River-Yakataga areas.

(6) Yakutat area.

(7) Southeastern Alaska area.

(f) For the 1956 season only, registration for the Copper River area shall not be made less than 15 days prior to the opening of the fishing season.

(Sec. 1, 43 Stat. 464, as amended; 48 U. S. C. 221)

Since immediate action is necessary, notice and public procedure on this amendment are impracticable (60 Stat. 237; 5 U. S. C. 1001 et seq.).

CLARENCE A. DAVIS,
Acting Secretary of the Interior.

EARNED INCOME OF CITIZENS OF UNITED STATES

§ 1.911 Statutory provisions; earned income from sources without the United States.

SEC. 911. Earned income from sources without the United States—(a) General rule. The following items shall not be included in gross income and shall be exempt from taxation under this subtitle:

(1) Bona fide resident of foreign country. In the case of an individual citizen of the United States, who establishes to the satisfaction of the Secretary or his delegate that he has been a bona fide resident of a foreign country or countries for an uninterrupted period which includes an entire taxable year, amounts received from sources without the United States (except amounts paid by the United States or any agency thereof) if such amounts constitute earned income (as defined in subsection (b)) attributable to such period; but such individual shall not be allowed as a deduction from his gross income any deductions (other than those allowed by section 151, relating to personal exemptions) properly allocable to or chargeable against amounts excluded from gross income under this paragraph.

(2) Presence in foreign country for 17 months. In the case of an individual citizen of the United States, who during any period of 18 consecutive months is present in a foreign country or countries during at least 510 full days in such period, amounts received from sources without the United States (except amounts paid by the United States or an agency thereof) if such amounts constitute earned income (as defined in subsection (b)) attributable to such period; but such individual shall not be allowed as a deduction from his gross income any deductions (other than those allowed by section 151, relating to personal exemptions) properly allocable to or chargeable against amounts excluded from gross income under this paragraph. If the 18-month period includes the entire taxable year, the amount excluded under this paragraph for such taxable year shall not exceed $20,000. If the 18-month period does not include the entire taxable year, the amount excluded under this paragraph for such taxable year shall not exceed an amount which bears the same ratio to $20,000 as the number of days in the part of the taxable year within the 18-month period bears to the total number of days in such year.

(b) Definition of earned income. For purposes of this section, the term "earned income" means wages, salaries, or professional fees, and other amounts received as compensation for personal services actually rendered, but does not include that part of the compensation derived by the taxpayer for personal services rendered by him to a corporation which represents a distribution of earnings or profits rather than a reasonable allowance as compensation for the personal services actually rendered. In the case of a taxpayer engaged in a trade or business in which both personal services and capital are material income-producing factors, under regulations prescribed by the Secretary or his delegate, a reasonable allowance as compensation for the personal services rendered by the taxpayer, not in excess of 30 percent of his share of the net profits of such trade or business, shall be considered as earned income.

§ 1.911–1 Earned income from sources without the United States—(a) Bona fide resident of a foreign country—(1) Qualifications for exemption. Amounts constituting earned income as defined in section 911 (b) shall be excluded from the gross income of an individual citizen of the United States who establishes to the satisfaction of the Commissioner that he has been a bona fide resident of a foreign country or countries for an uninterrupted period which includes an entire taxable year, if such amounts are (i) from sources without the United States, (ii) attributable to such uninterrupted period, and (iii) not paid by the United States or any agency or instrumentality thereof. The exemption from tax thus provided is applicable to such amounts as are attributable to that portion of an uninterrupted period of bona fide foreign residence which falls within a taxable year during which the citizen begins or terminates bona fide residence in a foreign country, provided that such period includes at least one entire taxable year. If attributable to an uninterrupted period in respect of which the citizen qualifies for the exemption from tax thus provided, the amounts shall be excluded from gross income irrespective of when they are received.

(2) What constitutes bona fide residence. Though the period of bona fide foreign residence must be continuous and uninterrupted, once bona fide residence in a foreign country or countries has been established, temporary visits to the United States or elsewhere on vacation or business trips will not necessarily deprive the citizen of his status as a bona fide resident of a foreign country. Whether the individual citizen of the United States is a bona fide resident of a foreign country shall be determined by the application, to the extent feasible, of the principles of section 871 and the regulations thereunder, relating to what constitutes residence or nonresidence, as the case may be, in the United States in the case of an alien individual.

(3) Treatment of deductions. In any case in which any amount is excluded from gross income under the provisions of section 911 (a) (1), there shall be disallowed as deductions any expenses, losses or other items otherwise deductible (other than those allowed by section 151, relating to personal exemptions) properly allocable to or chargeable against the amounts so excluded from gross income. For example, traveling and entertainment expenses incurred by A, a citizen of the United States, for the production of earned income in foreign country X, where A had been a bona fide resident for a period of several years, would not be deductible to any extent, since such expenses are directly and entirely allocable to or chargeable against such exempt earned income. However, items which are not properly chargeable against or allocable to excludable earned income are deductible in their entirety (subject to any specific statutory limitations relating to such items). Examples of such items include personal and family medical expenses, real estate taxes on a personal residence, interest on mortgage on personal residence, and charitable contributions.

(4) Earned income and employed assistants. The entire amount received as professional fees may be treated as earned income if the taxpayer is engaged in a professional occupation, such as a doctor or a lawyer, even though he employs assistants to perform part or all of the services, provided the patients or clients are those of the taxpayer and look to the taxpayer as the person responsible for the services performed.

(5) Earned income from business in which capital is material. In the case of a taxpayer engaged in a trade or business (other than in corporate form) in which both personal services and capital are material income-producing factors, a reasonable allowance as compensation for the personal services actually rendered by the taxpayer shall be considered earned income, but the total amount which shall be treated as the earned income of the taxpayer from such a trade or business shall, in no case, exceed 30 percent of his share of the net profits of such trade or business. No general rule can be prescribed defining the trades or businesses in which personal services and capital are material income-producing factors; this question must be determined on all the facts of each individual case.

(6) Source of income and place of receipt. An amount constituting earned income as defined in section 911 (b) which is derived from sources without the United States shall not be included in gross income solely because it is received within the United States, since the place of receipt is immaterial in determining whether any items shall be excluded from gross income under the provisions of section 911 (a). No amounts received for services performed within the United States shall be excluded from gross income by such section. For the allocation or segregation as between sources within, and sources without, the United States in the case of compensation for labor or personal services, see sections 861, 862, 863 and 864 and the regulations thereunder.

(7) Returns. Any return filed before the completion of the period necessary to qualify a citizen for the exemption under section 911 (a) (1) shall be filed without regard to the exemption provided by that section, but claim for credit or refund of any overpayment of tax may be filed if the taxpayer subsequently qualifies for the exemption under section 911 (a) (1). A taxpayer desiring an extension of time (in addition to that granted by section 6081) for filing the return until after the completion of the qualifying period under section 911 (a) (1) shall make application therefor with the district director, setting forth the facts relied upon to justify the extension of time requested and including a statement as to the earliest date he expects to be in a position to determine whether he will be entitled to the exclusion provided by section 911 (a) (1). An extension of time may be granted for more than 6 months in the case of taxpayers who are abroad. For extensions of time for filing returns, see section 6081 and the regulations thereunder.

(8) Declaration of estimated tax. In estimating his gross income for the purpose of making a declaration of estimated tax for any taxable year, a citizen of the United States is not required to take into account income which it is reasonable to believe will be excluded from gross income under the provisions of section 911 (a) (1) and the regulations thereunder.

(9) Definition of "foreign country". The term "foreign country" means territory under the sovereignty of a government other than that of the United States. It does not include a possession or territory of the United States.

(b) Presence in a foreign country— (1) Qualifications for exemption. Subject to the limitations in subparagraph (2), amounts constituting earned income as defined in section 911 (b) shall be excluded from gross income in the case of an individual citizen of the United States who during any period of 18 consecutive months is present in a foreign country or countries during a total of at least 510 full days, if such amounts are (i) from sources without the United States, (ii) attributable to such period and (iii) not paid by the United States or any agency or instrumentality thereof. For purposes of determining the right to the exclusion under section 911 (a) (2) for a taxable year to which the Internal Revenue Code of 1954 is applicable, the period of presence in a foreign country may include a period prior to the beginning of such taxable year, even though the tax for such prior period is computed under the Internal Revenue Code of 1939. For example, the qualifying period may, in the case of a taxpayer who makes his return on the calendar year basis, cover the period from July 1, 1953, to December 31, 1954, for purposes of the exclusion allowed under section 911 (a) (2) for the taxable year 1954.

(2) Amount of exemption. (i) The amount excluded from gross income under the provisions of section 911 (a) (2) shall not exceed $20,000 if the 18-month period includes the entire taxable year. If the 18-month period does not include the entire taxable year, the amount excluded from gross income under such section for such taxable year shall not exceed an amount which bears the same ratio to $20,000 as the number of days in the part of the taxable year within the 18-month period bears to the total number of days in such year.

(ii) The application of subdivision (i) of this subparagraph may be illustrated by the following example:

Example. A, a citizen of the United States who files his returns for the calendar year using a cash receipts and disbursements method, was privately employed and physically present in France from January 1, 1953, through July 15, 1955. On December 31, 1953, he received compensation in the amount of $20,000 for the services rendered by him during 1953. He left France on July 16, 1955, and returned to the United States. On August 1, 1955, he received $30,000, part of which was for the services rendered by him during 1954 and the balance of which was for his services rendered during the period January 1, 1955, through July 15, 1955. On January 15, 1956, A received an additional $10,000 for the services rendered by him during 1954. Since the $20,000 compensation received by A on December 31, 1953, was attributable to an 18-month period during at least 510 full days of which he was present in a foreign country, and since that 18-month period included his entire taxable year 1953, the entire $20,000 is exempt from taxation. Only $12,712.33 $\left(\frac{232}{365}\times$20{,}000\right)$ of the $30,000 he received on August 1, 1955, is exempt from taxation since only a portion of his taxable year 1955 is included within such an 18-month period. None of the $10,000 received by him in 1956 is exempt from taxation because no part of his taxable year 1956 is included within such an 18-month period. The formula for such computations may be stated as follows:

$$\frac{\text{Number of days in that part of the taxable year falling within the 18-month period}}{\text{Number of days in the taxable year}}\times$20{,}000$$

For the definition of "taxable year" see section 7701 (a) (23).

(3) Returns. Any return filed before the completion of the period necessary to qualify a citizen for the exemption under section 911 (a) (2) shall be filed without regard to the exemption provided by that section, but claim for credit or refund of any overpayment of tax may be filed if the taxpayer subsequently qualifies for the exemption under section 911 (a) (2). A taxpayer desiring an extension of time (in addition to that granted by section 6081 and the regulations thereunder) for filing the return until after the completion of the qualifying period under section 911 (a) (2) shall make application therefor with the district director, setting forth the facts relied upon to justify the extension of time requested and including a statement as to the earliest date he expects to be in a position to determine whether he will be entitled to the exclusion provided by section 911 (a) (2). An extension of time may be granted for more than 6 months in the case of taxpayers who are abroad. For extensions of time for filing returns, see section 6081 and the regulations thereunder.

(4) Declaration of estimated tax. In estimating his gross income for the purpose of making a declaration of estimated tax for any taxable year, a citizen of the United States is not required to take into account income which it is reasonable to believe will be excluded from gross income under the provisions of section 911 (a) (2) and the regulations thereunder.

(5) Earned income, source of income, and place of receipt. The provisions of paragraph (a) of this section respecting the definition of earned income, the source of income, and the immateriality of the place of receipt of amounts constituting earned income are equally effective in the application of this paragraph.

(6) Treatment of deductions. In any case in which any amount is excluded from gross income under section 911 (a) (2), there shall be disallowed as deductions any expenses, losses, or other items otherwise deductible (other than those allowed by section 151 relating to personal exemptions), properly allocable to or chargeable against the amount so excluded from gross income. If the earned income excludable under section 911 (a) (2) (determined without regard to the $20,000 limitation) exceeds the earned income excludable under section 911 (a) (2), the amount disallowed as a deduction shall be limited to an amount which bears the same ratio to the total of such items properly allocable to or chargeable against such earned income so excludable (determined without regard to the $20,000 limitation) as the amount excluded from gross income under section 911 (a) (2) bears to such earned income (determined without regard to the $20,000 limitation). However, deductions which are not properly allocable to or chargeable against earned income excluded under section 911 (a) (2) are deductible in their entirety (subject to specific statutory limitations relating to such items). For examples of deductions which must be allowed or disallowed under this paragraph see paragraph (a) (3) of this section.

(7) Definition of "foreign country." The term "foreign country" means territory under the sovereignty of a government other than that of the United States and includes the air space over such territory. It does not include a possession or territory of the United States.

(8) Determination of 18-month period. The exclusion provided by section 911 (a) (2) applies to income attributable to any period of 18 consecutive months during which the citizen satisfies the 510 full-day requirement, even though such period constitutes a part of a longer period of presence in a foreign country or countries. For this purpose, the term "18 consecutive months" means any period of such duration, that is, any period commencing with the beginning of any day of a calendar month and terminating (i) with the close of the day which precedes that day in the eighteenth succeeding calendar month numerically corresponding to the day of the period's beginning, or, if there is no such corresponding day, (ii) with the close of the last day of such eighteenth succeeding month. Such period need not necessarily commence with the day of arrival in a foreign country, nor terminate with the day of departure therefrom. In no event will the 510 full-day requirement be prorated over a period of less than 18 consecutive months.

(9) Examples of 18-month periods. Thus, a citizen who arrives in a foreign country on January 1, 1953, makes several return trips to the United States, and then finally departs from the foreign country on February 14, 1955, may not be present in such country for 510 full days during the 18-month period commencing with January 1, 1953, and ending with the close of June 30, 1954, because of his visits to the United States during such period, but may satisfy the 510 full-day requirement during the 18-month period commencing with February 15, 1953, and ending with the close of August 14, 1954. In such event, the exclusion will apply to income attributable to the latter period, but not to income attributable to the period commencing with January 1, 1953, and ending with the close of February 14, 1953. For such purpose, it is assumed that no part of the period ending with the close of February 14, 1953, is included in any 18-month period during which the 510 full-day requirement is satisfied. Furthermore, the mere fact that the 510 full-day requirement has been satisfied with respect to the period ending with the close of August 14, 1954, does not mean that income earned thereafter will be excluded under section 911 (a) (2) unless such income is attributable to another 18-month period during which there is compliance with the 510 full-day requirement. Thus, the 510 full-day requirement cannot be prorated over the 6-month period commencing with August 15, 1954, and ending with the close of February 14, 1955, in order to determine whether the exclusion allowed by section 911 (a) (2) applies to income attributable to such 6-month period. Therefore, assuming that the citizen is present in the foreign country 170 full days (⅓ of 510 full days) during such 6-month period (⅓ of 18 consecutive months), the exclusion will not be applicable to income attributable to any part of such 6-month period if no part thereof is included in any 18-month period during which the 510 full-day requirement is satisfied.

(10) Definition of "full day." The term "full day" means, not any 24-consecutive-hour period, but a continuous period of twenty-four hours commencing from midnight and ending with the following midnight. In computing the minimum of 510 full days of presence in a foreign country or countries, all separate periods of such presence during the period of 18 consecutive months are to be aggregated. For the purpose of section 911 (a) (2), if an individual travels from one place in a foreign country to another place in the same country, or to a place in another foreign country, and of such travel extends over a period of less than 24 hours and does not involve travel within the United States or any possession thereof, such individual shall not be deemed outside a foreign country during the period of such travel. The 510 full days need not be consecutive, but may be interrupted by periods during which the citizen is not present in a foreign country. Time spent in a foreign country in the employment of the United States Government will count toward satisfaction of the 510 full-day requirement, even though amounts paid by such Government are not exempt from tax under section 911 (a) (2).

(11) Illustrations of application of the 510-day rule. The application of the 510-day rule may be illustrated by the following examples:

Example (1). On February 1, 1954, B, a citizen of the United States privately employed, arrived in Puerto Rico on a business assignment. Upon completion of the assignment he departed for a new assignment in Venezuela, arriving there on April 24, 1954. He remained in Venezuela until 2 p. m. on October 25, 1955, at which time he departed for another assignment in Puerto Rico. On January 10, 1956, he left Puerto Rico for a new assignment in the United States. During the 18-month period commencing with April 25, 1954, and ending with the close of October 24, 1955, the taxpayer was in a foreign country at least 510 full days; in addition, during the 18-month period commencing with June 2, 1954, and ending with the close of December 1, 1955, he was in a foreign country an aggregate of 510 full days.

Example (2). At 2 p. m. on January 18, 1953, C, a citizen of the United States privately employed, arrived in England on a business trip from the United States. On May 20, 1953, at 10 p. m. he departed from England by steamer and arrived in the United States on May 25, 1953. After spending a period therein on official business, he left the United States by steamer on June 9, 1953, and arrived in France at 3 p. m., June 14, 1953. At 8 a. m. on February 3, 1954, he departed from France by airplane for a brief visit to Puerto Rico, arriving there on February 4, 1954, and thence went to England, arriving there at 1 a. m. on February 12, 1954, where he remained until midnight, July 18, 1954, at which time the 510 full-day requirement was satisfied in respect of the period of 18 consecutive months which began with January 19, 1953. C continued his presence in England, not leaving that country until 5 a. m. on November 18, 1954, at which time he departed for the United States. During the 18-month period commencing with January 19, 1953, and ending with the close of July 18, 1954, the taxpayer was in a foreign country or countries an aggregate of 510 full days; in addition, during the 18-month period commencing with June 16, 1953, and ending with the close of December 15, 1954, he was in a foreign country or countries an aggregate of 510 full days. The computation with respect to each period may be illustrated as follows:

| | Full days in foreign country |
| First 18-month period (Jan. 19, 1953 through July 18, 1954): | |

Example (3). On March 6, 1953, at 3 p. m., D, a citizen privately employed, arrived in Cuba, where he remained until 9 p. m., June 25, 1953, at which time he departed from Cuba for a short business trip to Puerto Rico. Upon completion of his negotiations, he departed for Mexico, arriving there at 2 p. m. on July 24, 1953, where he remained until 10 a. m., August 22, 1954, at which time he departed from such country for a vacation in the United States. He arrived again in Mexico at 9 a. m. on September 5, 1954, where he remained until 8 a. m., January 1, 1955, at which time he departed from such country for a new assignment in the United States. During the 18-month period commencing with March 7, 1953, and ending with the close of September 6, 1954, the taxpayer was in a foreign country or countries an aggregate of 504 full days; during the 18-month period commencing with July 1, 1953, and ending with the close of December 31, 1954, he was in a foreign country an aggregate of 510 full days. § 1.912 Statutory provisions; exemption for certain allowances.

SEC. 912. Exemption for certain allowances. The following items shall not be included in gross income, and shall be exempt from taxation under this subtitle:

(1) Cost-of-living allowances. In the case of civilian officers or employees of the Government of the United States stationed outside continental United States, amounts received as cost-of-living allowances in accordance with regulations approved by the President.

(2) Foreign service allowances. In the case of an officer or employee of the Foreign Service of the United States, amounts received by such officer or employee as allowances or otherwise under the terms of title IX of the Foreign Service Act of 1946 (22 U. S. C. 1131–1158).

§ 1.912–1 Exclusion of certain cost-of-living allowances. (a) Amounts received by Government civilian personnel stationed outside the continental United States as cost-of-living allowances in accordance with regulations approved by the President are, by the provisions of section 912 (1), excluded from gross income. Such allowances shall be considered as retaining their characteristics under section 912 (1) notwithstanding any combination thereof with any other allowance. For example, the cost-of-living portion of a "living and quarters allowance," would be excluded from gross income whether or not any other portion of such allowance is excluded from gross income.

(b) For the purposes of section 912 (1) the term "continental United States" includes only the States of the Union and the District of Columbia.

§ 1.912–2 Exclusion of certain allowances of Foreign Service personnel. Amounts received by personnel of the Foreign Service of the United States as allowances or otherwise under the terms of title IX of the Foreign Service Act of 1946 (22 U. S. C. 1131–1158) are, by the provisions of section 912 (2), excluded from gross income.

WESTERN HEMISPHERE TRADE CORPORATIONS

§ 1.921 Statutory provisions; definition of Western Hemisphere trade corporation.

SEC. 921. Definitions of Western Hemisphere trade corporations. For purposes of this subtitle, the term "Western Hemisphere trade corporation" means a domestic corporation all of whose business (other than incidental purchases) is done in any country or countries in North, Central, or South America, or in the West Indies, and which satisfies the following conditions:

(1) If 95 percent or more of the gross income of such domestic corporation for the 3-year period immediately preceding the close of the taxable year (or for such part of such period during which the corporation was in existence) was derived from sources without the United States; and

(2) If 90 percent or more of its gross income for such period or such part thereof was derived from the active conduct of a trade or business.

For any taxable year beginning prior to January 1, 1954, the determination as to whether any corporation meets the requirements of section 109 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1939 shall be made as if this section had not been enacted and without inferences drawn from the fact that this section is not expressly made applicable with respect to taxable years beginning prior to January 1, 1954.

§ 1.921–1 Definition of Western Hemisphere trade corporations. (a) The term "Western Hemisphere trade corporation", for the purposes of Subtitle A, means a domestic corporation which meets the following tests:

(1) Its entire business (other than incidental purchases) must be carried on within the geographical limits of North, Central, or South America, or in the West Indies. As used in section 921, the term "incidental purchases" does not include all purchases incident to the conduct of the business; it means only such purchases as are occasional and relatively minor. Whether purchases made outside the geographical limits of North, Central, or South America, or the West Indies, constitute incidental purchases, for the purposes of section 921, shall be determined on the basis of all the facts of each particular case. Some of the significant factors in making such a determination are the ratio of purchases made outside of such geographical limits to total purchases for the taxable year, the frequency of such purchases, and the relationship of such purchases to the conduct of the corporation's business.

(2) 95 percent or more of its gross income for the 3-year period immediately preceding the close of the taxable year (or for such part of such period during which the corporation was in existence) must be derived from sources without the United States; and

(3) 90 percent or more of its gross income for such period or such part thereof must be derived from the active conduct of a trade or business.

Dividends received by the corporation do not represent income derived from the active conduct of a trade or business. A domestic corporation is not excluded from the definition merely because, incident to the conduct of its trade or business, it retains title in goods to insure payment for such goods shipped to a country outside the geographical areas enumerated in section 921.

(b) A corporation which claims to qualify as a Western Hemisphere trade corporation shall attach to its income tax return a statement showing: (1) That its entire business is done within the geographical limits of North, Central, or South America, or in the West Indies and, if any purchases are made outside such geographical limits, the amount, number and type of such purchases, and any other pertinent information, and (2) for the 3-year period immediately preceding the close of the taxable year (or for such part thereof during which the corporation was in existence, (i) its total gross income from all sources, (ii) the amount thereof derived from the active conduct of a trade or business, (iii) a description of such trade or business and the facts upon which the corporation relies to establish that such trade or business was actively conducted by it, and (iv) the amount of its gross income, if any, from sources within the United States. The gross income from sources within the United States and without the United States shall be determined as provided in sections 861, 862, 863 and 864 and the regulations thereunder.

§ 1.922 Statutory provisions; special deduction.

SEC. 922. Special deduction. In the case of a Western Hemisphere trade corporation there shall be allowed as a deduction in computing taxable income an amount computed as follows—

(1) First determine the taxable income of such corporation computed without regard to this section.

(2) Then multiply the amount determined under paragraph (1) by the fraction—

(A) The numerator of which is 14 percent, and

(B) The denominator of which is that percentage which equals the sum of the normal tax rate and the surtax rate for the taxable year prescribed by section 11.

§ 1.922–1 (a) Special deduction of Western Hemisphere trade corporation. A special deduction in computing taxable income in the case of a Western Hemisphere trade corporation (as defined in section 921), is allowed in section 922. The fraction specified in section 922 (2) is the same whether the amount of the corporation's taxable income is sufficient to subject it to the combined normal tax and surtax, or only to the normal tax. For the rules applicable in determining the special deduction where the alternative tax under section 1201 is imposed, see the regulations under section 1201.

(b) Examples. The computation of the special deduction may be illustrated by the following examples:

Example (1). A corporation which qualifies as a Western Hemisphere trade corporation realized gross income of $100,000 for the calendar year 1954 and had allowable deductions (other than the special deduction allowed by section 922) for that year in the amount of $40,000. The corporation normal tax rate and the surtax rate for the calendar year 1954 are 30 percent and 22 percent, respectively. The corporation's special deduction under section 922 is $16,153.84, computed as follows:

(i) Compute the taxable income by subtracting allowable deductions of $40,000 from gross income of $100,000, with a result of $60,000.

(ii) The sum of the corporation normal tax rate and surtax rate for the calendar year 1954 is 52 percent (30 percent plus 22 percent). The fraction specified in section 922 (2), accordingly, is $14/52$.

(iii) The amount of taxable income (subdivision (i)), $60,000, multiplied by the fraction determined under subdivision (ii), $14/52$, is $16,153.84 ($14/52$ times $60,000).

Example (2). Assume that the facts are the same as in example (1) except that the allowable deductions (other than the special deductions allowed by section 922) are $80,000. The corporation's special deduction under section 922 is $5,384.61, computed as follows:

(i) Compute the taxable income by subtracting allowable deductions of $80,000 from gross income of $100,000, with a result of $20,000.

(ii) The sum of the corporation normal tax rate and surtax rate for the calendar year 1954 is 52 percent (30 percent plus 22 percent). The fraction specified in section 922 (2), accordingly, is $14/52$, regardless of the fact that the taxable income of the corporation in the amount of $20,000 makes it subject only to the corporation normal tax.

(iii) The amount of taxable income (subdivision (i)), $20,000, multiplied by the fraction determined under subdivision (ii), $14/52$, is $5,384.61 ($14/52$ times $20,000).

POSSESSIONS OF THE UNITED STATES

§ 1.931 Statutory provisions; income from sources within possessions of the United States.

SEC. 931. Income from sources within possessions of the United States—(a) General rule. In the case of citizens of the United States or domestic corporations, gross income means only gross income from sources within the United States if the conditions of both paragraph (1) and paragraph (2) are satisfied:

(1) Three-year period. If 80 percent or more of the gross income of such citizen or domestic corporation (computed without the benefit of this section) for the 3-year period immediately preceding the close of the taxable year (or for such part of such period immediately preceding the close of such taxable year as may be applicable) was derived from sources within a possession of the United States; and

(2) Trade or business. If—

(A) In the case of such corporation, 50 percent or more of its gross income (computed without the benefit of this section) for such period or such part thereof was derived from the active conduct of a trade or business within a possession of the United States; or

(B) In the case of such citizen, 50 percent or more of his gross income (computed without the benefit of this section) for such period or such part thereof was derived from the active conduct of a trade or business within a possession of the United States either on his own account or as an employee or agent of another.

(b) Amounts received in United States. Notwithstanding subsection (a), there shall be included in gross income all amounts received by such citizens or corporations within the United States, whether derived from sources within or without the United States.

(c) Definition. For purposes of this section, the term "possession of the United States" does not include the Virgin Islands of the United States, and such term when used with respect to citizens of the United States does not include Puerto Rico.

(d) Deductions. (1) Citizens of the United States entitled to the benefits of this section shall have the same deductions as are allowed by section 873 in the case of a nonresident alien individual engaged in trade or business within the United States.

(2) Domestic corporations entitled to the benefits of this section shall have the same deductions as are allowed by section 882 (c) in the case of a foreign corporation engaged in trade or business within the United States.

(e) Deduction for personal exemption. A citizen of the United States entitled to the benefits of this section shall be allowed a deduction for only one exemption under section 151.

(f) Allowance of deductions and credits. Persons entitled to the benefits of this section shall receive the benefit of the deductions and credits allowed to them in this subtitle only by filing or causing to be filed with the Secretary or his delegate a true and accurate return of their total income received from all sources in the United States, in the manner prescribed in subtitle F, including therein all the information which the Secretary or his delegate may deem necessary for the calculation of such deductions and credits.

(g) Foreign tax credit. Persons entitled to the benefits of this section shall not be allowed the credits against the tax for taxes of foreign countries and possessions of the United States allowed by section 901.

(h) Internees. In the case of a citizen of the United States interned by the enemy while serving as an employee within a possession of the United States—

(1) If such citizen was confined in any place not within a possession of the United States, such place of confinement shall, for purposes of this section, be considered as within a possession of the United States; and

(2) Subsection (b) shall not apply to any compensation received within the United States by such citizen attributable to the period of time during which such citizen was interned by the enemy.

(i) Employees of the United States. For purposes of this section, amounts paid for services performed by a citizen of the United States as an employee of the United States or any agency thereof shall be deemed to be derived from sources within the United States.

§ 1.931–1 Citizens of the United States and domestic corporations deriving income from sources within a certain possession of the United States—(a) Definitions. (1) As used in sections 931 and 932 and the regulations thereunder, the term "possession of the United States" includes the Panama Canal Zone, Guam, American Samoa, Wake and the Midway Islands, and Puerto Rico when used with respect to domestic corporations. The term does not include the Virgin Islands, nor does it include Puerto Rico when used with respect to citizens of the United States.

(2) As used in section 931 and the regulations thereunder the term "United States" includes only the States, the Territories of Alaska and Hawaii, and the District of Columbia.

(b) General rule—(1) Qualifications. In the case of a citizen of the United States or a domestic corporation satisfying the following conditions, gross income means only gross income from sources within the United States—

(i) If 80 percent or more of the gross income of such citizen or domestic corporation (computed without the benefit of section 931) for the 3-year period immediately preceding the close of the taxable year (or for such part of such period immediately preceding the close of such taxable year as may be applicable) was derived from sources within a possession of the United States, and

(ii) If 50 percent or more of the gross income of such citizen or domestic corporation (computed without the benefit of section 931) for such period or such part thereof was derived from the active conduct of a trade or business within a possession of the United States.

In the case of a citizen, the trade or business may be conducted on his own account or as an employee or agent of another. The salary or other compensation paid by the United States to the members of its civil, military, or naval personnel for services rendered within a possession of the United States represents income derived from the active conduct of a trade or business within a possession of the United States. The salary or other compensation paid for services performed by a citizen of the United States as an employee of the United States or any agency thereof shall, for the purposes of section 931 and this section, be deemed to be derived from sources within the United States. Dividends received by a citizen from a corporation whose income was derived from the active conduct of a business within a possession of the United States, does not represent income derived from the active conduct of a trade or business within the possession of the United States even though such citizen was actively engaged in the management of such corporation. For a determination of income from sources within the United States, see sections 861, 862, 863, 864, and 931 (i).

(2) Relationship of sections 931 and 911. A citizen of the United States who cannot meet the 80-percent and the 50-percent requirements of section 931 but who receives earned income from sources within a possession of the United States, is not deprived of the benefits of the provisions of section 911 (relating to the exemption of earned income from sources outside the United States), provided he meets the requirements thereof. In such a case none of the provisions of section 931 is applicable in determining the citizen's tax liability. For what constitutes earned income, see section 911 (b).

(3) Meaning of "gross income" on joint return. In the case of a husband and wife making a joint return, the term "gross income," as used in this section means the combined gross income of the spouses.

(4) Returns. A citizen entitled to the benefits of section 931 is required to file with his individual return Form 1040 the schedule on Form 1040E. If a citizen entitled to the benefits of section 931 has no income from sources within the United States and does not receive within the United States any income derived from sources without the United States he is not required to file a return or the schedule on Form 1040E.

(5) Illustration of the operation of section 931. This section may be illustrated by the following example:

Example. On July 1, 1954, A, who is a citizen of the United States, went to a possession of the United States and established a business there which he actively conducted during the remainder of that year. His gross income from the business during such period was $20,000. In addition, he made a profit of $12,000 from the sale during the latter part of 1954 of some real estate located in such possession and not connected with his trade or business. In the first six months of 1954 he also derived $8,000 gross income from rental property located in the United States. He derived a like amount of gross income from such property during the last six months of 1954. On these facts, A may exclude the $32,000 derived from sources within the possession of the United States, since he qualified under section 931 with respect to that amount. The period of July 1, 1954, through December 31, 1954, constitutes the applicable part of the 3-year period immediately preceding the close of the taxable year (the calendar year 1954), and for that period, 80 percent of A's gross income was derived from sources within a possession of the United States ($32,000, or 80 percent of $40,000) and 50 percent or more of A's gross income was derived from the active conduct of a trade or business within a possession of the United States ($20,000, or 50 percent of $40,000). A is required to report on his return for 1954 only the gross income derived by him from sources within the United States ($16,000 from the rental property located in the United States).

(c) Amounts received in United States. Notwithstanding the provisions of section 931 (a), there shall be included in the gross income of citizens and domestic corporations therein specified all amounts, whether derived from sources within or without the United States, which are received by such citizens or corporations within the United States. From the amounts so included in gross income there shall be deducted only the expenses properly apportioned or allocated thereto. For instance, if in the example set forth in paragraph (b) (5), of this section the taxpayer during the latter part of 1954 returned to the United States for a few weeks and while there received the proceeds resulting from the sale of the real estate located in the possession, the profits derived from such transaction should be reported in gross income. Such receipt in the United States, however, would not deprive the taxpayer of the benefits of section 931 with respect to other items of gross income excluded by that section.

(d) Deductions—(1) Individuals. In the case of a citizen entitled to the benefits of section 931, the deductions allowed in computing taxable income, except the standard deduction and a deduction for one personal exemption (see sections 142 (b) (2) and 931 (e), respectively), are allowed only if and to the extent that they are connected with income from sources within the United States. The provisions of section 873 and the regulations thereunder, relating to the allowance to nonresident alien individuals, who at any time within the taxable year were engaged in trade or business within the United States, of the deductions provided in section 165 (c) (2) and (3) for losses not connected with the trade or business, are applicable in the case of citizens entitled to the benefits of section 931. The provisions of section 873 (c) and the regulations thereunder pertaining to the allowance to such nonresident alien individuals of deductions for contributions provided in sectoin 170 are also applied in the case of such citizens.

(2) Corporations. Corporations entitled to the benefits of section 931 are allowed the same deductions from their gross income arising from sources within the United States as are allowed to domestic corporations to the extent that such deductions are connected with such gross income, except that the so-called charitable contribution deduction provided by section 170 to corporations is allowed whether or not connected with income from sources within the United States. The proper apportionment and allocation of the deductions with respect to sources within and without the United States shall be determined as provided in sections 861, 862, 863 and 864.

(e) Deduction for personal exemption. A citizen of the United States entitled to the benefits of section 931 is allowed a deduction for only one exemption under section 151.

(f) Allowance of deductions and credits. Unless a citizen of the United States or a domestic corporation entitled to the benefits of section 931 shall file or cause to be filed with the district director a true and accurate return of total income from all sources within the United States, in the manner prescribed in subtitle F of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954, the tax shall be collected on the basis of the gross income (not the taxable income) from sources within the United States. If such citizen or corporation fails to file a necessary income tax return, the Commissioner will cause a return to be made, including therein all income from sources within the United States and allowing no deductions or credits (except credit for tax withheld at source).

(g) Foreign tax credit. Persons entitled to the benefits of section 931 are not allowed the credits provided for in section 901 (relating to credits for taxes of foreign countries and possessions).

(h) Internees. If a citizen of the United States—

(1) Was interned by the enemy while serving as an employee within a possession of the United States; and

(2) Was confined in any place not within a possession of the United States, then

(i) Such place of confinement shall be considered as within a possession of the United States for the purposes of section 931; and

(ii) Section 931 (b) shall not apply to any compensation received within the United States by such citizen attributable to the period of time during which such citizen was interned by the enemy.

(i) Employees of the United States. For the purposes of section 931, amounts paid for services performed by a citizen of the United States as an employee of the United States or any agency thereof shall be deemed to be derived from sources within the United States.

§ 1.932 Statutory provisions; taxation of citizens of possessions of the United States.

SEC. 932. Citizens of possessions of the United States—(a) General rule. Any individual who is a citizen of any possession of the United States (but not otherwise a citizen of the United States) and who is not a resident of the United States shall be subject to taxation under this subtitle only as to income derived from sources within the United States, and in such case the tax shall be computed and paid in the same manner and subject to the same conditions as in the case of other persons who are taxable only as to income derived from such sources. This section shall have no application in the case of a citizen of Puerto Rico.

(b) Virgin Islands. Nothing in this section shall be construed to alter or amend the Act entitled "An Act making appropriations for the naval service for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1922, and for other purposes", approved July 12, 1921 (48 U. S. C. 1397), relating to the imposition of income taxes in the Virgin Islands of the United States.

(c) Guam. For applicability of United States income tax laws in Guam, see section 31 of the Act of August 1, 1950 (48 U. S. C. 1421i); for disposition of the proceeds of such taxes, see section 30 of such Act (48 U. S. C. 1421h).

§ 1.932–1 Status of citizens of United States possessions—(a) General rule—(1) Definition and treatment. A citizen of a possession of the United States (except the Virgin Islands or Puerto Rico), who is not otherwise a citizen or resident of the United States, including only the States, the Territories of Alaska and Hawaii, and the District of Columbia, is treated for the purpose of the tax as if he were a nonresident alien individual. See sections 871 to 877, inclusive. For Federal income tax purposes, a citizen of a possession of the United States who is not otherwise a citizen of the United States is a citizen of a possession of the United States who has not become a citizen of the United States by naturalization. The fixed or determinable annual or periodical income from sources within the United States of a citizen of a possession of the United States who is treated as if he were a nonresident alien individual is subject to withholding. See section 1441.

(2) Classification of citizens of United States possessions. For the purpose of this section citizens of the possessions of the United States who are not otherwise citizens of the United States are divided into two classes: (i) Citizens of possessions of the United States who at any time within the taxable year are not engaged in trade or business within the United States, and (ii) citizens of possessions of the United States who at any time within the taxable year are engaged in trade or business within the United States. The provisions of sections 871 to 877, inclusive, and the regulations thereunder, applicable to nonresident alien individuals not engaged in trade or business within the United States are applicable to the citizens of possessions falling within the first class, while the provisions of such sections applicable to nonresident alien individuals who at any time within the taxable year are engaged in trade or business within the United States are applicable to citizens of possessions falling within the second class.

(b) No application to citizen of Puerto Rico. The provisions of section 932 (a) and this section shall have no application in the case of a citizen of Puerto Rico.

SEC. 933. Income from sources within Puerto Rico. The following items shall not be included in gross income and shall be exempt from taxation under this subtitle:

(1) Resident of Puerto Rico for entire taxable year. In the case of an individual who is a bona fide resident of Puerto Rico during the entire taxable year, income derived from sources within Puerto Rico (except amounts received for services performed as an employee of the United States or any agency thereof); but such individual shall not be allowed as a deduction from his gross income any deductions (other than the deduction under section 151, relating to personal exemptions) properly allocable to or chargeable against amounts excluded from gross income under this paragraph.

(2) Taxable year of change of residence from Puerto Rico. In the case of an individual citizen of the United States who has been a bona fide resident of Puerto Rico for a period of at least 2 years before the date on which he changes his residence from Puerto Rico, income derived from sources therein (except amounts received for services performed as an employee of the United States or any agency thereof) which is attributable to that part of such period of Puerto Rican residence before such date; but such individual shall not be allowed as a deduction from his gross income any deductions (other than the deduction for personal exemptions under section 151) properly allocable to or chargeable against amounts excluded from gross income under this paragraph.

§ 1.933–1 Exclusion of certain income from sources within Puerto Rico—(a) General rule. An individual (whether a United States citizen or an alien), who is a bona fide resident of Puerto Rico during the entire taxable year, shall exclude from his gross income the income derived from sources within Puerto Rico, except amounts received for services performed as an employee of the United States or any agency thereof. Whether the individual is a bona fide resident of Puerto Rico shall be determined in general by applying to the facts and circumstances in each case the principles of §§ 1.871–2, 1.871–3, 1.871–4, and 1.871–5, relating to what constitutes residence or nonresidence, as the case may be, in the United States in the case of an alien individual. Once bona fide residence in Puerto Rico has been established, temporary absence therefrom in the United States or elsewhere on vacation or business trips will not necessarily deprive an individual of his status as a bona fide resident of Puerto Rico. An individual taking up residence in Puerto Rico during the course of the taxable year is not entitled for such year to the exclusion provided in section 933.

(b) Taxable year of change of residence from Puerto Rico. A citizen of the United States who changes his residence from Puerto Rico after having been a bona fide resident thereof for a period of at least two years immediately preceding the date of such change in residence shall exclude from his gross income the income derived from sources within Puerto Rico which is attributable to that part of such period of Puerto Rican residence which preceded the date of such change in residence, except amounts received for services performed as an employee of the United States or any agency thereof.

(c) Deductions. In any case in which any amount otherwise constituting gross income is excluded from gross income under the provisions of section 933, there shall not be allowed as a deduction from gross income any items of expenses or losses or other deductions (except the deduction under section 151, relating to personal exemptions) properly allocable to, or chargeable against, the amounts so excluded from gross income.

CHINA TRADE ACT CORPORATIONS

§ 1.941 Statutory provisions; special deduction for China Trade Act corporations.

SEC. 941. Special deduction for China Trade Act corporations—(a) Allowance of deduction. For purposes only of the taxes imposed by section 11, there shall be allowed, in the case of a corporation organized under the China Trade Act, 1922 (15 U. S. C. ch. 4, sec. 141 and following), in addition to the deductions from taxable income otherwise allowed such corporation, a special deduction, in computing the taxable income, of an amount equal to the proportion of the taxable income derived from sources within Formosa and Hong Kong (determined without regard to this section and determined in a similar manner to that provided in part I) which the par value of the shares of stock of the corporation owned on the last day of the taxable year by—

(1) Persons resident in Formosa, Hong Kong, the United States, or possessions of the United States, and

(2) Individual citizens of the United States wherever resident, bears to the par value of the whole number of shares of stock of the corporation outstanding on such date. In no case shall the diminution, by reason of such special deduction, of the taxes imposed by section 11 (computed without regard to this section) exceed the amount of the special dividend certified under subsection (b) of this section.

(b) Special dividend. The special deduction provided in subsection (a) shall not be allowed unless the Secretary of Commerce has certified to the Secretary of the Treasury or his delegate—

(1) The amount which, during the year ending on the date fixed by law for filing the return, the corporation has distributed as a special dividend to or for the benefit of such persons as on the last day of the taxable year were resident in Formosa, Hong Kong, the United States, or possessions of the United States, or were individual citizens of the United States, and owned shares of stock of the corporation;

(2) That such special dividend was in addition to all other amounts, payable or to be payable to such persons or for their benefit, by reason of their interest in the corporation; and

(3) That such distribution has been made to or for the benefit of such persons in proportion to the par value of the shares of stock of the corporation owned by each; except that if the corporation has more than one class of stock, the certificates shall contain a statement that the articles of incorporation provide a method for the apportionment of such special dividend among such persons, and that the amount certified has been distributed in accordance with the method so provided.

(c) Ownership of stock. For purposes of this section, shares of stock of a corporation shall be considered to be owned by the person in whom the equitable right to the income from such shares is in good faith vested.

§ 1.941–1 Special deduction for China Trade Act corporations. In addition to the deductions from taxable income otherwise allowed such a corporation, a China Trade Act corporation is, under certain conditions, allowed an additional deduction in computing taxable income. This special deduction is an amount equal to the proportion of the taxable income derived from sources within Formosa and Hong Kong (determined without regard to this section and determined in a similar manner to that provided in sections 861, 862, 863, and 864) which the par value of the shares of stock of the corporation, owned on the last day of the taxable year by (a) persons resident in Formosa, Hong Kong, the United States, or possessions of the United States, and (b) individual citizens of the United States wherever resident, bears to the par value of the whole number of shares of stock of the corporation outstanding on that date. The decrease, by reason of such deduction, in the tax imposed by section 11 must not, however, exceed the amount of the special dividend referred to in section 941 (b), and is not allowable unless the special dividend has been certified to the Commissioner by the Secretary of Commerce.

§ 1.941–2 Meaning of terms used in connection with China Trade Act corporations. (a) A China Trade Act corporation is one organized under the provisions of the China Trade Act, 1922 (15 U. S. C., ch. 4, sec. 141 et seq.).

(b) The term "special dividend" means the amount which is distributed as a dividend to or for the benefit of such persons as on the last day of the taxable year were resident in Formosa, Hong Kong, the United States, or possessions of the United States, or were individual citizens of the United States, and owned shares of stock of the corporation. Such dividend must be distributed prior to or at the time fixed by law for filing the return of the corporation, including the period of any extension of time granted under rules and regulations prescribed by the Commissioner with the approval of the Secretary or his delegate. Such special dividend does not include any other amounts payable or to be payable to such persons or for their benefit by reason of their interest in the corporation and must be made in proportion to the par value of the shares of stock of the corporation owned by each.

(c) For the purposes of section 941, the shares of stock of a China Trade Act corporation are considered to be owned by the person in whom the equitable right to the income from such shares is in good faith vested.

(d) "Taxable income derived from sources within Formosa and Hong Kong" is the sum of the taxable income from sources wholly within Formosa and Hong Kong and that portion of the taxable income from sources partly within and partly without Formosa and Hong Kong which may be allocated to sources within Formosa and Hong Kong. The method of computing this income is similar to that described in sections 861, 862, 863 and 864.

§ 1.941–3 Illustration of principles. The application of section 941 may be illustrated by the following example:

Example. (1) The A Company, a China Trade Act corporation, has taxable income (computed without regard to the deduction under section 941) for the calendar year 1954 of $200,000 and receives no dividends from domestic corporations. All of its stock on December 31, 1954, is owned on that date by persons resident in Formosa, Hong Kong, the United States, or possessions of the United States, or individual citizens of the United States. It distributes a special dividend amounting to $100,000 on February 15, 1955, which is certified by the Secretary of Commerce as provided in section 941 (b). For the purpose of the tax imposed by section 11, it is necessary in this example to make two computations, first, without allowing the special deduction from taxable income on account of income derived from sources within Formosa and Hong Kong, and, second, allowing such deduction. The computations are as follows:

(2) First computation; without allowing the special deduction from taxable income.

|---|---|
| Taxable income | $200,000 |
| Normal tax (section 11 (b)) | 60,000 |
| Surtax (section 11 (c)) | 38,500 |
| Total income tax | 98,500 |

(3) Second computation; allowing the special deduction from taxable income.

| Taxable income | $200,000 |

Since the total taxable income is derived from sources within Formosa and Hong Kong and since the par value of the shares of stock of the corporation owned on the last day of the taxable year by (1) persons resident in Formosa, Hong Kong, the United States, or possessions of the United States, and (2) individual citizens of the United States wherever resident, is 100 percent of the par value of the total number of shares of stock of the corporation outstanding on that day, 100 percent of such taxable income is deductible.

| Special deduction from taxable income | $200,000 |
| Amount of income subject to tax under section 11 | None |

(4) Since the special dividend ($100,000) exceeds the diminution of the tax ($98,500) on account of the allowance of the special deduction from taxable income, the entire amount of the special deduction is allowable and the corporation has no income tax liability for 1954.

§ 1.942 Statutory provisions; disallowance of foreign tax credit.

SEC. 942. Disallowance of foreign tax credit. A corporation organized under the China Trade Act, 1922, shall not be allowed the credits against the tax for taxes of foreign countries and possessions of the United States allowed by section 901.

§ 1.943 Statutory provisions; exclusion of dividends to residents of Formosa or Hong Kong.

SEC. 943. Exclusion of dividends to residents of Formosa or Hong Kong. Amounts distributed as dividends to or for the benefit of any person by a corporation organized under the China Trade Act, 1922, shall not be included in gross income and shall be exempt from taxation under this subtitle if, at the time of such distribution, such person is a resident of Formosa or Hong Kong, and the equitable right to the income of the shares of stock of the corporation is in good faith vested in him.

[Docket No. AO–257–A1]

MILK IN SHREVEPORT, LA., MARKETING AREA

NOTICE OF RECOMMENDED DECISION AND OPPORTUNITY TO FILE WRITTEN EXCEPTIONS WITH RESPECT TO PROPOSED MARKETING AGREEMENT AND ORDER AMENDING ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of the Agricultural Marketing Agreement Act of 1937, as amended (7 U. S. C. 601 et seq.), hereinafter referred to as the act and the applicable rules of practice and procedure, as amended, governing the formulation of marketing agreements and marketing orders (7 CFR Part 900), notice is hereby given of the filing with the Hearing Clerk of the recommended decision of the Deputy Administrator, Agricultural Marketing Service, United States Department of Agriculture, with respect to a proposed marketing agreement and a proposed order amending the order, regulating the handling of milk in the Shreveport, Louisiana, marketing area. Interested parties may file written exceptions to the decision with the Hearing Clerk, United States Department of Agriculture, Washington 25, D. C., not later than the close of business on the 10th day after publication of this decision in the FEDERAL REGISTER. Exceptions should be filed in quadruplicate.

Preliminary statement. The hearing on the record of which the proposed marketing agreement and order was formulated, was conducted at Shreveport, Louisiana on December 12–13, 1955, pursuant to notice thereof which was issued on November 2 and November 15, 1955 (20 F. R. 8336 and 8547):

The material issues relate to:

1. An extension of the marketing area and modification of location differentials;

2. A revision of the Class I price and incorporation in the order of a supply-demand adjustment provision;

3. A revision of the Class II milk definition with respect to shrinkage and dumpage of skim milk;

4. A revision of the definitions of supply and distributing plants; and

5. A revision of certain administrative provisions.

Findings and conclusions. The following findings and conclusions on the material issues are based upon the evidence in the record:

1. The definition of the marketing area should not be changed.

The producers association proposed that the Shreveport marketing area be extended to include the City of Leesville and all military installations in Vernon Parish, Louisiana. Regulated handlers did not offer testimony with respect to this proposal at the hearing.

The primary objective of producer's proposal is to include Fort Polk in the marketing area. This installation was activated in 1940 as a World War II training center. Following 1946, it was not used as a regular training center but was later used periodically by the army and the Louisiana National Guard. Fort Polk was reactivated in the spring of 1955 as a permanent army installation.

Fort Polk is located approximately 10 miles south of Leesville, Louisiana. It is approximately 125 miles from Shreveport, 160 miles from Monroe, 65 miles from Alexandria, 75 miles from Lake Charles and 150 miles from New Iberia. A network of good roads connects Fort Polk with all of the above named cities. There are no fluid milk processing and distributing plants in the immediate vicinity of Fort Polk. Distributors of milk located in each of the above stated cities are potential sources of supply. Insofar as transportation is concerned, the Alexandria and Lake Charles markets afford the closest source of supply.

When Camp Polk was activated in 1940, its milk supply was furnished by a distributor located in Lake Charles, Louisiana. From July 1, 1941, through August 1946, the milk requirements were supplied from a plant located in New Iberia, Louisiana. Milk was shipped in carlot quantities to this camp by the army from northern markets during the fall of 1946. From 1950 through 1954 milk was supplied by handlers in the Shreveport market.

The record indicates that approximately 20 thousand military personnel are to be stationed at Fort Polk on a year-round basis. A considerable area in and surrounding Fort Polk has been designated as an army maneuver area. In the maneuver "Operation Sage Brush" which was held during October–December 1955, more than 140 thousand military personnel participated. The recent increase in the personnel at Fort Polk and in military families at Leesville and Alexandria have increased substantially the year-round requirements of fluid milk. Maneuvers result in a substantial but temporary increase in the requirements of fluid milk in this area.

Although the garrison requirements of fluid milk at Camp Polk have been supplied in recent years by Shreveport handlers, an Alexandria distributor held the contract during the months of July and September 1955. In addition to Shreveport handlers, distributors from Alexandria, Lake Charles and New Iberia supplied substantial quantities of milk to troops on maneuvers. The inclusion of Fort Polk in the marketing area would result in extending full regulation under the present Shreveport order to any plant that supplies 1500 pounds daily or more than four percent of its receipts of Grade A milk to this installation. The regulation under the order of the suppliers of the Fort Polk milk requirements could unduly extend the scope of regulation.

Producers contended that the failure to include Fort Polk in the marketing area would tend to place Shreveport handlers at a competitive disadvantage in bidding on the milk requirements. It was contended that distributors not subject to the Federal order could establish their Class I price in such a manner as to maintain a competitive advantage over regulated handlers.

Milk distributors in Louisiana who are not regulated by a Federal order are subject to the classification, auditing and milk testing provisions of the Louisiana State Milk Audit Law. Although such distributors determine the prices they pay for milk in the various class uses, they are required under the law to announce publicly their prices and to pay such prices to all producers from whom they purchase milk. It is possible that such distributors may procure milk temporarily at prices lower than the Class I prices resulting under the Shreveport order. The evidence in the record, however, fails to show, except for a few months, that this has been so. The potential competitors of Shreveport handlers for the Fort Polk contract are located in milk deficit areas farther to the south where prices for Class I milk have been higher than the order price.

Nearly all of these distributors compete with each other for regular retail and wholesale outlets throughout central and southwestern Louisiana. Handlers regulated by the Shreveport order also compete with these distributors in Lake Charles, Alexandria and at numerous other points in the territory surrounding these cities. Shreveport handlers supply some of the schools, hospitals, Federal institutions and other army installations located in the same area on a contract basis. Except for the fact that the Fort Polk contract may involve a larger volume of milk, there is no evidence to show that the pricing problems relative to the raw milk supply for Fort Polk are any different than those for these other outlets outside of the marketing area.

The record also shows that the receipts of milk from producers are inadequate to supply the year-round requirements of the present Class I sales of Shreveport handlers. Local supplies of milk are inadequate also in the other competing markets. For the immediate future, at least, it, therefore, will be necessary for the successful bidder to import milk from outside sources to help supply the requirements at Fort Polk.

In view of all of these facts, Fort Polk should not be included in the marketing area at this time.

Exceptions were raised by certain parties to the proceeding on the record and in their briefs with respect to the Hearing Examiner's ruling on the receipt of evidence pertaining to changes in other order provisions in view of the proposal to extend the marketing area. Upon review thereof, it is concluded that the ruling of the Hearing Examiner should be sustained.

The notice of hearing contained a proposal to delete the Class I milk location differential to handlers. At the hearing a proposal was made to modify the location differential to both handlers and producers. Under the order, distributing and supply plants located more than 40 miles from the City Hall in Shreveport are allowed a location adjustment on Class I milk at the rate of 1.75 cents per hundredweight for each 10 miles or fraction thereof that the plant is located from Shreveport. Prices paid producers for milk received at such plants are subject to the same location adjustment. The record evidence fails to support the deletion of location adjustments or to provide an appropriate basis for modifying either the present rate of adjustment or its application.

2. Class I milk price—For the months of July 1956 through February 1957, the Class I price differential over the basic formula price should be increased 20 cents. This will result in a Class I price differential of $2.40 during these months and a $2.00 differential during the months of March through June.

Producers proposed raising the Class I price differential from $2.00 to $2.20 during the March-June period and from $2.20 to $2.60 for the July-February period. They contended that this increase was necessary to maintain present producers and encourage a more adequate supply of milk. Handlers presented testimony to show that milk from alternative sources of supply would be attracted to the Shreveport market if any substantial change were made in the Shreveport order Class I price. They contended that a long term proper alignment of the Shreveport Class I price with Class I prices in other surrounding markets was essential.

The Shreveport market is extremely short of producer milk during the fall and winter months. The record shows that Class I sales of handlers exceeded producer receipts by six percent in September and 23 percent in October, 1955. Receipts of producer milk during April, May and June of 1955, the normal season of flush production, were only five percent in excess of Class I sales.

The number of producers supplying regulated handlers decreased from 466 in April to 425 in June and increased to 451 in October. There was some dislocation of supplies in the April-June period and as a consequence a few producers were temporarily "cut off" the market by handlers. Through a shifting of some producers and the reinstatement of others, the milk of such producers was again taken by plants needing it for Class I disposition.

The record shows that, except during the fall months, there is a supply of milk available in surrounding states which could be shipped to the Shreveport market. In general, during the flush production season Class I milk prices in the Shreveport marketing area have been reasonably well in line with those in other Louisiana markets. During the months of April, May and June, however, the Class I price under the adjacent North Texas order averaged about ten cents per hundredweight above that of Shreveport. These two markets are similarly situated with respect to the specialized dairy regions of the country. Also climatic and production conditions in these markets are quite similar. Handlers indicated on the record that prices in these two markets should be approximately the same. Although the stated Class I differentials in the North Texas and Shreveport orders are identical, the North Texas Class I price was above the formula price because of the operation of a supply-demand adjuster.

The percentage utilization of producer milk in Class I was higher in the Shreveport marketing area during the flush season of production than in the North Texas area. Thus, the Shreveport blend price averaged about 35 cents above that in North Texas.

Official notice is taken of the prices and utilization of milk under the North Texas and Shreveport orders for November through January 1956. These official releases of the respective market administrators and the record evidence show that for the period July through February 1956, the announced Class I price of milk under the North Texas order averaged approximately 15 cents above that of Shreveport. The North Texas and surrounding Louisiana markets have a high percentage of producer milk utilized in Class I milk in the fall months (the season of relatively low milk production). Thus, during the fall season there has been no price incentive for producers to shift to the Shreveport market from the adjacent production areas. Occasionally, milk has been diverted from North Texas during this period by handlers who have plants in both areas. Handlers, at times, have purchased tank lots of milk from Mississippi plants. Because handlers were in need of additional supplies of milk to meet their Class I needs during the fall months when supplies are short in these surrounding markets, milk was brought from as far away as Wisconsin. Some handlers paid as high as $6.75 per hundredweight for milk brought in from distant areas when the Class I price for producer milk in Shreveport was $5.81 per hundredweight. In any event, dependable supplies of supplemental milk during the winter months cost handlers substantially more than Class I milk prices under the order.

In connection with Class I pricing, producers also proposed that a supply-demand adjustment factor be added to the pricing formula to reflect changes in local supply-demand relationships and particularly to effectuate a higher level of prices.

The determination and proper functioning of a supply-demand adjustment arrangement is dependent on a number of important factors. Among these is the need for adequate milk production and disposition data for the market over a reasonable period of time in order to determine a normal or realistic supply-demand relationship. The Shreveport order has been in effect for less than one year and therefore does not permit the desired analysis for developing a normal supply-demand relationship.

Caution must be exercised also in applying a supply-demand adjuster under market situations with frequent changes in the numbers of producers and market receipts or erratic changes in volume of sales caused by influences other than the normal production and sales responses to changing price levels. The volume of milk under the Shreveport order is relatively small. The record shows a tendency for handlers to "cut off" producers at times when producer receipts may temporarily exceed Class I sales. These two factors could result in erratic and irrational movements in the supply-demand relationships as measured by available means under the order provisions. Sales of milk outside of the marketing area, including sales to military establishments, government institutions and schools on a contract basis, represent an important segment of total market sales. The temporary supplying or loss of such outlets also could very well result in erratic relationships between receipts of producer milk and sales. The application of a longer term relationship, such as over an entire year may overcome some of these latter problems; however, such factors must be reflected in the general level of the supply-demand relationship in some manner. Because of the deficit nature of the Shreveport market, it would be expected that the production of milk would increase over a period of time to more nearly meet the needs of handlers during most months of the year. If a longer term supply-demand adjuster were applied at a level in relation to the current relationship and as a means for providing the recommended increase in the Class I price level, such increase in price probably would be of short duration. Any upward trend in production relative to sales would immediately have the effect of lowering the newly established level of prices.

In view of the prevailing conditions in this market, the proposal to adjust prices by incorporating a supply-demand adjustment provision should be denied at this time.

In view of shortage of producer milk for the Shreveport market and prices prevailing in other markets, the Class I price differential should be increased 20 cents per hundredweight for the period July 1956 through February 1957. This increase should result in bringing the level of the Class I price in Shreveport in reasonable alignment with order Class I prices in the North Texas market. During March 1955 through February 1956 the North Texas Class I price exceeded the Class I price resulting from the Shreveport order by 13.5 cents. The proposed change will increase the Shreveport price 13.3 cents. The spread between spring and fall milk prices will be increased, thereby adding a further price incentive, as proposed by producers, to increase their fall milk production when the market most needs added supplies. Inasmuch as the present spread between North Texas and Shreveport Class I prices is a result of the operation of the supply-demand adjustment factor in the North Texas order, and which may reflect a temporary situation, it is concluded that the increase in the Shreveport Class I price differential also should be for a temporary period and expire at the end of February 1957. Before the termination of this period, it will be possible to review market conditions in light of the intervening experience and appraise the need to consider any further adjustments that may be necessary in the Class I pricing formula.

3. The special classification provisions applying to shrinkage during the months of April, May and June should be replaced by a provision for dumped skim milk.

The present order permits the classification in Class II of up to five percent of receipts of skim milk in producer milk as shrinkage during April, May and June. This relatively large shrinkage allowance was included in the order to provide accommodation for situations in which handlers who have milk in excess of their Class I requirements during the months of flush production have to dump skim milk because of the lack of adequate manufacturing facilities. Amounts of shrinkage (including dumpage) in excess of five percent of receipts is accounted for at the Class I price. This provision apparently has functioned satisfactorily for most handlers. However, at least two handlers of small volumes of milk, located at some distance from Shreveport and who do not have processing facilities of their own, experienced difficulty in keeping their skim milk dumpage within the five percent limitation during the flush production season of 1955. These handlers are able to utilize the butterfat but their volumes of skim milk are too small for economic shipment to other handlers or to processing plants where the skim milk can be utilized. One small volume handler testified that if the order were not modified with respect to the classification of dumped skim milk, he would have to temporarily "shut off" a few of his producers during the spring months. A more equitable sharing of the seasonal reserve problem among all producers delivering milk to each of such handlers may be accomplished by a separate dumpage provision.

That part of the classification provision permitting shrinkage with respect to skim milk up to five percent for the months of April, May and June therefore should be reduced to two percent—the same as for other months of the year. Provision should be made for dumped skim milk to be classified as Class II under certain conditions during April, May and June. The testimony indicates that the maximum volume of skim milk which is dumped and on which the Class II classification should be allowed should be limited to a daily average of 1,500 pounds or five percent of receipts of producer milk, whichever is greater, during the month.

In order to forestall improper accounting for such milk, such classification should be allowable only when the market administrator, or his representative, is provided the opportunity to witness the dumping. The handler should be required to give advance notice to the market administrator of his intention to dump skim milk and the amount. Considering the locations of the various regulated plants, advance notice of 24 hours should be adequate. Otherwise, dumped milk should be classified as "unaccounted for" and priced as Class I milk.

4. The supply plant definition should be modified to provide for regulation of any plant from which "Grade A" fluid milk or skim milk is shipped to a distributing plant during the months of April through June.

Producers proposed changing the supply plant definition to bring under regulation any plant from which any milk is shipped to a distributing plant in any of the months of January through July, or any plant that ships 50 percent or more of its Grade A receipts in any of the months of August through December.

The present order defines a "supply plant" as any plant from which "Grade A" milk or skim milk is received during the month at a distributing plant: (a) On four or more days or in an amount equal to a daily average of not less than 1,000 pounds in any of the months of April through June; and (b) on ten or more days or in an amount equal to a daily average of not less than 8,300 pounds in any of the months of July through March.

Testimony in the record shows that handlers "cut off" producers and did not fully use available producer milk during April, May and June, the flush season of production. During the same period, however, handlers brought in other source milk and milk products for Class I use in an amount approximately equal to the milk equivalent of the producer milk displaced.

Bringing in outside milk for Class I use, when local producer milk is available, has displaced producer milk in Class I and has led to disrupted marketing conditions. The application of the minimum pricing provisions to the milk at such supply plants, during the season of flush production when local supplies are available, should promote a greater degree of market stability. Handlers did not introduce opposing testimony to the proposal for changing the supply plant definition. Although producer proponents proposed such a provision for the period January through July, the testimony pertained to the period of April through June. No testimony was given in support of changes proposed for the August through December period. It is concluded that the problem complained about is primarily in the April through June period and any change, at this time, in the supply plant definition for other months of the year is deemed unnecessary.

A proposal was made to change the definition of "distributing plant" to the effect that any plant from which any Class I sales are made in the marketing area should be fully regulated.

The present order provides that any plant from which an average of not over 1,500 pounds per day or not less than four percent of the "Grade A" milk and skim milk received from producers and other plants is distributed as Class I sales in the marketing area is not subject to full regulation. The main purpose of this provision is to place reasonable limits on the scope of regulation. It is not necessary to extend full regulation to handlers on the fringe of the marketing area whose main business is in competition with unregulated handlers but whose distribution routes may extend into the marketing area and therby distribute a small amount of fluid milk products therein. Under the present order provisions, the quantity of such Class I sales ordinarily would be too small to be disruptive of orderly marketing conditions.

One handler testified that some unpriced milk has been sold in the marketing area in his sales area in competition with his milk which is priced under the order. He also stated that for a short time an unregulated handler made Class I sales in a nearby community in the marketing area and before withdrawing from this community had reduced resale prices as much as four cents per quart. The proponent handler stated that he had not lost any sales volume, but he contended that, if several unregulated handlers should choose to market unpriced milk up to the amount permitted under the distributing plant definition, his market situation could be jeopardized.

The hearing record, however, shows no factors disruptive of orderly marketing conditions at the present time. Only a small quantity of unregulated milk is sold in the area in question by one handler. He has not expanded Class I sales in the marketing area or disrupted marketing conditions; also, there is no evidence that such milk is procured at unduly low prices.

Two handlers testified in opposition to the proposal for changing the distributing plant definition on the grounds that most of their Class I sales were made in competition with unregulated handlers in areas surrounding the marketing area and such a change in definition could put them at a competitive disadvantage in markets where the bulk of their Class I sales were made.

It is concluded that the Secretary's previous findings and conclusions (20 F. R. 887), with respect to this issue, continue to be applicable at the present time and the proposed change in definition should be denied.

5. Changes should be made in certain administrative provisions of the order.

The producers' association proposed that provision should be made for advancing the date on which payments are due the association from handlers for the milk of their producer-members from the 13th and 26th days of each month to the 11th and 25th, respectively. Since the issuance of the order, the producers association has assumed the responsibility of collecting the proceeds from the sale of its producer-members' milk and for issuing checks to individual-members for their milk deliveries. The association's experience indicates that the proposed change in payment dates will facilitate the payment of association members on the same date that nonmember-producers receive their payments. Uniformity in time of payment is desirable and no hardship will result from the adoption of producers' proposal. The proposal should be adopted.

The adoption of producer's proposal necessitates a corresponding change in the date for announcement, by the market administrator, of individual handler uniform prices, butterfat differentials, as well as, in the date on which individual handlers are to be notified of their total obligations to producers. Although it has been customary for the market administrator to supply handlers with such information prior to the 12th day of the month, the order should be changed to specify the 10th of the month. Handlers, then will be assured that the information will be received in time for them to make final payments due the cooperative association for milk by the 11th day of the month.

Testimony shows that the milk of some dairy farmers who are primarily associated with the North Texas market has been diverted at times to a plant in the Shreveport market. Under the terms of the North Texas order, diverted milk is subject to the pricing and payment provisions of that order. Diversion is permitted during the months of January through July and for not more than 15 days during any of the other months of the year. Such diverted milk which is received directly from producers' farms at a Shreveport fluid milk plant also falls within the category of a receipt of producer milk under the Shreveport order. It is intended that the milk of a producer be subject only to the pricing and payment provisions of a single order. Therefore, in order to clarify the application of the order with respect to the milk of a producer which may be shifted between regulated plants of the two orders, provision should be made to exclude from regulation under the Shreveport order the milk of a producer which is otherwise subject to the pricing and payment provisions of another order. The proposed change will provide a standard for determining under which order the milk will be priced and will eliminate problems associated with the establishment and application of bases under the base rating plans of the two markets.

The rate of administrative assessment, to defray the expense of administration of the order, should be raised from four cents to five cents per hundredweight.

Testimony introduced in the record shows that the income from the administrative assessment was less than the expenses incurred during the first eight and a half months operation of the order, resulting in a deficit of nearly $9,000. Considerable expense has been involved in establishing and securing the necessary equipment for a new order program. It also is desirable and customary to accumulate a reasonable reserve fund in connection with the operation of an order. It is concluded that the increase in administrative assessment is necessary to assure adequate funds to retire the obligations for equipment and provide for the necessary reserve fund. Provision should be made to enable the Secretary to reduce the rate of assessment below the five cents per hundredweight maximum without necessitating an amendment to the order. This may be done at any time experience in the market shows that a lesser rate will produce enough revenue to administer the order properly.

General findings. (a) The proposed marketing agreement and the order, amending the order, and all of the terms and conditions thereof will tend to effectuate the declared policy of the act;

(b) The parity prices for milk as determined pursuant to section 2 of the act are not reasonable in view of the price of feeds, available supplies of feeds, and other economic conditions which affect market supply of and demand for milk in the marketing area, and the minimum prices specified in the proposed marketing agreement and the order amending the order are such prices as will reflect the aforesaid factors, insure a sufficient quantity of pure and wholesome milk and be in the public interest; and

(c) The proposed order amending the order will regulate the handling of milk in the same manner as and will be applicable only to persons in the respective classes of industrial and commercial activity specified in a marketing agreement upon which a hearing has been held.

Rulings on proposed findings and conclusions. Briefs were filed on behalf of interested parties in the market. The briefs contained suggested findings of fact, conclusions, and argument with respect to the proposals discussed at the hearing. Every point covered in the briefs was carefully considered along with the evidence in the record in making the findings and reaching the conclusions hereinbefore set forth. To the extent that such suggested findings and conclusions contained in the briefs are inconsistent with the findings and conclusions contained herein, the request to make such findings or to reach such conclusions is denied.

Recommended marketing agreement and order. The following amendments to the order are recommended as the detailed and appropriate means by which these conclusions may be carried out. The proposed marketing agreement is not included in this decision because the regulatory provisions thereof would be the same as those contained in the order as proposed here to be amended.

1. In § 966.8, delete paragraph "(a)" and substitute therefor

(a) In any of the months of April through June; and

2. At the end of § 966.12 change the "period" to a "colon" and add the following proviso: "And provided further, That this definition shall not include any such person with respect to milk produced by him which is subject to the pricing and payment provisions of another marketing order issued pursuant to the act."

3. In § 966.27 (j) (2), delete "12th" and substitute therefor "10th".

4. At the end of § 966.41 (b) (2), substitute a "comma" for the "semicolon" and add the following: "or skim milk dumped during April, May and June (up to, whichever is the greater of a daily average of 1,500 pounds or five percent of receipts from producers during the month): Provided, That in the case of skim milk dumped, the market administrator is given at least 24 hours' notice of the handler's intention to make such disposition and the amount involved;".

5. In § 966.41 (b) (4), delete the phrase "(five percent with respect to skim milk during the months of April, May and June)".

6. At the end of § 966.51 (a), change the "period" to a "comma" and add the following: "except that plus $2.40 shall apply to the months of July, 1956 through February, 1957."

7. In § 966.90 (d), delete "13th" and "26th" and substitute, respectively therefor "11th" and "25th".

8. In § 966.94, delete the phrase "four cents per hundredweight, or such amount not exceeding four cents per hundredweight" and insert in lieu thereof the following: "five cents per hundredweight, or such amount not exceeding five cents per hundredweight".

Issued at Washington, D. C., this 2d day of April 1956.

MILK IN NASHVILLE, TENN., MARKETING AREA

NOTICE OF RECOMMENDED DECISION AND OPPORTUNITY TO FILE WRITTEN EXCEPTIONS WITH RESPECT TO PROPOSED AMENDMENTS TO TENTATIVE MARKETING AGREEMENT AND TO ORDER, AS AMENDED

Pursuant to the provisions of the Agricultural Marketing Agreement Act of 1937, as amended (7 U. S. C. 601 et seq.) and the applicable rules of practice and procedure, as amended, governing the formulation of marketing agreements and marketing orders (7 CFR Part 900), notice is hereby given of the filing with the Hearing Clerk of the recommended decision of the Deputy Administrator, Agricultural Marketing Service, United States Department of Agriculture, with respect to proposals to amend the tentative marketing agreement and the order, as amended, regulating the handling of milk in the Nashville, Tennessee marketing area. Interested parties may file written exceptions to this decision with the Hearing Clerk, United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C., not later than the close of business the third day after publication of this decision in the FEDERAL REGISTER. Exceptions should be filed in quadruplicate.

Preliminary statement. The hearing, on the record of which the proposed amendments to the tentative marketing agreement and to the order, as amended, were formulated, was conducted at Nashville, Tennessee, on September 22-23, 1955 (20 F. R. 7007). The material issues of record related to:

1. An emergency increase in the Class I differential.
2. An increase in the annual level of the Class I price.
3. A revision of the order to provide that the uniform price for "excess" milk should not exceed the uniform price for "base" milk.
4. A revision of the definition of "fluid milk plant."
5. A revision of the base-forming period.
6. The level of the Class II price.
7. A revision of the method by which producers receive payment for milk.
8. Administrative and conforming changes in the order.

Findings and conclusions. By an expedited decision of the Acting Secretary, issued November 16, 1955 (20 F. R. 8607), action has been taken with respect to Issue No. 1. Findings and conclusions with respect to the remaining material issues, all of which are based on the evidence introduced at the hearing, and the record thereof, are as follows:

2. An increase in the annual level of the Class I price. Producer representatives proposed that the Nashville Class I differential be increased to yield an annual differential of $1.50 over the basic-formula price. The present seasonal differentials of $1.40 and $1.10 yield a differential of $1.25 on an annual basis. In order to continue seasonal adjustments in pricing, producer representatives proposed that the Class I differential be increased to $1.70 during the base-forming months, and $1.30 during the base-operating months. It was proposed, also, that the proposed increase in Class I differentials be accomplished without providing for a supply-demand adjustor. It was stated that should the proposed price increase result in an oversupply of milk in the Nashville market, a supply-demand adjustor might then be considered.

Proponents testified that the proposed Class I differentials are needed to bring the Nashville Class I milk price in line with the price of milk brought into the market for fluid use from markets which have substantial surplus of milk for such use.

In August 1955, milk from the Chicago area could be brought to the Nashville market for fluid use at approximately $5.70 per hundredweight. The Class I price for Nashville during that month was $4.55. Milk prices which prevailed in surrounding markets during the period July 1954–June 1955 were submitted for the record to show that the Nashville Class I price ranged from 13 cents to 58 cents per hundredweight lower than the prices which prevailed during that period in the Memphis, Chattanooga, Knoxville and Louisville markets.

During the period September 1954 through August 1955, the Nashville market experienced a net increase of 147 producers. Supplies of milk available to handlers were more than adequate for their needs. Some handlers have considerable quantities of milk available for sale outside the marketing area. Such sales, on a daily average basis, have increased considerably during 1955 over the previous years. Handlers have had no difficulty in obtaining producers to replace those who have discontinued production. Producer receipts per plant have increased from four to twelve percent over the previous year. The present level of the Class I price is sufficient to attract and maintain an adequate supply of milk for the market.

As a result of the order amendment, effective April 1, 1955, the Nashville Class I differential this fall and winter was increased over the level of the previous year, although there have been no price increases in markets surrounding Nashville.

In a decision issued by the Acting Secretary on March 25, 1955 (20 F. R. 1980), the question of the level of the Class I price was discussed. At that time, it was pointed out that the Class I differential of $1.25 had prevailed only intermittently from the inception of the order in 1948 through August 1951, and not at all since that time. The Class I price has been influenced in the past by the action of the supply-demand and contra-seasonal provisions, as well as market-wide premiums. Premiums and adjustments resulting in Class I price increases generally prevailed during the months of lowest production. Price reductions resulting from the operation of the supply-demand adjustor, generally occurred during months of greatest production.

The decision issued at that time concluded that seasonal variation should be established in Class I pricing, and that Class I differentials of $1.40 during the six months of lowest production and $1.10 during the remaining months should be sufficient to insure that milk supplies will continue at adequate levels to meet Class I requirements in the market. This decision resulted in an order amending the order, effective April 1, 1955.

Since that time, producers have delivered increasing quantities of milk to the market. This increase amounted to approximately 12 percent during the January–September 1955 period, compared with the corresponding period of 1954. At the same time, Class I sales have been increasing at a faster rate than during the corresponding period. This aspect of the marketing situation, however, was discussed in a decision issued by the Acting Secretary on November 16, 1955 (20 F. R. 8607).

During 1953–1954, the prevailing Class I differential amounted to approximately $1.27. During this period, the market was supplied with a production reserve of more than 30 percent.

During the nine-month period, January–September 1955, the prevailing differential averaged $1.26. The production reserve during this period amounted to 32 percent. At the time of the hearing, the amended winter differential was being employed for the first time in price computation. It is too early, however, to observe the effect of this change. It is concluded, however, that the evidence in the record discussed herein indicates that the present Class I differentials on an annual basis are resulting in adequate supplies of milk for the market. An increase in the annual level of the Class I price should not be made at this time.

It was contemplated that the adoption of the individual handler pool would cause producers to transfer milk deliveries to handlers with the highest pay prices to producers. Testimony in the record indicates that this has occurred in the Nashville market since the adoption of the individual handler pool. Handlers who retain excessive supplies of producer milk will experience uniform prices which are low in comparison with those of other handlers. The tendency for producers to seek handlers with high uniform prices, if continued, should cause handlers with excessive supplies of producer milk to raise their own uniform prices by obtaining additional high-valued outlets, or by reducing supplies.

Producer representatives testified that the present supply-demand adjustor, based on a twelve-month moving average of supply-demand data, is too slow to reflect current changes in supply-demand relationships. Previous experience with a two-month moving average convinced producers that its effect was too erratic in the Nashville market. Although producers proposed that the supply-demand adjustor be deleted, their secondary position was that in the event the supply-demand adjustor is retained in the order, they would support one which produced an effect somewhere between the slower action of a twelve-month moving average, and the comparatively sensitive action of a two-month moving average in computing the supply-demand relationship for the Nashville market.

The purpose of a supply-demand adjustor is to provide automatic changes in the Class I price as changes (other than those of a normal seasonal nature) occur in the relationship of the supply of producer milk to Class I sales.

The moving factor which determines the direction and rate of adjustment under present order language is the relationship of supplies and sales in the preceding twelve-month period. Abrupt changes in supply-demand conditions have occurred in the Nashville market, and the production problems caused by extremely dry weather, coupled with an increase in demand for Class I milk, was an issue at the hearing. In a separate decision issued by the Acting Secretary on November 16, 1955 (20 F. R. 8607), the increase of sales relative to production was discussed.

Price changes should take place whenever change occurs in the relationship of supply to sales. It is evident that the price changes brought about by the present supply-demand adjustor of the order occur more slowly than changes in supply-demand relationships. As indicated by action taken in a separate decision previously cited, an adjustment more responsive to current conditions should be employed.

Some additional responsiveness to current conditions may be secured by adjusting the twelve-month mover now provided in the order so as to give more significance to changes in recent months.

It is recommended that the twelve-month ratio be adjusted by the amount that it changes within the most recent three-month period. The adjusted ratio so computed would be compared with the present standards in the order to determine that amount of price change.

The change recommended should give recognition to the amount by which utilization in the three most recent months included in the twelve-month average has changed from that in the same three months a year previous. By giving added weight to supply-demand relationships in this recent period, the adjustor will be more responsive to current conditions.

Producers proposed that the supply-demand provision be amended to reflect sales of Class I milk in the marketing area.

At the present time, there are some plants regulated under the Nashville order which sell only small quantities of milk in the marketing area. These plants do not furnish Nashville handlers with necessary supplemental supplies of milk, but export bulk Class I milk outside the marketing area. As a consequence, the Nashville market has had to carry the burden of summer surplus which, in actuality, belongs to the distant markets. Supply-demand data which include opportunity sales in significant quantity to outside markets distort the production-sales relationship for the Nashville market.

Under present order language, a plant which distributes any fluid milk product on routes in the marketing area is regulated. The plants which export milk to distant markets are regulated under present order language. The question of whether or not a plant is genuinely associated with the market is one which concerns, primarily, the fluid milk plant definition. No evidence was offered at the hearing concerning order language pertaining to standards for qualifying plants which distribute fluid milk in the marketing area.

Official notice is taken of the Market Administrator's Monthly Bulletin, Volume 8, Number 9, for September 1955. This bulletin contains, among other things, a comparison of the current daily gross utilization of Class I milk with previous periods. The quantity of Class I milk sold outside the market has increased from 13,750 pounds daily in August 1954 to 30,265 pounds daily for the corresponding month in 1955. During the past two years, the supply-demand ratios for the nine plants primarily serving the Nashville market, and the remaining plants with bulk sales outside the market, have moved further apart.

For the twelve-month period ending August 1954, the supply-demand ratio for the market was approximately 130, and for the nine plants mentioned, it was approximately 124. For the corresponding period in 1955, the ratio was approximately 130 for the market, and 120 for the plants primarily furnishing Class I milk to the market. It is concluded that the present method for computing the supply-demand adjustment does not reflect the changing relationship between producer receipts and Class I sales at the plants which supply the market with almost all its Class I needs.

A provision is needed to differentiate between the fluid milk plants primarily serving the market, and those with major sales outside the marketing area insofar as computing a supply-demand adjustment for the market is concerned. For this reason, it is recommended that the computation of the supply-demand adjustment should not include any fluid milk plant which, during the second preceding month, does not dispose of an average of 1,000 pounds of fluid milk products per day, disposed of on routes, in the marketing area.

3. A revision in the method of computing the value of base and excess milk. Handlers and producers proposed that § 978.72 relating to the computation of uniform prices for base and excess milk be amended to provide that the excess price for milk should not exceed the base price during the months of March through August, when such prices are computed.

The order requires that a uniform price for base and excess milk be computed for each handler during each of the months March through August. This is accomplished by adding to the net obligation of each handler, amounts representing adjustments pursuant to the producer location and butterfat differentials, plus an amount remaining in the reserve fund for each handler. The value of excess milk is then determined by multiplying the amount of such milk by the Class II price. The value of base milk is computed by deducting the value of excess milk from the net obligation for each handler, plus the adjustments described above. The order provides that if the value of base milk computed in this manner exceeds an amount computed by multiplying the pounds of base milk by the Class I milk price, such excess amount is added to the value of excess milk.

In each month since the individual handler pool was established, there has been an instance wherein the excess price computed for a handler exceeded the base price computed for such handler. These price differences ranged from 11 cents to 43 cents per hundredweight. Producers proposed that in computing base and excess prices, any additional value accruing as a result of Class I sales in excess of base deliveries should be added to the value of base milk rather than to the value of excess milk.

Producer representatives testified that the announcement of an excess price which exceeds a base price is disturbing to producers who believe that the production of base milk is more desirable than the production of excess milk.

Handlers supported this proposal on the basis that producers should receive more per hundredweight for base milk than for excess milk. Handlers testified that the present provisions of the order which permit the excess price to exceed the base price are not in accord with the purpose of the base-excess plan.

The purpose of the base-excess plan is to encourage producers to deliver milk on a more even seasonal pattern. In the season of generally high production, milk in excess of sales in Class I use is paid for at a price commensurate with its value for manufacturing purposes. For that quantity of milk which handlers utilize in Class I, and which is in excess of the amount of base milk assigned to producers, the additional value, under present order language, is added to the value of excess milk.

It is recognized that under an individual handler pool, a handler with high Class I utilization may experience a shortage of producer milk in relation to Class I sales. When this occurs during the base-operating period, the price of excess milk may increase under present order provisions beyond the level for base milk. In addition, audit adjustments and inventory reclassification under such conditions could also increase the value for excess milk. In order to avoid increasing the excess price over the base price, only the additional value resulting from the use of excess milk in Class I should accrue to the value of excess milk. Additional values resulting from audit adjustments, and inventory reclassifications should accrue to the value of base milk. It is concluded that the amendment recommended herein will prevent any distortion in the value of excess milk, and will preserve its theoretical price relationship under normal circumstances.

4. A revision of the fluid milk plant definition. Handlers proposed to delete that portion of the fluid milk plant definition, § 978.8 (b) and (c), which provides standards for qualifying supply plants eligible for regulation under the Nashville order. The present order designates as a fluid milk plant any plant which supplies Grade A milk or skim milk to a Nashville distributor during the months of January through August. It also designates as a fluid milk plant any plant which supplies more than 70,000 pounds of Grade A milk or skim milk during the month of a Nashville distributor for the period September through December.

This proposal results from a situation in which a Nashville distributor attempted to purchase more than 70,000 pounds of milk in September 1955 from an unregulated plant in Indiana. A purchase in excess of 70,000 pounds for that month would have regulated the seller under § 978.8 (c) of the Nashville order. The source of supply refused to sell the Nashville handler a quantity in excess of 70,000 pounds in order to avoid such regulation, and the Nashville handler had to purchase the additional milk from another source, paying a higher price than would otherwise have been charged by the source of supply in Indiana.

Purchases of supplemental milk by individual handlers in excess of 70,000 pounds in any month are unusual in the Nashville market. The Nashville handler who attempted to make such purchases underestimated his requirements for the current short supply season. He could have obtained an adequate supply of milk from producers at the time procurement arrangements were made for this season. Supplemental supplies of milk from other Nashville distributors were already committed, and not available to this handler at the time needed.

This proposal was supported by other Nashville handlers on the basis of a possible emergency or catastrophe which might occur at any time of the year, and which might drastically reduce local supplies of milk. Handlers testified that in such a situation, they might need to import quantities of milk in excess of the limits now provided in the order. In attempting to import milk under such circumstances, the present order language could cause potential, unregulated suppliers to refuse shipments in quantities which would result in regulation under the Nashville order. In this connection, it should be noted that the Federal order program is empowered to employ emergency action to cope with a catastrophe should one occur.

The proposal was revised by handlers during the course of the hearing. The revised proposal would permit a Nashville handler to purchase supplemental milk in quantities up to 10 percent of his Class I sales for the previous month during the period January through July, and up to 25 percent of such sales during the period August through December.

Producer representatives testified that the fluid milk plant definition is needed in the order. They opposed the handlers' proposal on the basis that it would permit large quantities of unregulated milk to enter the Nashville market for fluid use. If this were accomplished at a price lower than the Nashville Class I price, milk procurement costs among handlers would no longer be equal. This could result in undue competitive advantage on the part of any handler in procuring unregulated surplus milk. To the extent, and for the duration of, such procurement, producer milk would be displaced. If handlers were permitted to purchase milk for fluid use at a price less than their competitors in the marketing area, the classification system established by the order would be jeopardized.

Producers introduced a counter-proposal which would permit a handler to procure up to 7.5 percent of his Class I sales for the previous month during the short production month, and up to 0.5 percent during the flush production months.

The present fluid milk plant definition was one of a number of provisions included in an amending order, effective April 1, 1955. It was concluded at that time that the volume standards provided in the order were such that supplemental milk could be obtained in quantities normally required without subjecting a plant to regulation.

Evidence in the hearing record justifies the same conclusion at this time. Handlers testified that they would have no trouble procuring additional supplies of milk from producers. Evidence in the record pertaining to supplemental supplies of milk needed by the market since 1948 indicates that the volume standards already provided in the order are sufficient to permit handlers to obtain supplemental milk in quantities normally required by the market, without subjecting a supply plant to regulation. It is concluded that § 978.8 should not be amended.

5. Revision of the base-forming and operating periods. The base-forming period should include the months of August through January. The base-forming period, at the present time, includes the months of September through February.

The present base-excess plan for distributing the market returns from milk among producers was established in the order as the result of a hearing held in August 1951. At the time the present base-excess plan was adopted, the months September through February were normally those of relatively low production in relation to fluid sales. Since that time, producer receipts during the month of August have generally been below average deliveries computed for each year. Likewise, deliveries of producer milk during the month of February have increased each year since 1951 to the point where such deliveries during the past two years have been above the average computed for each year. It is concluded that the base-excess plan should be revised to provide that the months August through January should include the base-forming period. The remaining six months, February through July, should be designated as the base-operating period. With the exception of the provision for changing the months involved, the mechanics of computing the daily average base of each producer should remain the same.

In view of the evidence presented concerning the months of generally high and low production in connection with the base-excess plan, consideration may need to be given to a revision of the months in which the seasonal Class I differentials apply. No action is being taken at this time, however, with respect to such consideration.

6. The level of the Class II price. Handlers proposed to delete § 978.51 (b) of the order and substitute a new paragraph which would result in a Class II price based solely on the pay prices of specified manufacturing plants in Tennessee. The present order provides that the Class II price be computed from the average pay prices of specified Tennessee milk manufacturing plants, plus 15 cents during the months of February through August, and plus 25 cents during all other months. Present order language also provides that the Class II price should not exceed the basic formula price.

Handlers testified that they cannot recover the price they must pay for Class II milk on that portion of it which must be sold as excess to manufacturing plants. Excess milk not needed in the Class II operations of Nashville handlers has been sold to manufacturing plants, notably cheese plants, at a price below the order Class II price. Such sales have been made principally during the period February through August, which is generally the season of high production. There is no evidence in the record, however, to indicate that handlers have been unable to market the necessary quantities of Class II milk under the present Class II price levels.

Producer representatives testified there has been an increased demand for manufacturing milk since November 1954. There are outlets in the Nashville market for milk used in higher yielding products than cheese. Such products include ice cream, spray powder and cottage cheese. There are adequate outlets for excess milk during the months of highest production at the present Class II price level. Provision for a permanently lower Class II price might encourage handlers to market producer milk unnecessarily in lower valued outlets.

Evidence in the record of the hearing held in November 1954 (on the basis of which the present Class II price level was established, effective April 1, 1955), indicated that producers with coolers received premiums for milk sold to manufacturing plants. At the same hearing, handlers testified that returns received for excess milk sold to manufacturing plants were not always sufficient to offset handling and hauling costs. Testimony in the record of this hearing indicates that producers are receiving the same premium, 15 cents over the ungraded milk price, during flush production months.

Under the circumstances, no change should be made in the level of the Class II price.

7. The method by which producers receive payment for milk should not be changed at this time. The present order provides that the market administrator shall pay producers for milk received by handlers. Handlers proposed that they should be authorized to make such payments to all producers.

A brief was subsequently filed on behalf of Nashville handlers. In the brief, it was pointed out that the changes desired by such handlers can be accomplished by administrative action within the terms of the present order. For this reason, no change in the method of paying producers is recommended.

Rulings on proposed findings and conclusions. A number of briefs were filed which contained statements of fact, proposed findings and conclusions, and arguments with respect to the provisions of the proposed amendments. Every point covered in the briefs was carefully considered along with the evidence in the record in making the findings and reaching the conclusions hereinbefore set forth. To the extent that the findings and conclusions proposed in the briefs are inconsistent with the findings and conclusions contained herein, the request to make such findings or to reach such conclusions is denied on the basis of the facts found and stated in connection with the conclusions in the recommended decision.

General findings. (a) The proposed marketing agreement and the order, as amended, and as hereby proposed to be further amended, and all of the terms and conditions thereof will tend to effectuate the declared policy of the Act;

(b) The parity prices of milk as determined pursuant to section 2 of the Act are not reasonable in view of the price of feeds, available supplies of feeds and other economic conditions which affect market supply of and demand for milk, in the marketing area and the minimum prices specified in the proposed marketing agreement and the order, as amended, and as hereby proposed to be further amended, are such prices as will reflect the aforesaid factors, insure a sufficient quantity of pure and wholesome milk, and be in the public interest; and

(c) The proposed order, as amended, and as hereby proposed to be further amended, will regulate the handling of milk in the same manner as, and will be applicable only to persons in the respective classes of industrial and commercial activity specified in a marketing agreement upon which a hearing has been held.

Recommended marketing agreement and order, amending the order, as amended. The following order regulating the handling of milk in the Nashville marketing area is recommended as the detailed and appropriate means by which the foregoing conclusions may be carried out. The recommended marketing agreement is not included in this decision because the regulatory provisions thereof would be identical with those contained in the order, as amended, and as hereby proposed to be further amended.

(2) On or before the 21st day of each month, the name and address of each producer from whom milk was received during the first 15 days of such month, and the pounds of milk so received during said period from such producer; and

(3) On or before the first day in any month during which other source milk is received in the form of fluid milk products, his intention to receive such milk, and on or before the last day such milk is received, his intention to discontinue such receipts.

§ 978.32 Records and facilities. Each handler shall keep adequate records of receipts and utilization of skim milk and butterfat and shall, during the usual hours of business, make available to the market administrator, or his representative, such records and facilities as will enable the market administrator to (a) verify the receipts and utilization of all skim milk and butterfat and, in case of errors or omissions, ascertain the correct figures; (b) weigh, sample and test for butterfat content all milk and milk products handled; (c) verify deductions authorized by producers and the disbursement of moneys so deducted; and (d) make such examinations of operations, equipment, and facilities as the market administrator deems necessary.

§ 978.33 Retention of records. All books and records required under this part to be made available to the market administrator shall be retained by the handler for a period of three years to begin at the end of the calendar month to which such books and records pertain: Provided, That if within such three-year period, the market administrator notifies the handler in writing that the retention of such books and records, or of specified books and records, is necessary in connection with a proceeding under section 8c (15) (A) of the act or a court action specified in such notice, the handler shall retain such books and records, or specified books and records, until further written notification from the market administrator. In either case, the market administrator shall give further written notification to the handler promptly upon the termination of the litigation, or when the records are no longer necessary in connection therewith.

CLASSIFICATION OF MILK

§ 978.40 Skim milk and butterfat to be classified. The skim milk and butterfat to be reported for fluid milk plants pursuant to § 978.30 shall be classified each month by the market administrator, pursuant to the provisions of §§ 978.41 through 978.45.

§ 978.41 Classes of utilization. Subject to the conditions set forth in §§ 978.42 through 978.45, the classes of utilization shall be as follows:

(a) Class I milk. Class I milk shall be all skim milk and butterfat (1) disposed of in the form of fluid milk products, except those classified pursuant to paragraph (b) (3) of this section, and (2) not specifically accounted for as Class II milk.

(b) Class II milk. Class II milk shall be all skim milk and butterfat (1) used to produce any products other than fluid milk products; (2) contained in inventories of fluid milk products on hand at the end of the month; (3) disposed of and used for livestock feed; and (4) in shrinkage not to exceed 3 percent respectively of the skim milk and butterfat contained in producer milk (except that diverted pursuant to § 978.11) and other source milk: Provided, That if shrinkage of skim milk or butterfat is less than 3 percent of such amounts, it shall be assigned pro rata, respectively, to the skim milk and butterfat contained in such producer milk and other source milk.

§ 978.42 Responsibility of handlers. All skim milk and butterfat to be classified pursuant to this part shall be classified as Class I milk unless the handler who first receives such skim milk and butterfat establishes to the satisfaction of the market administrator that it should be classified as Class II milk.

§ 978.43 Transfers. (a) Skim milk and butterfat transferred to the fluid milk plant of another handler (except a producer-handler) in the form of fluid milk products shall be classified as Class I milk unless the operators of both plants claim utilization thereof in Class II milk in their reports submitted pursuant to § 978.30: Provided, That the skim milk or butterfat so assigned to Class II milk for any month shall be limited to the amount thereof remaining in Class II milk in the fluid milk plant(s) of the transferee for such month after the subtraction of other source milk pursuant to § 978.45, and any additional amounts of such skim milk or butterfat shall be assigned to Class I milk.

(b) Skim milk and butterfat transferred to the plant of a producer-handler in the form of fluid milk products, shall be classified as Class I milk.

(c) Skim milk and butterfat transferred or diverted in bulk form as milk, skim milk or cream to a nonfluid milk plant located less than 100 miles from the State Capitol at Nashville, Tennessee, by the shortest hard-surfaced highway distance, as determined by the market administrator, shall be classified as Class I milk unless (1) the transferring or diverting handler claims classification in Class II milk in his report submitted to the market administrator pursuant to § 978.30, for the month within which such transaction occurred, (2) the operator of the nonfluid milk plant maintains books and records showing the utilization of all skim milk and butterfat at such plant which are made available if requested by the market administrator for the purpose of verification, and (3) not less than an equivalent amount of skim milk and butterfat was actually utilized in the nonfluid milk plant in the use indicated in such report: Provided, That if it is found that an equivalent amount of skim milk and butterfat was not actually used in such plant during the month in such indicated use the pounds transferred in excess of such actual use shall be classified as Class I milk.

(d) Skim milk and butterfat transferred in bulk form as cream to a nonfluid milk plant located 100 miles or more from the State Capitol in Nashville, Tennessee, by the shortest hard-surfaced highway distance, as determined by the market administrator, shall be classified as Class I milk unless (1) the transferring handler claims classification in Class II milk in his report submitted to the market administrator pursuant to § 978.30, (2) such cream is disposed of and used as other than Grade A under a Grade A certification or label, (3) the handler attaches tags or labels to each container of such cream bearing the words "for manufacturing uses only", (4) the handler gives the market administrator sufficient notice to allow him to verify or inspect such shipment, and (5) the operator of the nonfluid milk plant maintains books and records showing the utilization of all skim milk and butterfat at such plant, which are made available if requested by the market administrator for the purpose of verification.

§ 978.44 Computation of skim milk and butterfat in each class. For each month, the market administrator shall correct for mathematical and other obvious errors the reports of each handler submitted pursuant to § 978.30 and compute the total pounds of skim milk and butterfat, respectively, in Class I milk and Class II milk in the fluid milk plant(s) of such handler.

§ 978.45 Allocation of skim milk and butterfat classified. After making the computations pursuant to § 978.44, the market administrator shall determine the classification of producer milk for each handler as follows:

(a) Skim milk shall be allocated in the following manner:

(1) Subtract from the total pounds of skim milk in Class II milk the pounds of skim milk in producer milk classified pursuant to § 978.41 (b) (4);

(2) Subtract from the remaining pounds of skim milk in Class II milk the pounds of skim milk in other source milk: Provided, That if the pounds of skim milk in other source milk are greater than the remaining pounds of skim milk in Class II milk, an amount equal to the excess shall be subtracted from the pounds of skim milk in Class I milk;

(3) Subtract from the remaining pounds of skim milk in Class II milk the pounds of skim milk contained in inventory of fluid milk products on hand at the beginning of the month: Provided, That if the pounds of skim milk in such inventory are greater than the remaining pounds of skim milk in Class II milk, an amount equal to the excess shall be subtracted from the pounds of skim milk in Class I milk;

(4) Subtract from the remaining pounds of skim milk in each class the pounds of skim milk transferred from the fluid milk plants of other handlers in the form of fluid milk products according to the classification thereof as determined pursuant to § 978.43 (a);

(5) Add to the remaining pounds of skim milk in Class II milk the pounds of skim milk subtracted pursuant to subparagraph (1) of this paragraph; and

(6) If the remaining pounds of skim milk in both classes exceed the pounds of skim milk contained in producer milk, subtract such excess from the remaining pounds of skim milk in series beginning with Class II milk. Any amount so subtracted shall be known as "overage".

(b) Butterfat shall be allocated in accordance with the same procedure outlined for skim milk in paragraph (a) of this section; and

(c) Add the pounds of skim milk and the pounds of butterfat allocated to producer milk in each class, pursuant to paragraphs (a) and (b) of this section, and determine the percentage of butterfat in each class.

(2) Add 2.4 times the average of the weekly prevailing price per pound of "Twins" during the month on the Wisconsin Cheese Exchange at Plymouth, Wisconsin: Provided, That if the price of "Twins" is not quoted on such Exchange, the weekly prevailing price per pound of "Cheddars" shall be used; and

(3) Divide by 7, add 30 percent thereof, and then multiply by 4.

§ 978.51 Class prices. Subject to the provisions of §§ 978.52 and 978.53, the class prices per hundredweight for the month shall be as follows:

(a) Class I milk price. The Class I milk price shall be the basic formula price for the preceding month, plus $1.40 during the months of September through February, and plus $1.10 during all other months, plus or minus a supply-demand adjustment calculated for each month as follows: Provided, That any fluid milk plant which, during the second preceding month, did not dispose of at least an average of 1,000 pounds of fluid milk products per day on routes (including routes operated by vendors and sales through plant stores) to retail or wholesale outlets in the marketing area shall not be included in the supply-demand computation:

(1) For each month, calculate a utilization percentage by (i) dividing the total hundredweight of producer milk of all fluid milk plants for the twelve-month period ending with the beginning of the preceding month by the net hundredweight of fluid milk products disposed of from all fluid milk plants during the same period, (ii) multiply by 100, (iii) add or subtract, respectively, any amount by which such result is greater or less than a comparable twelve-month utilization percentage as computed for the third month preceding, and (iv) the resultant figure rounded to the nearest whole percentage shall be known as the utilization ratio.

(2) For each percentage by which the utilization ratio calculated for the month pursuant to subparagraph (1) of this paragraph exceeds 130, subtract from, or for each percentage by which it is less than 125, add to, the Class I price, 1 cent.

(b) Class II milk price. The Class II milk price shall be the price determined pursuant to § 978.50 (c) plus 15 cents during the months of February through August, and plus 25 cents during all other months: Provided, That in no case shall such price exceed the basic formula price.

§ 978.52 Butterfat differentials to handlers. For milk containing more or less than 4.0 percent butterfat, the class prices for the month calculated pursuant to § 978.51 shall be increased or decreased, respectively, for each one-tenth percent variation in butterfat content at the appropriate rate determined as follows:

(a) Class I price. Multiply by 0.12 the average of the daily wholesale prices (using the midpoint of any price range as one price) of 92-score bulk creamery butter per pound at Chicago, as reported by the Department of Agriculture during the previous month, and round to the nearest one-tenth cent.

(b) Class II price. Multiply by 0.115 the average of the daily wholesale prices (using the midpoint of any price range as one price) of 92-score bulk creamery butter per pound at Chicago, as reported by the Department of Agriculture during the month, and round to the nearest one-tenth cent.

§ 978.53 Location differentials to handlers. For that milk which is received from producers at a fluid milk plant located outside the marketing area and 50 miles or more from the State Capitol, Nashville, Tennessee, by shortest hard-surfaced highway distance, as determined by the market administrator, and which is transferred to another fluid milk plant in the form of fluid milk products and assigned to Class I milk pursuant to the proviso of this section, or otherwise classified as Class I milk, the price specified in § 978.51 (a) shall be reduced at the rate set forth in the following schedule according to the location of the fluid milk plant where such milk is received from producers:

| | Rate per hundredweight (cents) |
|---|---|
| Distance from the State Capitol, Nashville, Tenn., (miles): | |
| 50 but not more than 60 | 10.0 |
| For each additional 10 miles or fraction thereof an additional | 1.5 |

Provided, That for purpose of calculating such location differential, fluid milk products which are transferred between fluid milk plants shall be assigned to any remainder of Class II milk in the plant to which transferred after making the calculations prescribed in § 978.45 (a) (1), (2) and (3), and the comparable steps in § 978.45 (b) for such plant, such assignment to the plant from which transferred to be made in sequence according to the location differential applicable at each plant, beginning with the plant having the largest differential.

DETERMINATION OF BASE

§ 978.60 Computation of daily average base for each producer. Subject to the rules set forth in § 978.61, the daily average base for each producer shall be an amount calculated by dividing the total pounds of producer milk received from such producer at all fluid milk plants during the months of August through January immediately preceding, by the number of days from the first day of delivery by such producer during such months to the last day of January, inclusive, or by 120, whichever is more.

§ 978.61 Base rules. The following rules shall apply in connection with the establishment and assignment of bases:

(a) Subject to the provisions of paragraph (b) of this section, the market administrator shall assign a base as calculated pursuant to § 978.60 to each person for whose account producer milk was delivered to fluid milk plants during the months of August through January.

(b) An entire base or any portion thereof shall be transferred from a person holding such base to any other person, effective as of the end of any month during which an application for such transfer is received by the market administrator, such application to be on forms approved by the market administrator, and signed by the baseholder, or his heirs, and by the person to whom such base is to be transferred: Provided, That if a base is held jointly, the entire base or any portion thereof shall be transferrable only upon the receipt of such application signed by all joint holders or their heirs.

§ 978.62 Announcement of established bases. On or before February 25 of each year, the market administrator shall notify each producer and the handler receiving milk from such producer of the daily average base established by such producer.

DETERMINATION OF UNIFORM PRICES

§ 978.70 Net obligation of handlers. The net obligation of each handler for producer milk received at his fluid milk plant(s) each month shall be a sum of money computed by the market administrator as follows: (a) Multiply the total pounds of such milk in each class by the applicable class price; (b) add together the resulting amounts; (c) add the amounts computed by multiplying the pounds of overage deducted from each class pursuant to § 978.45 (a) (6) and (b) by the applicable class price; and (d) add the amount computed by multiplying the difference between the appropriate Class II price for the preceding month and the appropriate Class I price for the current month by the hundredweight of skim milk and butterfat in Class II milk after making the calculations for such handler pursuant to § 978.45 (a) (4) and (b) for the preceding month, or by the hundredweight of milk subtracted from Class I milk pursuant to § 978.45 (a) (3) and (b) for the current month, whichever is less.

§ 978.71 Computation of uniform prices for handlers. For each of the months of August through January the market administrator shall compute a uniform price for the producer milk received by each handler as follows:

(a) Add to the amount computed for such handler pursuant to § 978.70, the sum of the location differential deductions to be made pursuant to § 978.82 (b);

(b) Add or subtract for each one-tenth percent that the average butterfat content of producer milk received by such handler is less or more, respectively, than 4.0 percent, an amount computed by multiplying such difference by the butterfat differential to producers, and multiplying the result by the total hundredweight of his producer milk;

(c) Add the amount remaining in the reserve fund for such handler;

(d) Divide the resulting amount by the total hundredweight of producer milk received by such handler; and

(e) Subtract not less than 4 cents nor more than 5 cents. The resulting figure shall be known as the uniform price for such handler for milk of 4.0 percent butterfat content, f. o. b. marketing area.

§ 978.72 Computation of the uniform price for base milk and for excess milk for handlers. For each of the months of February through July, the market administrator shall compute for each handler with respect to his producer milk a uniform price for base milk and for excess milk as follows:

(a) Add to the amount computed for such handler pursuant to § 978.70, the sum of the location differential deductions to be made pursuant to § 978.82 (b);

(b) Add or subtract for each one-tenth percent that the average butterfat content of producer milk received by such handler is less or more, respectively, than 4.0 percent, an amount computed by multiplying such difference by the butterfat differential to producers, and multiplying the result by the total hundredweight of his producer milk;

(c) Add the amount remaining in the reserve fund for such handler;

(d) Compute the value of excess milk on a 4.0 percent basis in the producer milk of such handler by multiplying the hundredweight of such milk not in excess of the total quantity of the Class II milk of such handler by the price for Class II milk of 4.0 percent butterfat content, multiplying the hundredweight of such milk in excess of the total quantity of such Class II milk of such handler by the price for Class I milk of 4.0 percent butterfat content and adding together resulting amounts;

(e) Divide the total value of excess milk obtained in paragraph (d) of this section by the total hundredweight of such milk and adjust to the nearest cent. The resulting figure shall be the uniform price for excess milk of 4.0 percent butterfat content f. o. b. marketing area;

(f) Subtract the value of excess milk determined by multiplying the uniform price obtained in paragraph (e) of this section, times the hundredweight of such excess milk from the total value of producer milk determined according to the calculations in paragraph (a) through (c) of this section; and

(g) Divide the amount obtained in paragraph (f) of this section by the total hundredweight of base milk in the producer milk of such handler and subtract not less than 4 cents nor more than 5 cents. The resulting figure shall be the uniform price for base milk of 4.0 percent butterfat content f. o. b. marketing area.

§ 978.73 Notification of handlers. On or before the 10th day after the end of each month, the market administrator shall mail to each handler, at his last known address, a statement showing:

(a) The amount of his producer milk allocated to each class;

(b) The calculation of such handler's net obligation pursuant to § 978.70;

(c) The uniform price(s) computed for such handler pursuant to §§ 978.71 and 978.72 and the producer butterfat differential computed pursuant to § 978.82 (a); and

(d) The amounts to be paid by such handler pursuant to §§ 978.80, 978.85 and 978.87.

PAYMENTS

§ 978.80 Payments to market administrator. (a) On or before the 25th day of each month each handler shall pay to the market administrator for deposit into the reserve fund for such handler a sum of money calculated by multiplying the hundredweight of producer milk received by him during the first 15 days of such month by the Class II price for the preceding month.

(b) On or before the 12th day after the end of each month, each handler shall pay to the market administrator for deposit into the handler's reserve fund an amount of money equal to such handler's net obligation for such month as determined pursuant to § 978.70 less payments made pursuant to paragraph (a) of this section for such month and less proper deductions authorized in writing by producers from whom such handler received milk.

§ 978.81 Payments to producers. (a) On or before the last day of each month, the market administrator shall make payment to each producer for milk received from such producer during the first 15 days of such month by handlers from whom the appropriate payments have been received pursuant to § 978.80 (a) at not less than the Class II price per hundredweight for the preceding month.

(b) On or before the 15th day after the end of each month, the market administrator shall make payment to each producer for milk received from such producer during the month by handlers from whom the appropriate payments have been received pursuant to § 978.80 (b) for each of the months of August through January, at not less than the uniform price for such handler, computed pursuant to § 978.71, or for each of the months of February through July, for base milk and excess milk received from such producer at not less than the uniform price(s) of such handler for base milk and excess milk, respectively, computed pursuant to § 978.72, subject to the following adjustments: (1) Butterfat and location differentials pursuant to § 978.82, (2) less payments made pursuant to paragraph (a) of this section, (3) less marketing service deductions pursuant to § 978.86, (4) less proper deductions authorized in writing by the producer, and (5) adjusted for any error in calculating payment to such individual producer for past months: Provided, That if the market administrator has not received full payment from any handler for such month, pursuant to § 978.80, he shall reduce uniformly per hundredweight his payments due such handler's producers for milk received by such handler by a total amount not in excess of the amount due from such handler: Provided further, That the market administrator shall make such balance of payment to such producers on or before the next date for making payments pursuant to this paragraph following that on which such balance of payment is received from such handler.

(c) In making payments to producers pursuant to paragraphs (a) and (b) of this section the market administrator shall pay, on or before the second day prior to the date payments are due to individual producers, to a cooperative association which is authorized to collect payment for milk of its members and from which a written request for such payment has been received, a total amount equal to, but not less than, the sum of the individual payments otherwise payable to such producers pursuant to this section.

§ 978.82 Butterfat and location differentials to producers. (a) The applicable uniform prices to be paid each producer pursuant to § 978.81 (b) shall be increased or decreased for each one-tenth of one percent which the average butterfat content of his milk is above or below 4.0 percent, respectively, at the rate determined by multiplying the average of the daily wholesale prices per pound of 92-score butter in the Chicago market as reported by the Department of Agriculture during the month in which the milk was received by 0.12 and adjusting to the nearest even one-tenth of a cent.

(b) In making payment to producers pursuant to § 978.81 (b), the applicable uniform prices to be paid for producer milk received at a fluid milk plant located 50 miles or more from the State Capitol, Nashville, Tennessee, by the shortest hard-surfaced highway distance as determined by the market administrator, shall be reduced according to the location of the fluid milk plant where such milk was received at the following rate:

| | Rate per hundredweight (cents) |
|---|---|
| Distance from the State Capitol, Nashville, Tenn. (miles): | |
| 50 but not more than 60 | 10.0 |
| For each additional 10 miles or fraction thereof an additional | 1.5 |

§ 978.83 Statement to producers. In making payments required by § 978.81 (b), the market administrator shall furnish each producer or cooperative association with a supporting statement in such form that it may be retained by the producer or cooperative association which shall show:

(a) The month and the identity of the handler and of the producer;

(b) The total pounds and the average butterfat content of milk delivered by the producer including for the months of February through July, the pounds of base milk and excess milk;

(c) The minimum rate or rates at which payment to the producer or cooperative association is required under the provisions of §§ 978.81 and 978.82;

(d) The amount or the rate per hundredweight of each deduction claimed by the handler including any deduction made pursuant to § 978.86, together with a description of the respective deductions; and

(e) The net amount of payment to the producer or cooperative association.

§ 978.84 Reserve funds. The market administrator shall maintain for each handler a reserve fund into which he shall deposit the appropriate payments made by such handler pursuant to §§ 978.80 and 978.87, and out of which he shall make the appropriate payments required for such handler pursuant to §§ 978.81 and 978.87.

§ 978.85 Expense of administration. As his pro rata share of this part, each handler shall pay to the market administrator, on or before the 15th day after the end of each month, 4 cents per hundredweight or such lesser amount as the Secretary may prescribe, with respect to receipts, during the month, of (a) producer milk (including such handler's own production), and (b) other source milk allocated to Class I milk pursuant to § 978.45.

§ 978.86 Marketing services. (a) Except as set forth in paragraph (b) of this section, each handler, in making payments to producers pursuant to § 978.81, shall deduct an amount not exceeding 6 cents per hundredweight or such lesser amount as the Secretary may prescribe, with respect to milk received by a handler(s) from producers during the month. Such moneys shall be paid to the market administrator on or before the 15th day after the end of each month and used by the market administrator to provide market information and to check the accuracy of the testing and weighing of their milk for producers who are not receiving such service from a cooperative association. Such services shall be performed in whole or in part by the market administrator or by an agent engaged by and responsible to him.

(b) In the case of producers who are members of a cooperative association which the Secretary determines is performing the services specified in paragraph (a) of this section for its members, each handler shall, in lieu of the deductions provided in paragraph (a) of this section, make such deductions as are authorized by such producers, and on or before the 15th day after the end of each month, pay the money so deducted to such cooperative association.

§ 978.87 Adjustment of accounts. Whenever audit by the market administrator of any handler's reports, books, records or accounts or other verification discloses errors, resulting in money due a producer or the market administrator from such handler, or due such handler from the market administrator, the market administrator shall promptly notify such handler of any amount so due and payment thereof shall be made on or before the next date for making payments set forth in the provisions under which such error occurred.

§ 978.88 Termination of obligations. The provisions of this section shall apply to any obligation under this part for the payment of money irrespective of when such obligation arose, except an obligation involved in an action instituted before March 1, 1950, under section 8c (15) (A) of the Act or before a court.

(a) The obligation of any handler to pay money required to be paid under the terms of this part, shall except as provided in paragraphs (b) and (c) of this section, terminate two years after the last day of the calendar month during which the market administrator receives the handler's utilization report on the milk involved in such obligations, unless within such two-year period the market administrator notifies the handler in writing that such money is due and payable. Service of such notice shall be complete upon mailing to the handler's last known address, and it shall contain but need not be limited to the following information:

(1) The amount of the obligation;

(2) The month(s) during which the milk, with respect to which the obligation exists, was received or handled; and

(3) If the obligation is payable to one or more producers or to an association of producers, the name of such producer(s) or association of producers, or if the obligation is payable to the market administrator, the account for which it is to be paid.

(b) If a handler fails or refuses, with respect to any obligation under this part, to make available to the market administrator or his representatives all books and records required by this part to be made available, the market administrator may within the two-year period provided for in paragraph (a) of this section, notify the handler in writing of such failure or refusal. If the market administrator so notifies a handler the said two-year period with respect to such obligation shall not begin to run until the first day of the calendar month following the month during which all such books and records pertaining to such obligation are made available to the market administrator or his representative.

(c) Notwithstanding the provisions of paragraphs (a) and (b) of this section, a handler's obligation under this part to pay money shall not be terminated with respect to any transaction involving fraud or willful concealment of a fact, material to the obligation, on the part of the handler against whom the obligation is sought to be imposed.

(d) Any obligation on the part of the market administrator to pay a handler any money which such handler claims to be due him under the terms of this part shall terminate two years after the end of the calendar month during which the milk involved in the claim was received if an an underpayment is claimed or two years after the end of the calendar month during which the payment (including deduction or set-off by the market administrator) was made by the handler if a refund on such payment is claimed, unless such handler, within the applicable period of time, files, pursuant to section 8c (15) (A) of the act, a petition claiming such money.

APPLICATION OF PROVISIONS

§ 978.90 Producer-handlers. Sections 978.40 through 978.45, 978.50 through 978.53, 978.60 through 978.62, 978.70 through 978.73, and 978.80 through 978.87 shall not apply to a producer-handler.

§ 978.91 Plants subject to other Federal orders. A plant specified in paragraph (a) or (b) of this section shall be treated as a nonfluid milk plant except that the operator of such plant shall, with respect to the total receipts and utilization or disposition of skim milk and butterfat at the plant, make reports to the market administrator at such time and in such manner as the market administrator may require (in lieu of the reports required pursuant to § 978.30), and allow verification of such reports by the market administrator.

(a) Any plant qualified pursuant to § 978.8 (a) which would otherwise be subject to the classification and pricing provisions of another order issued pursuant to the act, unless a greater volume of Class I milk is disposed of from such plant to retail or wholesale outlets (except fluid milk plants) in the Nashville marketing area than in the marketing area regulated pursuant to such other order.

(b) Any plant qualified pursuant to § 978.8 (b) or (c) which would be subject to the classification and pricing provisions of another order issued pursuant to the act, unless such plant qualified as a fluid milk plant pursuant to § 978.8 (c) for each of the preceding months of September through December.

§ 978.100 Effective time. The provisions of this part or any amendments to this part shall become effective at such time as the Secretary may declare and shall continue in force until suspended or terminated.

§ 978.101 Suspension or termination. The Secretary shall suspend or terminate any or all of the provisions of this part, whenever he finds that it obstructs or does not tend to effectuate the declared policy of the Act. This part shall, in any event, terminate whenever the provisions of the Act authorizing it cease to be in effect.

§ 978.102 Continuing power and duty of the market administrator. (a) If, upon the suspension or termination of any or all of the provisions of this part, there are any obligations arising under this part, the final accrual or ascertainment of which requires further acts by any handler, by the market administrator, or by any other person, the power and duty to perform such further acts shall continue notwithstanding such suspension or termination: Provided, That any such acts required to be performed by the market administrator, shall, if the Secretary so directs, be performed by such other person, persons, or agency as the Secretary may designate.

(b) The market administrator, or such other person as the Secretary may designate, shall (1) continue in such capacity until discharged by the Secretary; (2) from time to time account for all receipts and disbursements and deliver all funds or property on hand, together with the books and records of the market administrator, or such person, to such person as the Secretary shall direct; and (3) if so directed by the Secretary execute such assignments or other instruments necessary or appropriate to vest in such person full title to all funds, property, and claims vested in the market administrator or such person pursuant thereto.

§ 978.103 Liquidation after suspension or termination. Upon the suspension or termination of any or all provisions of this part, the market administrator, or such person as the Secretary may designate, shall, if so directed by the Secretary, liquidate the business of the market administrator's office, and dispose of all funds and property then in his possession or under his control, together with claims for any funds which are unpaid or owing at the time of such suspension or termination. Any funds collected pursuant to the provisions of this part, over and above the amounts necessary to meet outstanding obligations and the expenses necessarily incurred by the market administrator, or such person in liquidating and distributing such funds, shall be distributed to the contributing handlers and producers in an equitable manner.

Food and Drug Administration

[ 21 CFR Part 130 ]

DRUGS EXEMPTED FROM PRESCRIPTION-DISPENSING REQUIREMENTS OF SECTION 503 (b) (1) (C) OF THE FEDERAL FOOD, DRUG, AND COSMETIC ACT

NOTICE OF PROPOSED RULE MAKING

Notice is given that the Commissioner of Food and Drugs, in accordance with the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act (secs. 503 (b) (3), 505 (c), 701 (a); 65 Stat. 649, 52 Stat. 1052, 1055; 21 U. S. C. 353 (b) (3), 355 (c), 371 (a)) and the authority delegated to him by the Secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare (21 CFR 1.108 (c)) hereby offers an opportunity to all interested persons to submit their views in writing to the Hearing Clerk, Department of Health, Education, and Welfare, Room 5440, 330 Independence Avenue SW., Washington 25, D. C., within 30 days from the date of publication of this notice in the FEDERAL REGISTER on the proposed amendment set forth below:

It is proposed to amend paragraph (a) of § 130.1 Exemption for certain drugs limited by new-drug applications to prescription sale by adding the following new subparagraphs (13) and (14):

(13) Sulfur dioxide preparations meeting all the following conditions:

(i) The sulfur dioxide is prepared, with or without other drugs, in an aqueous solution packaged in a hermetic container suitable for use in self-medication by external application to the skin, and containing no drug limited to prescription sale under the provisions of section 503 (b) (1) of the act.

(ii) The sulfur dioxide and all other components of the preparation meet their professed standards of identity, strength, quality, and purity.

(iii) If the preparation is a new drug, an application pursuant to section 505 (b) of the act is effective for it.

(iv) The preparation contains not more than 5 grams of sulfur dioxide per 100 milliliters of solution.

(v) The preparation is labeled with adequate directions for use by external application to the smooth skin in the prevention or treatment of minor conditions in which it is indicated.

(vi) The directions for use recommend or suggest not more than two applications a day for not more than 1 week, except as directed by a physician.

(14) Doxylamine succinate preparations meeting all the following conditions:

(i) The doxylamine succinate is prepared, with or without other drugs, in tablet or other dosage form suitable for oral use in self-medication, and containing no drug limited to prescription sale under the provisions of section 503 (b) (1) of the act.

(ii) The doxylamine succinate and all other components of the preparation meet their professed standards of identity, strength, quality, and purity.

(iii) If the preparation is a new drug, an application pursuant to section 505 (b) of the act is effective for it.

(iv) The preparation contains not more than 7.5 milligrams of doxylamine succinate per dosage unit, or if it is in liquid form not more than 1.5 milligrams of doxylamine succinate per milliliter.

(v) The preparation is labeled with adequate directions for use in the temporary relief of the symptoms of the minor conditions in which it is indicated.

(vi) The dosages recommended or suggested in the labeling do not exceed: For adults, 7.5 milligrams of doxylamine succinate per dose or 45 milligrams of doxylamine succinate per 24-hour period; for children 6 to 12 years of age, one-half of the maximum adult dose or dosage.

(vii) The labeling bears in juxtaposition with the dosage recommendations:

(a) Clear warning statements against administration of the drug to children under 6 years of age, except as directed by a physician, and against driving a car or operating machinery while using the drug, since it may cause drowsiness.

(b) If the article is offered for temporary relief of the symptoms of colds, a statement that continued administration for such use should not exceed 3 days, except as directed by a physician.

The proposed amendment will remove the drugs mentioned therein from the prescription-dispensing requirements of the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act (sec. 503 (b) (1) (C), 52 Stat. 1052, 65 Stat. 649; 21 U. S. C. 353 (b) (1) (C)). These drugs were previously limited by their new-drug applications to use under professional supervision because the scientific data establishing the toxic potential of the drugs and their intended use showed only that they were safe if used under professional supervision.

Pursuant to the regulations in § 1.108 (c) of this chapter (21 CFR 1.108 (c)), petitions have been submitted to remove the prescription restrictions from these drugs. Evidence now available through investigation and marketing experience shows that the drugs can be safely used by the laity in self-medication if they are used in accordance with the proposed labeling. The restriction to prescription sale is no longer necessary for the protection of the public health.

This action in removing the prior restriction limiting these drugs to prescription sale is taken under the authority of the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act (secs. 503 (b) (3), 505 (c), 52 Stat. 1052, 65 Stat. 649; 21 U. S. C. 353 (b) (3), 355 (c)), which provides for and requires the removal of such restrictions if they are not necessary for the protection of the public health.

Dated: March 30, 1956.

[SEAL] GEO. P. LARRICK,
Commissioner of Food and Drugs.

NATURAL GAS PIPELINE COMPANY OF AMERICA AND MICHIGAN WISCONSIN PIPE LINE CO.

NOTICE OF APPLICATION AND DATE OF HEARING

MARCH 30, 1956.

Natural Gas Pipeline Company of America (Natural) and Michigan Wisconsin Pipe Line Company (Michigan Wisconsin), Applicants, both Delaware corporations with their principal places of business located at Chicago, Illinois, and Detroit, Michigan, respectively, filed on March 7, 1956, a joint application for a certificate of public convenience and necessity pursuant to section 7 of the Natural Gas Act, authorizing the interconnection of certain natural gas transmission pipelines of the Applicants and authorizing the operation of such facilities as hereinafter described, subject to the jurisdiction of the Commission, all as more fully represented in their joint application which is on file with the Commission and open for public inspection.

(1) Interconnect the 24-inch parallel pipelines of Natural and the 24-inch pipeline of Michigan Wisconsin which intersect at a point in the Northeast Quarter of Section 10, Township 16 North, Range 7 East, near Princeton, Bureau County, Illinois, by installing meter runs consisting of one joint of 12-inch pipe at the above proposed interconnection site.

(2) Interconnect the 20-inch lateral pipeline of Natural, extending from near Geneseo, Illinois, to a point on the Illinois-Wisconsin State line, and the 22-inch lateral pipeline of Michigan Wisconsin extending from Wisconsin Junction to near Milwaukee, Wisconsin, which intersect at a point in the Northwest Quarter of Section 13, Township 45 North, Range 6 East, near Woodstock, McHenry County, Illinois, by installing one joint of 8-inch pipe at the above proposed interconnection site.

Applicants state that said sections of pipe were placed at the respective sites of interconnection at the time of construction of Michigan Wisconsin's pipeline system in 1949 and that pursuant to Commission authorization these facilities were used to exchange gas between these Applicants from September 1, 1949, to March 1, 1950, and following this exchange, these facilities were disconnected and have not been used since and that the two interconnections will be made by either or both of Applicants at no additional cost.

Applicants propose to use these interconnections in the event of emergencies arising on either's system.

In addition, Natural also requests a certificate of public convenience and necessity herein authorizing the sale of natural gas by it to Michigan Wisconsin at the Woodstock delivery point only during a period ending on October 31, 1956.

Natural states that at various times during the period commencing April 1, 1956 and ending October 31, 1956, it will have gas available for sale and delivery to Michigan Wisconsin, at the proposed interconnection of pipeline facilities of the two Applicants near Woodstock, McHenry County, Illinois, after having fulfilled all requests of Natural's customers for gas service during such period, and that such gas may be made available in quantities not exceeding 60,000 Mcf on any one day.

Michigan Wisconsin states that it has advised Natural that during said period it desires to purchase from Natural such additional quantities of natural gas as it may from time to time during such period be able to take for the purpose of placing gas in storage in its four storage fields in Michigan for the purpose of affording added protection to its firm customers.

Michigan Wisconsin also states that the purchase of this gas will not increase its customer sales during the individual months of the purchase period and that it proposes to charge off the cost of this gas currently during the purchase period in order to eliminate possible adjustments therefor in future rate filings.

Applicants state that the normal pressure maintained and to be maintained on Michigan Wisconsin's 22-inch pipeline at said point of interconnection in McHenry County, Illinois, during said period is 550 psig, and the normal operating pressure maintained on Natural's 20-inch pipeline at said point of interconnection is 625 psig. In making the proposed sale and delivery, Applicants aver that the interconnection facilities hereinbefore described will be utilized, and, in addition, Natural proposes to install an automatic regulator at a total estimated cost of $3,000 to be used in making such delivery.

Natural proposes to make said sale and delivery to Michigan Wisconsin pursuant to a proposed new rate schedule, designated Rate Schedule I–2, under a service agreement to be executed in the form now contained in Natural's FPC Gas Tariff. The proposed new rate is 26.35 cents per Mcf.

This matter is one that should be disposed of as promptly as possible under the applicable rules and regulations and to that end:

SECURITIES AND EXCHANGE COMMISSION

AMERICAN INVESTMENT & DEVELOPMENT CO.

MEMORANDUM OPINION AND ORDER REVOKING BROKER-DEALER REGISTRATION

MARCH 30, 1956.

Proceedings were instituted pursuant to section 15 (b) of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 ("the act") to determine whether American Investment & Development Company ("registrant") registered as a broker and dealer under section 15 (a) of the act, willfully violated section 17 (a) of the act and Rule X-17A-5 thereunder and, is so, whether it is in the public interest to revoke its registration.[2]

Copies of the notice and order for hearing were sent by registered mail to registrant and to its president. The order was also duly published in the FEDERAL REGISTER.[3] Registrant did not appear in person or by representative on the date set for the hearing.

Registrant was specifically notified at the time it was advised that its registration had become effective, of the requirement of Rule X-17A-5 that a report of financial condition be filed with this Commission during each calendar year. Upon review of the record in this proceeding, we find that the registrant failed to file the required report of financial condition for the year 1954 thereby violating section 17 (a) of the act and Rule X-17A-5 thereunder. We conclude also that such violation was willful within the meaning of section 15 (b) of the act.

On the basis of the foregoing, we are of the opinion that it is in the public interest to revoke the registration of the registrant.

Accordingly, it is ordered, That the registration of American Investment & Development Company be, and the same is, revoked.

By the Commission.

ORDER MODIFYING EXEMPTION AND PRIOR APPROVAL OF INDIRECT ACQUISITION OF SECURITIES

MARCH 30, 1956.

The Commission having by order dated December 14, 1954, among other things, (a) granted an application for exemption to W. R. Stephens Investment Company, Inc., on behalf of itself as a holding company and its subsidiary, Arkansas Louisiana Gas Company, a public-utility company, from the provisions of the Public Utility Holding Company Act of 1935 ("act"); and (b) granted an application of W. R. Stephens for approval of the indirect acquisition by him of the common stock of Arkansas Louisiana Gas Company being acquired by W. R. Stephens Investment Company, Inc.; and

The Commission having, pursuant to the applicable provisions of the act, particularly sections 3 (a) (4), 3 (c), and 20 (a) thereof, instituted a proceeding to determine whether the continuation of said exemption is detrimental to the public interest or the interest of investors or consumers and whether the circumstances which gave rise to the issuance of the order of December 14, 1954 no longer exist, and, generally, whether said order should be revoked or in any way modified or amended; and

A hearing having been held after appropriate notice at which W. R. Stephens Investment Company, Inc., and W. R. Stephens were heard; and the Commission having considered the record and having entered its memorandum findings and opinion herein, and deeming it appropriate in the public interest and the interest of investors and consumers to modify the exemption previously granted W. R. Stephens Investment Company, Inc., on behalf of itself as a holding company and to its subsidiary company, Arkansas Louisiana Gas Company, and to modify the order approving the application filed by W. R. Stephens:

It is ordered, That the order of the Commission dated December 14, 1954, granting to W. R. Stephens Investment Company, Inc., on behalf of itself as a holding company, and to its subsidiary, Arkansas Louisiana Gas Company, exemption from the provisions of the Public Utility Holding Company Act of 1935 be, and is hereby, modified so that in the event (a) Arkansas Louisiana Gas Company proposes to engage in any transaction which would require the filing of an application or declaration if Arkansas Louisiana Gas Company were a subsidiary of a registered holding company or (b) W. R. Stephens Investment Company, Inc. proposes to engage in any transaction with respect to, or affecting its interest in, Arkansas Louisiana Gas Company which transaction would require the filing of an application or declaration if W. R. Stephens Investment Company, Inc. were a registered holding company, then Arkansas Louisiana Gas Company or W. R. Stephens Investment Company, Inc., or both, as the case may be, shall give this Commission not less than fifteen (15) days' written notice of such proposal, and if upon receipt of any such notice, this Commission determines that an application or declaration should be filed with respect thereto, an appropriate application or declaration shall be filed and the proposed transaction will not be consummated unless and until such application is granted or such declaration is permitted to become effective.

It is further ordered, That the order of the Commission dated December 14, 1954 granting the application of W. R. Stephens for approval of the indirect acquisition by him of the common stock of Arkansas Louisiana Gas Company be, and is hereby, modified so that in the event W. R. Stephens proposes the acquisition or disposition, directly or indirectly, of any of the securities or assets of Arkansas Louisiana Gas Company, then he shall give the Commission not less than fifteen (15) days' written notice of such proposal, and if upon receipt of any such notice, this Commission determines that an application or declaration should be filed with respect thereto, an appropriate application or declaration shall be filed and the proposed transaction will not be consummated unless and until such application is granted or such declaration is permitted to become effective.

By the Commission.

[1] Commissioner Digby dissenting.

[2] Section 15 (b) provides in part: "The Commission shall, after appropriate notice and opportunity for hearing, by order * * * revoke the registration of any broker or dealer if it finds that such * * * revocation is in the public interest and that (1) such broker or dealer * * * (D) has willfully violated any provision * * * of this title, or of any rule or regulation thereunder."

Rule X-17A-5 adopted pursuant to section 17 (a) of the act provides, among other things, that every registered broker or dealer must file with this Commission a report of financial condition during each calendar year.

COLORADO MINING CORP. ET AL.

ORDER TEMPORARILY SUSPENDING EXEMPTIONS, STATEMENT OF REASONS THEREFOR, AND NOTICE OF OPPORTUNITY FOR HEARING

In the matter of Colorado Mining Corporation, File No. 24D-1164; Colorado Mining Corporation for John M. Schlesinger, Melville Boyd, Azamat Guirey, George E. Roberts, Robert Reed, L. D. Friedman & Co., Inc., selling stockholders (File No. 24D-1392).

I. Colorado Mining Corporation, 424 University Building, Denver 2, Colorado ("issuer"), having filed with the Commission on August 3, 1953, a notification on Form 1-A and having subsequently filed amendments thereto relating to a public offering of 299,000 shares of common stock of the issuer, par value 10 cents, at $1.00 per share; and Colorado Mining Corporation for John M. Schlesinger, 400 St. James Street, W., Montreal, P. Q., Canada; Melville Boyd, 146 North Grove Street, East Orange, New Jersey; Azamat Guirey, 370 Park Avenue, New York, New York; George E. Roberts, Sherman Plaza Apartments, Denver, Colorado; Robert Reed, 465 St. Johns Street, Montreal, P. Q., Canada; and L. D. Friedman & Co., Inc., 52 Broadway, New York 4, New York, as selling stockholders, having filed with the Commission on August 23, 1954, a notification on Form 1-A and having subsequently filed amendments thereto relating to a proposed public offering of 300,000 shares of common stock of the issuer, par value 10 cents, at the estimated market value of $1.00 per share to be sold by and on behalf of the selling stockholders, for the purpose of obtaining an exemption from the registration requirements of the Securities Act of 1933, as amended, pursuant to the provisions of section 3 (b) thereof and Regulation A promulgated thereunder; and

II. A. The Commission having been advised that a permanent injunction was issued on December 23, 1955, in the New York Supreme Court for New York County against Colorado Mining Corporation permanently enjoining it from directly or indirectly engaging in any business relating to the purchase or sale of securities; and

B. The Commission having reasonable cause to believe:

1. That the terms and conditions of Regulation A have not been complied with in that the offering circular filed by and on behalf of the issuer and the notification and offering circular filed by the issuer on behalf of the selling stockholders contain untrue statements of material facts and omit to state material facts necessary in order to make the statements made, in the light of the circumstances under which they were made, not misleading, particularly with respect to the following:

a. The statement in each offering circular that 1,000,000 shares of common stock of the issuer were issued for property, whereas 500,000 of such shares were turned over to promoters and did not represent consideration for the value of the mining claims;

b. The failure to state in the offering circular on behalf of the selling stockholders that on December 23, 1955, the Supreme Court of the State of New York, County of New York, appointed a receiver of any and all property derived by the issuer by means of fraudulent practices and permanently enjoined the issuer from engaging in any business relating to the purchase or sale of securities within and from the State of New York; and

c. The statement in the notification and offering circular on behalf of the selling stockholders that L. D. Friedman & Co., Inc., is underwriter of the securities to be offered, whereas L. D. Friedman & Co., Inc., has terminated its underwriting agreement with the selling stockholders;

2. That the offerings of securities by the issuer and on behalf of the selling stockholders would and did operate as a fraud and deceit upon any purchasers;

III. It is ordered, Pursuant to Rule 223 (a) of the general rules and regulations under the Securities Act of 1933, as amended, that the exemptions under Regulation A be, and they hereby are, temporarily suspended.

Notice is hereby given, that any person having any interest in these matters may file with the Secretary of the Commission a written request for a hearing; that, within twenty days after receipt of such request, the Commission will, or at any time upon its own motion may, set the matters down for hearing at a place to be designated by the Commission for the purpose of determining whether this order of suspension should be vacated or made permanent, without prejudice, however, to the consideration and presentation of additional matters at the hearing; and that notice of the time and place of said hearing will be promptly given by the Commission.

It is further ordered, That this order and notice shall be served upon Colorado Mining Corporation, 424 University Building, Denver 2, Colorado; Baruch & Co., Inc., 44 Wall Street, New York 5, New York; John M. Schlesinger, 400 St. James Street, West, Montreal, Province of Quebec, Canada; Melville Boyd, 146 North Grove Street, East Orange, New Jersey; Azamat Guirey, 370 Park Avenue, New York, New York; George E. Roberts, Sherman Plaza Apartments, Denver, Colorado; Robert Reed, 465 St. Johns Street, Montreal, Province of Quebec, Canada; L. D. Friedman & Co., Inc., 52 Broadway, New York 4, New York; and Registrar and Transfer Company, 15 Exchange Place, Jersey City, New Jersey; personally or by registered mail or confirmed telegraphic notice, and shall be published in the FEDERAL REGISTER.

By the Commission.

In the matter of The Continental Import & Export Company, N. V., Stadhouderskade 51, Amsterdam, Netherlands, Appeals Board, Docket FC-27, BFC Case No. 201.

Following examination of the Order Revoking Export Licenses and Denying Export Privileges, dated October 28, 1955, and the extensive documentation of record in this matter, the Appeals Board closely questioned counsel for the Bureau of Foreign Commerce at an Appeals Board hearing on the record in an endeavor to develop information that might justify a modification of the order in favor of the appellant. Not finding justification for any modification of the order, the Appeals Board finds that the order should be sustained.

CALIFORNIA

SMALL TRACT CLASSIFICATION

MARCH 26, 1956.

1. Pursuant to authority delegated to me by the California State Supervisor, Bureau of Land Management, under Part II, Document 4, California State Office, dated November 19, 1954 (19 F. R. 7697), I hereby classify, under the Small Tract Act of June 1, 1938, as amended (43 U. S. C. 682a), the tract of land in San Bernardino County described below, for lease and sale for residence site purposes only:

SAN BERNARDINO BASE AND MERIDIAN

T. 1 N., R. 7 E.,
Section 6, NE¼ (Lots 3 to 10, 27 to 34, 35 to 42, 59 to 66, incl.)

The land contains a total of 158.51 acres.

2. Classification of the above-described lands by this order segregates them from all appropriations, including location under the mining laws, except as to application under the mineral leasing laws.

3. The above-described land is situated approximately 6 miles north of Joshua Tree, California. The land has been surveyed with Government brass cap corners set at the section corner, one-quarter and one-sixteenth corners.

The greater portion of the land is fairly level to undulating, with some low hills in the eastern and northeastern areas. The soil is a loose, coarse sand to coarse loamy sand in the level areas, to scattered cobbles in the low hills.

4. The individual tracts, described as numbered lots or aliquot part thereof, vary in size from 2½ acres to 4.88 acres, and are square to rectangular in shape. Lots 3 to 10, inclusive, will be leased in whole lots. The remaining lots will be leased in 2½-acre parcels, requiring that the preference-right applicants of record select, upon request by the Bureau of Land Management, the 2½-acre parcel of the lot they wish to retain. A plat showing the location of each lot can be secured from the Bureau of Land Management, Room 706 California Fruit Building, 4th and J Streets, Sacramento 14, California.

The appraised value of the lots or aliquot parts thereof value from $100 to $200, as shown below. The tracts will be subject to all existing rights-of-way; and rights-of-way for access roads and public utilities will be reserved as shown below. Such rights-of-way may be utilized by the Federal Government or the State, County, or municipality in which the tract is located, or by any agency thereof.

5. Leases will be issued for a term of three (3) years and will contain an option to purchase in accordance with 43 CFR 257.13. Lessees who comply with the general terms and conditions of their leases will be permitted to purchase their tracts at the prices listed above provided that during the period of their leases they (a) construct the improvements specified in paragraph 6 or (b) file a copy of an agreement in accordance with 43 CFR 257.13 (d). Leases will not be renewable unless failure to construct the required improvements is justified under the circumstances and nonrenewal would work an extreme hardship on the lessee.

6. To maintain their rights under their leases, lessees will be required either (a) to construct substantial improvements on their leases or (b) file a copy of an agreement with their neighbors binding them to construct substantial improvements on their lands. Such improvements must conform with health, sanitation, and construction requirements of local ordinances, and must in addition meet the following standards:

The residence must be suitable for year-round use, erected on a permanent foundation and with a minimum of 400 square feet of floor space. The residence must be built in a workmanlike manner and of attractive materials properly finished. Adequate disposal and sanitary facilities must be installed. Conventional concrete, or concrete slab foundations are acceptable. Concrete piers are not acceptable as foundations.

7. The lands are now open to filing of drawing-entry cards (form 4–775) only by persons entitled to veterans' preference. In brief, persons entitled to such preference are (a) honorably discharged veterans who have served in the armed forces of the United States for a period of at least 90 days after September 15, 1940, (b) surviving spouse or minor orphan children of such veterans, and (c) with the consent of the veteran, the spouse of living veterans. It appearing that on March 22, 1956, petitions were filed by agents and attorneys for and on behalf of eastern and western railroads named therein for authority to depart from the Commission's tariff publishing rules to the extent necessary to enable them to publish a general increase approximating 5 percent in passenger fares and charges, exclusive of commutation fares; and for modification of all outstanding orders of the Commission to the extent necessary to permit only the publication of the aforesaid increase in fares and charges.

It further appearing that by order of March 26, 1956, the Commission granted such special permission and modified all outstanding orders only to the extent necessary to permit the filing of tariffs containing the proposed increased fares and charges, subject to protest, suspension or rejection and stated: "That an investigation will be instituted into the lawfulness of the proposed increased fares and charges and a hearing afforded:"

And it further appearing that on March 30, 1956, the railroads filed their tariffs containing the general increases in passenger fares and charges above described to become effective May 1, 1956, together with statements of the railroads in justification of the proposed increases and application for fourth section relief and modification of outstanding orders, and with supporting verified statements and exhibits attached; and that the railroads will furnish copies of these statements in justification and verified statements to any interested party upon request, in writing, addressed to Mr. Richard R. In the matter of relief under section 22 of the Interstate Commerce Act.

It appearing that by reason of a prolonged drouth existing in the State of Texas, the Acting Secretary of Agriculture by letter dated March 29, 1956, has requested the Commission to enter an order under section 22 of the Interstate Commerce Act authorizing railroads subject to the Commission's jurisdiction to transport livestock and livestock feed from and to Texas at reduced rates:

It is ordered, That carriers by railroad participating in the transportation of livestock feed to, and livestock from, Texas, and in the subsequent return of livestock to Texas, be, and they are hereby, authorized under section 22 of the Interstate Commerce Act to establish and maintain until September 30, 1956, reduced rates for such transportation, the rates to be published and filed in the manner prescribed in section 6 of the Interstate Commerce Act except that they may be made effective one day after publication and filing instead of thirty.

It is further ordered, That the class of persons entitled to such reduced rates is hereby defined as persons designated as being in distress and in need of relief by the United States Department of Agriculture or by such State agents or agencies as may in turn be designated by the United States Department of Agriculture to assist in relieving the distress caused by the drouth.

It is further ordered, That during the period in which any reduced rates authorized by this order are effective the carriers may, notwithstanding the provisions of section 4 of the Interstate Commerce Act, maintain higher rates to directly intermediate points and maintain through rates in excess of the aggregate of intermediate rates over the same routes if one or more of the factors of such aggregate-of-intermediate rates is a reduced rate established under the authority of this order.

And it is further ordered, That any tariffs or tariff provisions published under the authority of this order shall explicitly so state, making reference to this order by number and date.

And it is further ordered, That notice to the affected railroads and the general public shall be given by depositing a copy of this order in the office of the Secretary of the Commission and by filing a copy with the Director, Division of the Federal Register; and that copies be mailed to the Chairman of the Traffic Executive Association-Eastern Railroads, New York, N. ## TITLE 6—AGRICULTURAL CREDIT

Chapter III—Farmers Home Administration, Department of Agriculture

Subchapter E—Account Servicing

[FHA Instruction 451.1]

PART 361—ROUTINE

SUBPART A—ACCOUNT SERVICING POLICIES

REAMORTIZING DIRECT SOIL AND WATER CONSERVATION ACCOUNTS

Section 361.8 (h) in Title 6, Code of Federal Regulations (20 F. R. 9296), is hereby amended to include regulations for reamortizing direct Soil and Water Conservation accounts, and to read as follows:

§ 361.8 Other account servicing information on Farm Ownership, Soil and Water Conservation, Other Real Estate, and Farm Housing accounts. * * *

(h) Reamortizing direct Farm Ownership, Farm Housing, and direct Soil and Water Conservation accounts. (1) Direct Farm Ownership accounts will be reamortized when required by § 333.4 of this chapter in connection with making a subsequent Farm Ownership loan when a borrower whose loan was approved prior to November 1, 1946, and who signed Form FSA–LE–228 has such agreement canceled unless immediate foreclosure proceedings are recommended or the borrower was on or ahead of schedule as of the previous installment due date and is not obtaining a subsequent direct loan, and when a borrower who is not behind schedule and has made extra principal payments and refunds totaling 10 percent or more of his Farm Ownership loan, executes Form FHA–176, "Request for Reamortization of Farm Ownership Loan," and the State Director determines that the borrower is likely to have difficulty in meeting his obligations unless his account is reamortized. The unpaid principal, and future interest thereon at the rate specified in the note(s), will be reamortized so as to retire the debt in equal annual installments from the date of reamortization to the maturity date of the note(s). The unpaid accrued interest as of the date of reamortization will be divided into the same number of equal annual installments as indicated in the previous sentence. The revised annual installment will be the sum of the two annual installments mentioned in the two preceding sentences. However, each payment on such reamortized account will be applied first to unpaid interest and second to principal. The borrower's account will be on schedule as of the last installment due date preceding the date of reamortization. The installment due date will be March 31 for borrrowers whose entire Farm Ownership indebtedness is based on notes with December 31 due dates with 90-day grace periods, and borrowers who have an outstanding Farm Ownership note with March 31 due dates. The installment due date for other borrowers will be January 1. When the revised amortization schedule has been calculated, the Finance Office will notify the County Supervisor, who will notify the borrower of the change. It will not be necessary to obtain a new note(s) or to change the face value of the original note(s).

(2) Farm Housing and direct Soil and Water Conservation accounts will be reamortized when a borrower who is not behind schedule and has made extra principal payments and refunds totaling 10 percent or more of his loan, requests reamortization on Form FHA–176, and the State Director determines that the borrower is likely to have difficulty in meeting his obligations unless his account is reamortized. Reamortization of Farm Housing and direct Soil and Water Conservation accounts will be calculated in accordance with subparagraph (1) of this paragraph. The borrower's account will be on schedule as of the last installment due date preceding the date of reamortization. When the revised amortization schedule has been calculated, the Finance Office will notify the County Supervisor, who will make a notation thereof on the back of the original note, change the amount of the annual installment appearing in the heading of Form FHA–473B, and notify the borrower of the change. It will not be necessary to obtain a new note or to change the face value of the original note.

PART 76—HOG CHOLERA, SWINE PLAGUE AND OTHER COMMUNICABLE SWINE DISEASES

CHANGES IN AREAS QUARANTINED

Pursuant to the provisions of sections 1 and 3 of the act of March 3, 1905, as amended (21 U. S. C. 123, 125), sections 1 and 2 of the act of February 2, 1903, as amended (21 U. S. C. 111–113, 120), and section 7 of the act of May 29, 1884, as amended (21 U. S. C. 117), § 76.27, as amended, Subpart B, Part 76, Title 9, Code of Federal Regulations (21 F. R. 3417, 786, 1165, 1461, 1743), which contains a notice with respect to the States in which swine are affected with vesicular exanthema, a contagious, infectious, and communicable disease, and which quarantines certain areas in such States because of said disease, is hereby further amended in the following respects:

1. A new subdivision (vii) is added to subparagraph (1) of paragraph (d), relating to Atlantic County in New Jersey, to read:

(vii) Farm No. 644, Gloucester Farm and Town Association Subdivision, Galloway Township, owned and operated by Frank Tortello.

2. A new subdivision (xiv) is added to subparagraph (2) of paragraph (d), relating to Burlington County in New Jersey, to read:

(xiv) Cinnaminson Township.

3. New subdivision (lxxiii) and (lxxiv) are added to subparagraph (5) of paragraph (d), relating to Gloucester County in New Jersey, to read:

(lxxiii) Mantua Township.

(lxxiv) Lot 32, Block 233, in Deptford Township, owned and operated by William Cormany.

4. A new subdivision (xix) is added to subparagraph (9) of paragraph (d), relating to Monmouth County in New Jersey, to read:

(xix) Lot 32 D, Block 11, in Marlboro Township, owned by Mary F. Wilson Burrows, operated by Thomas Burrows.

Effective date. The foregoing amendment shall become effective upon issuance.

The amendment excludes certain areas in New Jersey from the areas heretofore quarantined because of vesicular exanthema. Hereafter, the restrictions pertaining to the interstate movement of swine, and carcasses, parts and offal of swine, from or through quarantined areas, contained in 9 CFR, 1954 Supp., Part 76, Subpart B, as amended, will not apply to such areas. However, the restrictions pertaining to such movement from non-quarantined areas, contained in said Subpart B, as amended, will apply thereto.

The amendment relieves certain restrictions presently imposed, and must be made effective immediately to be of maximum benefit to persons subject to the restrictions which are relieved. Accordingly, under section 4 of the Administrative Procedure Act (5 U. S. C. 1003), it is found upon good cause that notice and other public procedure with respect to the amendment are impracticable and contrary to the public interest, and the amendment may be made effective less than 30 days after publication in the FEDERAL REGISTER.

(Sec. 7, 23 Stat. 32, as amended, secs. 1, 2, 32 Stat. 791–792, as amended, secs. 1, 3, 33 Stat. 1264, as amended, 1265, as amended; 21 U. S. C. 111–113, 117, 120, 123, 125)

Notice and public procedure are not necessary prerequisites to the promulgation of this order, and I so find, since it was drawn in collaboration with interested members of the affected industry, since it conditionally relaxes existing requirements, and since it would be against public interest to delay providing for the amendments set forth above.

I further find the antibiotic drugs covered by amendment 9, above, need not comply with the requirements of sections 502 (1) and 507 of the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act, in order to insure their safety and efficacy, provided they comply with paragraph (f) of § 146b.115.

CONVERSION FROM MILES PER HOUR TO KNOTS

The purpose of this supplement is to convert performance limitations data applicable to large aircraft from miles per hour to knots in accordance with § 42.22a (d) (14 CFR Part 42). Revision of the following rules does not impose any additional burden upon interested persons, and no useful purpose would be served by compliance with the notice, procedures, and effective date provisions of section 4 of the Administrative Procedure Act. Therefore, compliance is unnecessary and is not required.

Sections 42.80–1 through 42.80–5; 42.80–7 and 42.80–8 are revised to read as follows:

§ 42.80–1 Performance data on Curtiss model C46 aircraft certificated for maximum weights of 45,000 pounds to 48,000 pounds (CAA rules which apply to § 42.80). The following performance limitations data, applicable to the Curtiss model C46 aircraft shall be used in determining compliance with § 42.80. § 42.80–8 Performance data—operations from sod runway surfaces (CAA rules which apply to § 42.80)—(a) General. The performance limitation data and information contained herein, are adopted to provide a comparable level of safety between operations utilizing sod surfaced runways and those utilizing paved surfaced runways. There are, of course, numerous types of runway surfaces which are neither paved nor sod. Obviously, it is not feasible at this time to categorize all of the runway surfaces and to establish specific correction factors for operations from them. Therefore, all runways which are not paved shall be regarded as sod runways, and the limitations data herein shall be applied to such runways, except in those individual cases where the Administrator finds that a particular runway surface is such as to justify the use of a specific correction factor.

(b) Takeoff limitation data. In computing the maximum allowable takeoff weights for operations from sod runways, the takeoff weight tables contained in §§ 42.80–1, 42.80–2, 42.80–3, 42.80–4, 42.80–5 or 42.80–7 shall be used in the following manner:

(1) Where the effective length of a sod runway has been established, the maximum allowable takeoff weight shall be the lesser gross weight as determined by application of the effective length to the appropriate takeoff table (a) and by application of the actual runway length to the corresponding takeoff table (b). Takeoff table (a) is used to determine the maximum allowable gross weight which will permit the aircraft to take off within the effective runway length, while table (b) is used to determine the maximum allowable gross weight which will permit the particular aircraft to be accelerated and brought to a full stop within the actual length of available runway.

(2) Where the effective length of a sod runway has not been established, the maximum allowable takeoff weight shall be determined by application of the actual runway length to the appropriate takeoff table (b). Tables (b) incorporate a correction factor (approximately 17.6 percent for an assumed obstruction height and/or a reduced coefficient of friction).

(c) Landing limitations data. In computing the maximum allowable landing weights for operations from sod runways, the landing weight tables contained in this section shall be used in the following manner:

(1) Where the effective length of a sod runway has been established, the maximum allowable landing weight shall be determined by application of the effective length to the appropriate landing weight table (a).

(2) Where the effective length of a sod runway has not been established, the maximum allowable landing weight shall be determined by application of the actual runway length to the appropriate landing weight table (b).

Section 2 of Supplement 1 to DMO VII-4 of August 25, 1955, as amended (20 F. R. 6289, 7110), is amended to read as follows:

2. All idle equipment included in these two central inventories will be made available, upon request, to producing establishments crippled by major disasters as determined in accordance with provisions of Public Law 875, 81st Congress. Authority to arrange for the immediate leasing of such equipment to damaged facilities within major disaster areas, when necessary to the resumption of normal operations, is hereby granted to the Department of Defense and the Department of Commerce with respect to the items in their respective idle inventories. The procedure authorized in this supplement shall remain in effect only for such period of time as the areas in question are classified as disaster areas under authority of Public Law 875, 81st Congress, or until the Director of the Office of Defense Mobilization shall find that the application of the procedure to those areas would no longer serve to meet the objective of this supplement.

This amendment shall take effect April 4, 1956.

TITLE 36—PARKS, FORESTS, AND MEMORIALS

Chapter I—National Park Service, Department of the Interior

GRAND TETON NATIONAL PARK

1. A new paragraph (c) is added to § 20.22 Grand Teton National Park to read as follows:

(c) Stock grazing. (1) Permits for the grazing of domestic livestock based on authorized use of certain areas at the time of approval of Public Law 787, September 14, 1950, shall continue in effect or shall be renewed from time to time, except for failure to comply with the conditions and terms applicable thereto after reasonable notice of default and subject to the following provisions of tenure:

(i) Grazing privileges appurtenant to privately owned lands located within the park shall not be withdrawn until title to lands to which such privileges are appurtenant shall have vested in the United States.

(ii) Grazing privileges appurtenant to privately owned lands located outside the park shall not be withdrawn for a period of twenty-five years, after September 14, 1950, and thereafter during the lifetime of the original permittee and his heirs if they were members of his immediate family as described below:

(a) Members of the immediate family are those persons who are related to and were living with and directly dependent upon a person, or persons, living on or conducting grazing operations from lands, as of September 14, 1950, which the Service recognized as base lands appurtenant to grazing privileges in the park. Such interpretation excludes mature children who, as of that date, were established in their own households and were not directly dependent upon the base lands and appurtenant grazing recognized by the National Park Service.

(iii) If title to base lands lying outside the park is conveyed, or such base lands are leased to someone other than a member of the immediate family of the original permittee, the grazing preference shall be recognized only for a period of twenty-five years from September 14, 1950.

(2) Where no reasonable access or egress is available to permittee or nonpermittee stockmen who must cross park lands to reach grazing allotments and State or private lands within the exterior boundary of the park or to National Forest, State or private lands adjacent to the park, The Superintendent will grant, upon request, a temporary non-fee annual permit to herd stock across the park on a designated driveway, provided such herding does not require more than two trips across the park during the grazing season or consume more than five days per trip in either direction. Permittees or nonpermittees who allow stock to remain on Federal lands within the park in excess of the time granted in the temporary permit, or at any time or place, when or where herding or grazing is unauthorized may be assessed fifty cents per day per animal.

(3) Grazing preferences are based on actual use during the period March 15, 1938 through September 14, 1950 and henceforth no increase in the number of animals or animal unit months will be allowed on Federal lands in the park.

(4) (i) Any permittee whose grazing privilege is appurtenant to privately owned lands within the park will be granted non-use or reduced benefits for one or more years without nullifying his privilege in subsequent years.

(ii) A permittee whose privilege is appurtenant to lands outside the park may be granted non-use on a year to year basis not to exceed three consecutive years unless such a request is clearly beyond his control for such reasons as National emergencies due to protracted labor shortages, economic depressions, etc. Whenever non-use or reduced benefits are desired a written request must be made to the Superintendent at least 60 days before the grazing season starts.

(5) Grazing fees in the park shall be the same as those charged on the adjoining Teton National Forest and may be adjusted annually.

(Sec. 3, 39 Stat. 535, as amended; 16 U. S. C. 3)

Issued this 31st day of January 1956.

[SEAL] FRANK R. OBERHANSLEY,

TITLE 41—PUBLIC CONTRACTS

Chapter II—Division of Public Contracts, Department of Labor

PART 202—MINIMUM WAGE DETERMINATIONS

PHOTOGRAPHIC AND BLUEPRINTING EQUIPMENT AND SUPPLIES INDUSTRY

On November 5, 1955, notice was published in the FEDERAL REGISTER of a proposed decision of the Secretary of Labor determining prevailing minimum wages under the Walsh-Healey Public Contracts Act (49 Stat. 2036; 41 U. S. C. 35 et seq.), for the Photographic and Blueprinting Equipment and Supplies Industry (20 F. R. 8338). The notice allowed a period of thirty days in which interested parties might submit exceptions to the proposed decision.

The exceptions and comments which have been received are as follows:

1. It is suggested that the definition of the blueprinting equipment and supplies branch of the industry should expressly exclude diazoprints (whiteprints) and should include diazotype sensitized film and other sensitized materials along with diazotype sensitized papers and cloths. These suggested amendments will more clearly express the coverage intended by the proposed definition and will be adopted.

2. It is argued that the proposed minimum rate of $1.18 per hour should be reduced or a subminimum rate should be provided for beginners or learners, for the reason that the $1.18 rate will require some wage adjustment on the part of most of the small independent plants not specializing in high precision manufacture. But only approximately 2 percent of all of the employees in the industry are paid less than $1.18 per hour. The determination must, of course, have impact on wages in some plants if it is to serve any useful purpose. The assumption that it will have impact in most plants of a particular segment of the industry is speculative and would be pertinent only if a separate determination were to be made for that segment. This has not been proposed, and moreover it would be inconsistent with the policy of the act as recently recognized in Mitchell v. Covington Mills, 12 WHC 701 (C. A. D. C.). In the Covington case the court held that where, as here, there is substantial and active competition between the several segments of the industry, separate determinations for the lower wage segments would defeat the policy of the act.

The suggestion to provide a reduced or subminimum rate for beginners or learners is inappropriate, since the wage data on which the $1.18 rate is based included the wages paid learners and beginners.

3. Exception is taken to basing the determination primarily on minimum wages actually paid, rather than on the lowest hiring rates established by plants regardless of whether any worker was actually paid at the lowest hiring rate. The record shows that 42 percent of the establishments in the industry reported no such established hiring rates. In the plants which did report established hiring rates, 85 percent of the total production workers were employed in plants with lowest established hiring rates of $1.18 per hour or more. Under these circumstances it seems clear that the rates actually paid should take precedence over the established hiring rates not actually paid, and the hiring rates serve to confirm the conclusion that a rate below $1.18 would not be the prevailing minimum wages for persons employed in this industry.

Aside from the exceptions considered above, a review of the proposed determination reveals that the inclusion of the provision for the employment of handicapped workers is unnecessary. Section 201.1102 of the general regulations (41 CFR, Part 201) delineates the procedures to be followed for the employment of handicapped workers at wages lower than the prevailing minimum wage applicable under section 1 (b) of the act.

Upon reviewing the entire record in the light of all objections and exceptions filed, it is my conclusion that the proposed determination, amended by the incorporation of the suggestions relative to the definition mentioned above, and deletion of the special provision applicable to the employment of handicapped workers, should be adopted. Accordingly, pursuant to the authority vested in me by the Walsh-Healey Public Contracts Act, § 202.30 of Title 41, Part 202, of the Code of Federal Regulations is hereby amended to read as follows:

§ 202.30 Photographic and blueprinting equipment and supplies industry—(a) Definition. (1) The photographic equipment and supplies branch of the photographic and blueprinting equipment and supplies industry is defined as that industry which manufactures or furnishes such products as: still and motion-picture cameras; projection apparatus; photographic lenses; shutters; photocopy and microfilm machines; developing tanks and machines; enlargers; plate and film holders; tripods; film reels; picture projection screens; sensitized film, paper and plates; and prepared photographic developers, toners and fixers. Excluded are the making, processing or finishing of photographs or photographic reproductions of any kind, including still or motion pictures; photographic exposure meters; and photographic bulbs, tubes and related light sources.

(2) The blueprinting equipment and supplies branch of the photographic and blueprinting equipment and supplies industry is defined as that industry which manufactures or furnishes any of the following products: machines and other apparatus and equipment used in blueprinting, the diazotype process (whiteprinting), and other related processes; sensitized blueprint paper and cloth, diazotype sensitized paper, cloth, film, and other similarly sensitized materials; and specially prepared developing solutions intended for use with such sensitized materials, but not including the manufacture of blueprints or diazoprints (whiteprints).

(b) Minimum wages. The minimum wage for persons employed in the manufacture or furnishing of products of the photographic and blueprinting equipment and supplies industry under contracts subject to the Walsh-Healey Public Contracts Act shall be not less than $1.18 an hour arrived at either on a time or piece rate basis.

(c) Subminimum wages authorized. (1) (i) Apprentices may be employed at wage rates below the statutory minimum of the Fair Labor Standards Act upon the same terms and conditions as are prescribed for the employment of apprentices by the regulations of the Administrator of the Wage and Hour and Public Contracts Divisions of the United States Department of Labor (29 CFR Part 521), under section 14 of the Fair Labor Standards Act.

(ii) Apprentices may be employed at wage rates equal to or in excess of the statutory minimum of the Fair Labor Standards Act but less than the prevailing minimum wage applicable under section 1 (b) of the Public Contracts Act provided that the apprentice is employed under a written apprenticeship agreement or program which is recorded as meeting the standards or fundamentals of a State Apprenticeship Agency recognized by the Bureau of Apprenticeship, United States Department of Labor or of the Bureau of Apprenticeship, United States Department of Labor.

(d) Effect on other obligations. Nothing in this section shall affect any obligations for the payment of minimum wages that an employer may have under any law or agreement more favorable to employees than the requirements of this section.

(e) Effective date. This determination shall be effective and the minimum wage hereby established shall apply to all contracts subject to the Public Contracts Act, bids for which are solicited or negotiations otherwise commenced on or after May 7, 1956.

(Sec. 4, 49 Stat. 2038, as amended; 41 U. S. C. 39)

Signed at Washington, D. C., this 3d day of April 1956.

JAMES P. MITCHELL,
Secretary of Labor.

PRODUCT DESCRIPTION, STYLES, GRADES, AND TYPES

§ 52.2541 Identity. "Canned asparagus" means the canned product prepared from clean, sound, succulent shoots of the asparagus plant prepared and processed in accordance with good commercial practice as such product is defined in the standard of identity for canned asparagus (21 CFR 51.990) issued pursuant to the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act.

§ 52.2542 Styles of canned asparagus. (a) "Spears" (Stalks), which may be peeled or unpeeled, is the style of canned asparagus that consists of the head and adjoining portion of the shoot that is 3¾ inches or more in length.

(b) "Tips" is the style of canned asparagus that consists of the head and adjoining portion of the shoot that is less than 3¾ inches but not less than 2¾ inches in length.

(c) "Points" is the style of canned asparagus that consists of the head and adjoining portion of the shoot that is less than 2¾ inches in length.

(d) "Cut Spears" (Cut Stalks) is the style of canned asparagus that consists of heads and portions of shoots cut transversely into units. This style shall contain an average of not less than 15 percent, by count, of heads if cut into units 1¼ inches or less in length. If more than 15 percent, by count, of units are longer than 1¼ inches, the product shall contain an average of not less than 20 percent, by count, of heads.

(e) "Bottom Cuts" or "Cuts—Tips Removed" is the style of canned asparagus that consists of portions of shoots with heads removed that are cut transversely into units.

(f) "Mixed" is the style of canned asparagus consisting of two or more of the foregoing styles.

§ 52.2543 Grades of canned asparagus. (a) "U. S. Grade A" or "U. S. Fancy" is the quality of canned asparagus that possesses a good flavor; that possesses a clear liquor; that possesses a good color; that is practically free from defects; that possesses a good character; and that for those factors which are scored in accordance with the scoring system outlined in this section the total score is not less than 85 points: Provided, That the canned asparagus may possess a fairly clear liquor and a fairly good color if the total score is not less than 85 points.

(b) "U. S. Grade C" or "U. S. Standard" is the quality of canned asparagus that possesses a fairly good flavor; that possesses a fairly clear liquor; that possesses a fairly good color; that is fairly free from defects; that possesses a fairly good character; and that scores not less than 70 points when scored in accordance with the scoring system outlined in this section.

(c) "Substandard" is the quality of canned asparagus that fails to meet the requirements of U. S. Grade C or U. S. Standard.

§ 52.2544 Types of canned asparagus. The type of canned asparagus is not incorporated in the grades of the processed product, since the type of canned asparagus is not a factor of quality for the purpose of these grades. The type of asparagus may be designated in accordance with the following requirements:

(a) "Green" (All Green) consists of units of canned asparagus which are typical green, light green, or yellowish green in color.

(b) "Green Tipped" consists of canned asparagus spears, tips, and points, of which one-half or more of the unit measured from the tip end is green, light green, or yellowish green in color.

(c) "Green Tipped and White" consists of (1) spears, tips, and points of canned asparagus which are typical white or yellowish white in color, and may have green, light green, or yellowish green heads, and the green color may extend to not more than one-half of the length of the stalk measured from the tip end and (2) green tipped and white spears, tips, and points, when cut into units, may consist of a mixture of typical white, yellowish white, green, light green, or yellowish green units.

(d) "White" consists of units of canned asparagus which are typical white or yellowish white in color.

FILL OF CONTAINER AND DRAINED WEIGHTS

§ 52.2545 Recommended fill of container. The recommended fill of container for canned asparagus is not incorporated in the grades of the processed product, since fill of container, as such, is not a factor of quality for the purpose of these grades. It is recommended that each container of canned asparagus be filled as full as practicable with asparagus without impairment of quality.

§ 52.2546 Recommended minimum drained weight. The minimum drained weight recommendations in Table No. I are not incorporated in the grades of the processed product, since drained weight, as such, is not a factor of quality for the purpose of these grades. The drained weight of canned asparagus is determined by emptying the contents of the container upon a United States Standard No. 8 sieve of proper diameter, inclining the sieve to facilitate drainage, and allow to drain for two minutes. The drained weight is the weight of the sieve and the asparagus less the weight of the dry sieve. A sieve 8 inches in diameter is used for the No. 2½ size can (401 x 411) and smaller sizes, and a sieve 12 inches in diameter is used for containers larger than the No. 2½ size can.

§ 52.2547 Compliance with recommended minimum drained weights. Compliance with the recommended minimum drained weight for canned asparagus is determined by averaging the drained weights of all of the containers which are representative of a specific lot. Such lot is considered as meeting recommendations, if:

(a) At least one-half of the containers meet the recommended minimum drained weight;

(b) The drained weights of the containers which do not meet the recommended minimum drained weight are within the range of variability of good commercial practice; and

(c) The average drained weight of all of the containers which are representative of the lot does not fall below the minimum recommended drained weight.

SIZE (DIAMETER) OF SPEARS, TIPS, AND POINTS

§ 52.2548 Size (diameter) of spears, tips, and points in canned asparagus. The size (diameter) of asparagus spears, tips, and points in canned asparagus is determined by measuring the largest diameter across the base at right angles to the longitudinal axis of the unit. Units compressed in processing should be restored to their approximate original contour before sizing. Asparagus spears longer than 5 inches are measured at a point 5 inches from the top of the spear. Units 5 inches in length and less are measured at the base or largest cut end of the unit.

§ 52.2549 Compliance with single size recommendations. Canned asparagus spears, tips, and points will be considered as meeting a designated size when not more than 20 percent, by count, of all the units are of the next size smaller or the next size larger than the diameter range of the particular size designation.

| Word designation | Diameter (16th's of inch) |
|---|---|
| Small | 5/16 and under. |
| Medium | 5/16 to 7/16. |

FACTORS OF QUALITY

§ 52.2550 Ascertaining the grade—(a) General. In addition to considering other requirements outlined in the standards, the following quality factors are evaluated in ascertaining the grade of the product:

(1) Factor not rated by score points. (i) Flavor.

(2) Factors rated by score points. The relative importance of each factor which is rated is expressed numerically on the scale of 100. The maximum number of points that may be given each such factor is:

| Factors: | Points |
|---|---|
| Liquor | 10 |
| Color | 20 |
| Defects | 30 |
| Character | 40 |
| Total score | 100 |

(b) "Good flavor" means that the product has a good, characteristic normal flavor and odor and is free from objectionable flavors and objectionable odors of any kind.

(c) "Fairly good flavor" means that the product may be lacking in good flavor and odor but is free from objectionable flavors and objectionable odors of any kind.

§ 52.2551 Ascertaining the rating for the factors which are scored. The essential variations within each factor which is rated by score points are so described that the value may be ascertained for such factors and expressed numerically. The numerical range within each such factor is inclusive (for example, "17 to 20 points" means 17, 18, 19, or 20 points).

§ 52.2552 Liquor—(a) (A) classification. Canned asparagus that possesses a clear liquor may be given a score of 9 or 10 points. "Clear liquor" means that the liquor may possess a typical yellow or green color and is fairly free from suspended material and sediment.

(b) (C) classification. If the canned asparagus possesses a fairly clear liquor a score of 7 or 8 points may be given. "Fairly clear liquor" means that the liquor may be cloudy but not excessively cloudy or may possess an accumulation of sediment which may be slightly gray or slightly brown but is not seriously objectionable and is not off color.

(c) (SStd.) classification. Canned asparagus that fails to meet the requirements of the foregoing paragraph (b) of this section may be given a score of 0 to 6 points and shall not be graded above Substandard, regardless of the total score for the product (this is a limiting rule).

§ 52.2553 Color—(a) General. The color of asparagus in canned asparagus is based on the type and style of asparagus and the characteristic and predominant color of the units.

(b) (A) classification. Canned asparagus that possesses a good color may be given a score of 17 to 20 points. "Good color" has the following meanings with respect to the following types and styles of canned asparagus:

(1) Spears, tips, or points—(a) Green. The units possess a good, characteristic, green, light green, or yellowish green color typical of well developed asparagus, and the bottom portion of not more than 10 percent, by count, of the units, or one unit, whichever is larger, may possess typical white or yellowish white color not to exceed one-eighth of the length of the unit.

(b) Green tipped. The units possess a good, characteristic, green, light green, or yellowish green color with typical white or yellowish white color at the base ends, typical of well developed asparagus, and not more than 10 percent, by count, of the units, or one unit, whichever is larger, may possess typical white or yellowish white color in excess of one-half of the length of the unit or may be all green.

(c) Green tipped and white. The units possess a fairly good, characteristic, green, light green, or yellowish green heads and adjacent areas, typical of well developed asparagus, and not more than 20 percent, by count, of the units may possess green, light green, or yellowish green heads and adjacent areas exceeding one-half of the length of the unit.

(d) White. The units possess a good, characteristic, white or yellowish white color typical of well developed asparagus, and not more than 10 percent, by count, of the units, or one unit, whichever is larger, may possess green, light green, or yellowish green heads and adjacent areas not to exceed one-half of the length of the unit.

(2) Cut spears, bottom cuts or cuts—Tips removed, and mixed—(a) Green. The units possess a good, characteristic, green, light green, or yellowish green color typical of well developed asparagus, and not more than 10 percent, by count, of the units may be green and white or white: Provided, That not more than 2 percent, by count, of all the units may be white.

(b) Green tipped and white or white. The units possess a good, characteristic color typical of well developed green tipped and white or white asparagus.

(c) (C) classification. If the canned asparagus possesses a fairly good color, a score of 14 to 16 points may be given. "Fairly good color" has the following meanings with respect to the following types and styles of canned asparagus:

(1) Spears, tips, or points—(a) Green. The units possess a fairly good, characteristic, green, light green, or yellowish green color typical of fairly well developed asparagus and the bottom portion of not more than 20 percent, by count, of the units may possess typical white or yellowish white color not to exceed one-fourth of the length of the unit.

(b) Green tipped. The units possess a fairly good, characteristic, green, light green, or yellowish green color with typical white or yellowish white color at the base ends, typical of fairly well developed asparagus, and not more than 25 percent, by count, of the units may possess typical white or yellowish white color in excess of one-half of the length of the unit, or may be all green.

(c) Green tipped and white. The units possess a fairly good, characteristic, white or yellowish white color and may possess green, light green, or yellowish green heads and adjacent areas typical of fairly well developed asparagus, and not more than 50 percent, by count, of the units may possess green, light green, or yellowish green heads and adjacent areas in excess of one-half of the length of the unit.

(d) White. The units possess a fairly good, characteristic, white or yellowish white color typical of fairly well developed white asparagus, and not more than 20 percent, by count, of the units may possess green, light green, or yellowish green heads and adjacent areas not to exceed one-half of the length of the unit.

(2) Cut spears, bottom cuts or cuts—tips removed, and mixed—(a) Green. The units possess a fairly good characteristic, green, light green, or yellowish green color typical of fairly well developed asparagus and not more than 20 percent, by count, of the units may be green and white or white: Provided, That not more than 5 percent, by count, of all the units may be white.

(b) Green tipped and white or white. The units possess a fairly good, characteristic color typical of fairly well developed green tipped and white or white asparagus.

(d) (SStd.) classification. Canned asparagus that fails to meet the requirements of paragraph (c) of this section or is definitely off color may be given a score of 0 to 13 points and shall not be graded above Substandard, regardless of the total score for the product (this is a limiting rule).

§ 52.2554 Defects—(a) General. The factor of defects refers to the degree of freedom from grit or silt, loose material, shattered heads, poorly cut units, damaged units, and seriously damaged units.

(1) "Grit or silt" means sand or any other particle of earthy material.

(2) "Loose material" means shattered asparagus material and cut or broken pieces which are less than ⅜ inch in length.

(3) "Shattered head" means any unit with the asparagus head broken or shattered to the extent that the appearance is seriously affected.

(4) "Misshapen" means any spear, tip, or point that is badly crooked, or any unit that is seriously affected in appearance by doubles or other malformations.

(5) "Poorly cut" means a unit that has a very ragged, stringy, or frayed edge or edges, or a unit that is partially cut, or is cut at an angle of less than approximately 45 degrees.

(6) "Damaged" means damaged by discoloration, mechanical injury, or damaged by other means to the extent that the appearance or edibility of the unit is materially affected.

(7) "Seriously damaged" means damaged to such an extent that the appearance or edibility of the unit is seriously affected.

(b) (A) classification. Canned asparagus that is practically free from defects may be given a score of 25 to 30 points. "Practically free from defects" means that no grit or silt may be present that affects the appearance or edibility of the product; that loose material may be present that does not materially affect the appearance of the product; and that with respect to the following styles of canned asparagus:

(1) Spears, tips, and points. There may be present with respect to green and tipped types not more than 10 percent, and with respect to green tipped and white and white types not more than 15 percent, by count, of units with shattered heads, misshapen units and poorly cut units, and damaged and seriously damaged units: Provided, That not more than 3 percent, by count, of the units may be seriously damaged, or one unit in a single container may be seriously damaged if such unit exceeds the allowance of 3 percent: And further provided, That in all of the containers comprising the sample such damaged units do not exceed an average of 3 percent, by count, of the total number of units.

(2) Cut spears, bottom cuts or cuts—tips removed, and mixed. There may be present for the applicable style not more than 10 percent, by count, of units with shattered heads, misshapen units and poorly cut units, and damaged and seriously damaged units: Provided, That not more than 2 percent, by count, of the units may be seriously damaged, or one unit in a single container may be seriously damaged if such unit exceeds the allowance of 2 percent: Provided, That in all of the containers comprising the sample such damaged units do not exceed an average of 2 percent, by count, of the total number of units.

(c) (C) classification. If the canned asparagus is fairly free from defects, a score of 21 to 24 points may be given. Canned asparagus that falls into this classification shall not be graded above U. S. Grade C or U. S. Standard, regardless of the total score for the product (this is a limiting rule). "Fairly free from defects" means that not more than a trace of grit or silt may be present that affects the appearance or edibility of the product; that loose material may be present that does not seriously affect the appearance of the product; and that with respect to the following styles of canned asparagus:

(1) Spears, tips, and points. There may be present with respect to green and green tipped types not more than 20 percent, and with respect to green tipped and white and white types not more than 30 percent, by count, of units with shattered heads, misshapen units and poorly cut units, and damaged and seriously damaged units: Provided, That not more than 10 percent, by count, of the units may be seriously damaged, or one unit in a single container may be seriously damaged if such unit exceeds the allowance of 10 percent: Provided, That in all of the containers comprising the sample such damaged units do not exceed an average of 10 percent, by count, of the total number of units.

(2) Cut spears, bottom cuts or cuts—tips removed, and mixed. There may be present for the applicable style not more than 20 percent, by count, of units with shattered heads, misshapen units and poorly cut units, and damaged and seriously damaged units: Provided, That not more than 7 percent, by count, of all the units may be seriously damaged.

(d) (SStd.) classification. Canned asparagus that fails to meet the requirements of paragraph (c) of this section may be given a score of 0 to 20 points and shall not be graded above Substandard, regardless of the total score for the product (this is a limiting rule).

§ 52.2555 Character—(a) General. The factor of character refers to the degree of development of the head and bracts and to the tenderness and texture of the unit.

(1) "Well developed" means that the appearance of the head is not materially affected by a seedy appearance, and is practically compact.

(2) "Fairly well developed" means that the head may show a seedy appearance over the surface of the head and the head and bracts may be elongated but not so developed or elongated as to give a definitely spread or branching appearance.

(b) (A) classification. Canned asparagus that possesses a good character may be given a score of 34 to 40 points. "Good character" has the following meanings with respect to the following styles and types of canned asparagus:

(1) Spears, tips, and points. Not less than 85 percent, by count, of the heads are well developed, and the remaining units are at least fairly well developed, and with respect to green and green tipped types not more than 10 percent, and with respect to green tipped and white and white types not more than 20 percent, by count, of the units, or one unit in a container if such unit exceeds the allowances provided for the respective type, may be tough.

(2) Cut spears, bottom cuts or cuts—tips removed, and mixed. For the applicable style, not less than 50 percent, by count, of the heads are well developed, and the remainder are at least fairly well developed, and with respect to green and green tipped types not more than 10 percent, and with respect to green tipped and white and white types not more than 20 percent, by count, of the units may be tough.

(c) (C) classification. If the canned asparagus possesses a fairly good character, a score of 28 to 33 points may be given. Canned asparagus that falls into this classification shall not be graded above U. S. Grade C or U. S. Standard, regardless of the total score for the product (this is a limiting rule). "Fairly good character" has the following meanings with respect to the following styles and types of canned asparagus:

(1) Spears, tips, and points. Not less than 90 percent, by count, of the heads are at least fairly well developed, and the remaining units may fail to meet the requirements for fairly well developed heads, and with respect to green and green tipped types not more than 30 percent, and with respect to green tipped and white and white types not more than 50 percent, by count, of the units may be tough.

(2) Cut spears, bottom cuts or cuts—tips removed, and mixed. For the applicable style, not less than 90 percent, by count, of the heads are at least fairly well developed, and the remainder may fail to meet the requirements for fairly well developed heads, and with respect to green and green tipped types not more than 25 percent, and with respect to green tipped and white and white types not more than 50 percent, by count, of the units may be tough.

(d) (SStd.) classification. Canned asparagus that fails to meet the requirements of paragraph (c) of this section may be given a score of 0 to 27 points and shall not be graded above Substandard, regardless of the total score for the product (this is a limiting rule).

DEFINITIONS AND EXPLANATIONS

§ 52.2556 Definitions and explanations of terms—(a) Head. "Head" in cut spears means the tip end which has been cut from an asparagus shoot which is ⅝ inch or more in length with respect to the green type and which is ⅜ inch or more in length with respect to green tipped and white and white types, or the upper portion of a spear which possesses a substantial amount of head material which has been cut from near the tip end and which is approximately the same length as the other cut units.

(b) Unit. "Unit" means any individual portion of an asparagus shoot ⅜ inch or more in length in canned asparagus.

(c) Percent, by count, of heads. "Percent, by count, of heads" means the percent determined by averaging the percent, by count, of heads in all of the containers comprising the sample.

(d) Tough unit. "Tough unit" means a unit which is not cut through in 5 seconds or less when tested as outlined herein by means of the fiberometer, and which possesses fibrous material which is materially objectionable upon eating. The test by fiberometer on spears, tips, and points is made at a point 1 inch from the cut end with respect to the green type and at a point 1½ inches from the cut end with respect to the green tipped type, and at the midpoint of the unit with respect to the green tipped and white and white types. The test is made at the midpoint of the unit on cut spears, bottom cuts or cuts—tips removed, and mixed styles which are 2 inches or less in length and at a point 1 inch from each end on cut units which are more than 2 inches in length.

(e) Asparagus fiberometer. The cutting wire of the fiberometer shall be 0.031 inch diameter stainless steel wire and is mounted in a metal frame having an overall weight of 3 pounds avoirdupois. The slots in the block supporting the asparagus unit to be tested shall be not less than 0.039 inch nor more than 0.042 inch in width.

LOT CERTIFICATION TOLERANCES

§ 52.2557 Tolerances for certification of officially drawn samples. (a) When certifying samples that have been officially drawn and which represent a specific lot of canned asparagus the grade for such lot will be determined by averaging the total scores of the containers comprising the sample, if (1) such containers meet all of the applicable grade requirements of the factors of quality that are not rated by score points, (2) all containers comprising the sample meet all applicable standards of quality promulgated under the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act and in effect at the time of the aforesaid certification, and (3) with respect to those factors which are rated by score points:

(i) Not more than one-sixth of the containers fails to meet the grade indicated by the average of such total scores;

(ii) None of the containers falls more than 4 points below the minimum score for the grade indicated by the average of such total scores;

(iii) None of the containers falls more than one grade below the grade indicated by the average of such total scores; and

(iv) The average score of all containers for any factor subject to a limiting rule is within the score range of that factor for the grade indicated by the average of the total scores of the containers comprising the sample.

ELECTRIC LAMP INDUSTRY

NOTICE OF PROPOSED DETERMINATION OF PREVAILING MINIMUM WAGE FOR THE ELECTRIC LAMP INDUSTRY

This matter is before the Department pursuant to the act of June 30, 1936 (49 Stat. 2036; 41 U. S. C. sec. 35 et seq.), known as the Walsh-Healey Public Contracts Act.

Notice of a public hearing to be held on April 26, 1955, was published in the March 19, 1955, issue of the FEDERAL REGISTER (20 F. R. 1680). Copies of the notice and of a press release announcing the hearing were mailed to all known trade associations, unions, and other interested persons in the Electric Lamp Industry. In addition, the press release was distributed to newspapers and to trade publications.

This notice informed interested persons of the time and place at which they could appear and offer testimony as to (1) the propriety of the definition of the industry proposed in the notice; (2) the prevailing wages in the industry; (3) whether there should be included in any determination for this industry provision for the employment of learners, beginners or apprentices at subminimum rates and on what terms or limitations, if any, such employment should be permitted; and (4) whether a single determination for all of the area in which the industry operates or a separate determination for each of several different geographic areas (including the appropriate limits of such areas) should be made. The notice particularly invited information with respect to (1) the identity of any products not now included in the definition of the industry which should be included and of any products now included which should not be included; (2) the number and location of establishments in the industry; (3) the minimum job rates paid, the number of workers receiving such wages, and the occupations in which they are employed; (4) the minimum wages paid to apprentices, learners, or beginners, the scale of wages paid during the apprenticeship, learning, or probationary period, the length of such periods, the number of workers receiving such wages and the occupations in which they are employed; and (5) the extent to which there is competition in this industry between plants in different geographical areas. The notice also made available to interested persons upon request the employment and wage data which had been prepared in the Department of Labor.

Pursuant to the notice, a public hearing was commenced on April 26, 1955 in the Department of Labor Building, Washington, D. C., and concluded on May 27, 1955. At the hearing management representatives appeared for the following, among others: General Electric Company; Westinghouse Electric Corporation; Sylvania Electric Products, Inc.; Western Electric Company, Inc.; Tung-Sol Electric Inc.; Amplex Corporation; the Lamp Industry Panel (a group of manufacturers); and the Incandescent Lamp Manufacturers Association. In addition, representatives of the following labor organizations, among others, were present: International Union of Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers (CIO); American Federation of Labor; and International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers (AFL). The record was held open until August 17, 1955 for any party who wished to present proposed findings and conclusions, briefs, reply briefs, or arguments in support thereof. The record was certified by Hearing Examiner Clifford P. Grant on September 6, 1955.

Definition. The notice of hearing designated the industry as the Electric Lamp Industry and defined it as follows: "The Electric Lamp Industry is that industry which manufactures electric bulbs, tubes and related light sources, including but not limited to such products as incandescent filament lamps, sealed beam headlights composed of a filament in a glass shell, vapor and fluorescent lamps, photoflash and photoflood lamps, and the following electric lamp components: lead-in-wires, support wires, filaments, welds, hooks, and metal bases; provided, however, that this definition shall not include electrotherapeutic lamp units, electronic tubes, X-ray tubes, sealed beam headlights composed of an electric lamp enclosed in a shell of glass or of glass and metal, carbon arc lamps, custom made luminous tube signs, electric lighting fixtures, plastic lamp bases, chemicals, gases, glass blanks, glass tubing, glass rod, and dumet, molybdenum and tungsten wire. For the purpose of this definition an electric lamp is defined as any device the primary purpose of which is to convert electric energy into radiation within the visible spectrum and/or into ultra-violet radiations of wave lengths of not less than 500 Angstrom units, and/or infrared radiation not longer than 100,000 Angstrom units." The above definition was the basis on which the Department of Labor had assembled employment and wage data for the hearing.

The Lamp Industry Panel proposed that the following statement be added to the definition: "Provided that this definition shall have no application to contracts for items included therein which are manufactured for or are available to commercial as well as Government users". This proposal obviously relates to the "open market" exemption contained in section 9 of the act, and not to any matter covered by the notice of hearing.

As the notice clearly indicates, the sole purpose of this proceeding is to determine the minimum wage prevailing in the Electric Lamp Industry. Plainly, the open market exemption has nothing to do with the question of what this industry is or what the prevailing minimum wage in the industry is. There is no attempt here to determine what contracts will be subject to the open market or any other exemption. The general interpretation of that exemption is in fact dealt with in separate published interpretative rules and regulations. (Rulings and Interpretations No. 3, section 13; regulations, 41 CFR 201.2 (a)). Whether the determination, when it is issued, will apply to particular procurement contracts for products of the industry enumerated in the definition is not only an entirely different matter, but it is one which presents questions that can only be determined on a case by case basis.

After full consideration of the record, I find that the definition as proposed is appropriate for this industry.

Locality. At the hearing and in post hearing briefs arguments were presented by representatives of both labor and management with regard to whether recognition of a single industry-wide rate would be consistent with the statutory language and intent of the Public Contracts Act. It was argued by counsel representing the Lamp Industry Panel that section 1 (b) of the act requires that minimum rates be established separately for each small geographic area in which electric lamps are produced, and that the act cannot be construed as authorizing industry-wide rates. In accordance with this interpretation, the Lamp Industry Panel introduced an extensive wage survey of 37 localities in which lamp plants are located. It is the Lamp Industry Panel's contention that the localities to be used are those areas from which the labor force is drawn, and that each of these areas generally conforms to the metropolitan area in which the plant is located.

Labor representatives at the hearing presented arguments to show that the statutory language and the purpose of the Public Contracts Act require a construction which would permit recognition of an industry-wide minimum, and that the factors present in the Electric Lamp Industry require that a single industry-wide minimum be recognized in this case.

The United States Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia Circuit has recently confirmed the Secretary's long-standing interpretation of section 1 (b) as authorizing the determination of prevailing minimum wages on an industry-wide basis. Mitchell v. Covington Mills, et al., decided December 1, 1955. In upholding an industry-wide determination for a branch of the Textile Industry, the Court stated that such an industry-wide determination is authorized, if indeed not required, by the purpose of the act where "the competition is industry-wide," and that "to fix separate minima according to the wages that prevail in each separate * * * community * * * would freeze the competitive advantage of concerns that operate in low wage communities and would in effect offer a reward for moving into such communities," which "[obviously * * * would defeat the purpose of the Act." The Court further ruled that "it is not true that the plain meaning of the Walsh-Healey Act forbids the Secretary to fix an industry-wide minimum" and that "[it] is not plain that every minimum wage determination under the Act must be limited to a 'locality'." Stating that the "locality" phrase "is not plainly intended to qualify any other term than 'groups of industries' ", the Court upheld the industry-wide wage determination there involved both on the basis of the "similar work" and the "particular industry" standards.

Accordingly, there is authoritative and compelling support for the conclusion that an industry-wide determination is permissible where the marketing and competitive factors warrant it.

Marketing and competitive factors. Electric lamp plants are located in various parts of the country, with the heaviest concentration being found in the Middle Atlantic Region. Of the 63 establishments in the industry, 25 plants are located in the Middle Atlantic Region, 8 plants in the New England Region, 5 plants in the Border Region, 6 plants in the Southeast and Southwest Regions, 2 plants in the Middle West Region, 16 plants in the Great Lakes Region, and 1 plant in the Pacific Region.

Virtually all Government purchases of electric lamps are made from the Federal Supply Schedule. Eight firms were listed in this schedule for the period September 1, 1953 to August 31, 1954. To demonstrate the marketing pattern of the industry applicable to Government business, the Government presented a detailed analysis in tabular form of lamp shipments to Air Force and Navy Installations for that period, the latest period for which complete data were available. This analysis indicates that purchases were made under the Federal Supply Schedule from each of the eight firms appearing therein. As a result of these purchases, lamps valued at approximately two and one-half million dollars went to destinations in 17 states and the District of Columbia, extending from New York to California and New Hampshire to Florida.

In addition to General Electric, Westinghouse, and Sylvania, five smaller firms were included among those plants making shipments to the Air Force and Navy. Four of these were single plant operations and the other firm had two plants in the same region, but made deliveries to the Government from only one of the two plants. Each of these firms shipped to most of the seven regions designated in the tabulation and two companies shipped to installations in all seven regions. In no instance did a majority of the shipments of a firm go to any one region.

Although 40 percent of all establishments in the industry employing 34 percent of the total covered employees are located in the Middle Atlantic Region, according to the Bureau of Labor Statistics' survey, only 19 percent of the 539 shipments to Air Force and Navy Installations went to destinations within that region and the value of these shipments represented only 7 percent of the total value of all shipments.

Each of the three large multi-plant companies (General Electric, Westinghouse and Sylvania) has warehouses from which Government orders generally are shipped. The stock in a warehouse consists of lamps produced in various factories of the firm.

Approximately 90 percent of the shipments from General Electric to the Government are made from the company's 27 warehouses distributed throughout the country. Lamps of factories located in different sections of the country are represented in the stock of each warehouse. The remaining shipments are made directly from the factories.

The central warehouse and order service department of Westinghouse are located at Trenton and most of the types of lamps are stocked there. A Government order placed with the Washington or Trenton office of the company would ordinarily be filled from stock in that warehouse. If not available there, it would be sent from one of the other warehouses to the point where the lamp was to be used. An order sent to one of the Westinghouse regional offices is handled in a similar manner. If the regional office warehouse does not have an item ordered, the order service manager in Trenton would be contacted to determine if it were available in any other warehouse. If lamps required under a particular purchase order, regardless of point of delivery, were available in only one warehouse, they would be supplied from that warehouse. If not available in any warehouse, placement of the order with a factory for manufacture would not necessarily depend upon its nearness to the point of destination, but possibly upon the workload of the plant, if the material were available at that plant.

Westinghouse plants at Belleville, New Jersey, and Paris, Texas, manufacture lamp parts which are within the scope of the definition. These parts, which go into most or all of the finished lamps made by Westinghouse, include lamp bases from the Belleville plant and lamp bases, lead wires and coils from the Paris plant. The lead wires and bases, in addition to being distributed to all Westinghouse lamp plants, are also sold to other lamp companies throughout the country.

Sylvania maintains 13 field service warehouses, located throughout the country. Each warehouse is supplied by the company's various plants.

Items listed in contracts between the Government and General Electric, Sylvania, and Westinghouse are manufactured in 30 different establishments located in every region in which a lamp plant is located. For a large majority of the items, deliveries were made from a single plant location (Government Exhibits No. 10–A, 10–B, and 10–C). Representatives of General Electric, Westinghouse, and Sylvania also testified that particular types of lamps are manufactured in only one plant. Shipments of these lamps would be made from a single plant location to all designated points of delivery and therefore would be on a nation-wide basis. Furthermore, counsel for the Lamp Industry Panel stated in his post hearing brief, that his group "has never contended that sales competition among lamp producers is not nation-wide", and had no objection to stipulating "that the marketing area for which the various lamp companies compete is nation-wide".

It is thus apparent that no geographic limitations are feasible in this industry. The area of competition is industrywide. Firms, no matter where located, generally ship their products all over the country. Multi-plant firms do not make every type of lamp in each of their plants, so that no plant may be said to serve any specific geographic area exclusively. It is impossible to predict precisely where any particular contract materials will be manufactured when bids are invited. For these reasons I find that the locality in which the materials, supplies, articles, or equipment are to be manufactured or furnished under Government contracts extends to all of that area in which the industry has its plants, and that geographic differentials cannot be adopted for this industry without defeating the purposes of the Public Contracts Act.

Nature and adequacy of wage data. The Bureau of Labor Statistics' survey of plants in the Electric Lamp Industry (Government Exhibit No. 4) covered all plants employing eight or more workers known to be in the Lamp Industry as defined. The wage data pertain to a representative payroll period in October 1954.

It was originally estimated that in October 1954 there were 62 establishments employing 18,470 covered workers in the industry as defined. More than 98 percent of the 18,470 covered workers were employed in the 58 plants studied by the Bureau of Labor Statistics. After the survey was completed and tabulations prepared, information was received for an additional plant in the Middle Atlantic Region with approximately 250 covered workers.

Harry M. Douty, Chief of the Division of Wages and Industrial Relations, of the Bureau of Labor Statistics, testified that he believed the omission of this plant did not significantly affect any of the tabulations with the possible exception of Table 2–B, namely, percentage distribution of covered workers in the lowest labor grade with work experience of three months or less, by straight-time average hourly earnings. On request of Dr. Modley, Lamp Industry Panel Adviser, however, corrections for the three average hourly earnings tabulations were read into the record. Also at industry's request a tabulation of establishments and workers by lowest rate actually paid to covered workers irrespective of work experience was prepared. No question was raised regarding the reliability or completeness of the survey coverage of the Lamp Industry. I find that the Bureau of Labor Statistics' survey adequately reflects the wages of all workers employed in the production of products covered by the definition.

Locality wage data pertaining to the 37 areas in which lamp plants are located were presented by the Lamp Industry Panel. The Lamp Industry Panel also presented a tabulation of "indicated determinations of prevailing wages" for each of the 37 localities, based upon lowest established starting or hiring rates for all types of work and for light repetitive work requiring training of three months or less. These tabulations were based upon data obtained for the Lamp Industry Panel by the Audits and Survey Company. However, in view of my decision to make this determination on an industry-wide basis for the reasons mentioned above, further consideration of the Panel's data is unnecessary.

The International Union of Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers (CIO) presented data in the form of a tabulation of lowest entrance rates and lowest job rates in 13 lamp plants where their contracts are in effect. The approximate number of workers covered by each contract, totalling about 10,600, and the number of workers at the lowest entrance rates in each plant are also shown. In answer to a question raised by Lamp Industry Panel Counsel, it was indicated that the products of one of the plants (General Electric, Bridgeville, Pennsylvania) are tubing, bulb-drawing, cutting and forming. This plant, therefore, is outside the scope of the industry as defined for this determination. The employment figures were also questioned as they do not refer only to workers covered by the Walsh-Healey Act. Questions were also raised concerning some of the rates shown as well as the method of determining the lowest job rate.

A tabulation of starting rates and job rates in 9 lamp plants having contracts with an independent union was also presented. The products of three of the plants, however, as shown in the table, are outside the scope of the industry as defined for this determination. In addition to "hiring in" rate, the lowest job rate and "second labor grade" rate for day work and piecework earnings in lowest labor grade are also shown for each plant.

Wage and employment data were presented for 16 electric lamp establishments "with non-selective hiring policies" by the Incandescent Lamp Manufacturers' Association. The information indicates the starting or hiring rate and lowest rate actually paid, number of establishments and covered workers, by five cent intervals. These 16 plants were all included in the data presented by the Bureau of Labor Statistics.

It is apparent from the foregoing description of the wage data presented at the hearing, that they are ample to make an industry-wide determination for the Electric Lamp Industry.

Recommendations on prevailing minimum wages. The International Union of Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers (CIO) recommended an industry-wide prevailing minimum rate of not less than $1.30 an hour for all covered workers, based upon an analysis of the Bureau of Labor Statistics Tables 2, 2–A, and 5, and the IUE tabulation of lowest entrance and job rates (IUE-CIO Exhibit No. 1).

The International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers (AFL) also requested an industry-wide minimum rate of $1.30 an hour for all covered workers. The American Federation of Labor representative also recommended a rate of at least $1.30 an hour based on the data shown in Bureau of Labor Statistics Tables 5 and 2–A and also on the fact that increases had been negotiated in some plants since October 1954, the date of the Bureau of Labor Statistics' survey. Although the American Federation of Labor recommendation was intended to apply to all covered workers, it was stated that if a choice is to be made between the establishment of a $1.30 minimum rate with a tolerance for beginners as against a lower minimum rate to apply to all workers, their preference would be the former.

A minimum of $1.35 an hour was recommended by an independent union. Data presented in its own tabulation, as well as Bureau of Labor Statistics Tables 2–A, 3 and 5 served as a basis for this recommendation.

Charts and tabulations were presented by the Lamp Industry Panel Adviser, Dr. Rudolph Modely, pertaining, to both the method of determining a prevailing minimum wage, and what the rate should be. Industry Exhibit No. 38–A, based on Bureau of Labor Statistics' survey data, was introduced to show that the Lamp Industry Panel's analysis of straight-time average earnings data indicates a nation-wide determination of $1.00 an hour. It further undertakes to show that if different processes of analyzing the established minimum rate data are used, determinations of $0.91 an hour and $1.23 an hour may be found. However, although data were presented to show what the Lamp Industry Panel believes the minimum rate determination should be if based upon nation-wide data and upon wages actually paid, it was contended that the determination should be made on the basis of tables showing lowest established hiring rates of all manufacturing establishments located within so-called "wage areas". In line with this, Industry Exhibit No. 45 was presented, showing the Lamp Industry Panel's proposed determination of the prevailing minimum wage for each of 37 areas in which electric lamp plants are located, based on the lowest established hiring rates. Two sets of proposals were made, one based on rates established for all types of work, and the other based on rates established for "light, repetitive work requiring training of three months or less." Both sets of rates are based on employments in various industries in the given wage areas and not on plants in the lamp industry alone.

The Incandescent Lamp Manufacturers' Association, an organization of 16 small firms which maintained that they have "nonselective hiring policies", requested two determinations, one for the big corporations which have "selective hiring policies", very large production, and high wage rates, and another for the group of firms "That does not have the selective hirings or more liberal approach to the hirings and that have a substantially lower wage rate". However, no specific rates were proposed. The wage data for these 16 establishments are included in the record, and therefore will have appropriate weight in the determination.

Analysis of wage data. The prevailing minimum rates proposed by the unions ($1.30 and $1.35 an hour) appear high since establishments paying all workers at least $1.30 an hour are in the minority. The evidence submitted by the American Federation of Labor that increases have been negotiated in some plants since October 1954, the date of the Bureau of Labor Statistics survey, is not sufficiently specific to justify a conclusion that these plants have become a majority. Plainly establishments with lowest paid actual rates of $1.35 an hour are even smaller in number (Bureau of Labor Statistics Table 3–B). If consideration is limited to covered workers exclusive of those in the lowest labor grade with work experience of three months or less (Bureau of Labor Statistics Table 3 and data reported for the sixty-third plant), a minority of the 63 establishments paid $1.30 or more an hour, and one-third of the plants paid $1.35 or more an hour to all workers in this category. Lowest established hiring rates of $1.30 or more were reported by 35 percent of the 60 plants reporting established hiring rates (Bureau of Labor Statistics Table 4). Bureau of Labor Statistics Table 3 and data for the sixty-third plant show that 56 percent of the 63 establishments with 77 percent of the total covered worker employment paid at least $1.26 an hour to all covered workers, exclusive of those in the lowest labor grade with work experience of three months or less. No higher minimum rate for such workers was actually paid by a majority of the establishments employing a majority of the covered workers. Bureau of Labor Statistics Table 3–B indicates that more than half (51 percent) of the 63 establishments which employed 75 percent of the 18,732 covered workers, paid all covered workers, irrespective of work experience, at least $1.26 an hour.

Consideration has also been given to the lowest established rates in lamp plants effective after work experience of three months (Bureau of Labor Statistics Table 4–A), although some reported rates may not have been paid during a recent period. Nearly one-half (47 percent) of the 60 establishments reporting such established rates, had rates of $1.26 or more. Approximately two-thirds of the covered workers in the 60 plants were employed in the 28 plants with rates of $1.26 or more.

The 14 plants for which entrance and job rates are shown in IUE–CIO Exhibit No. 1 all had lowest job rates in excess of $1.26. Though not material, it may be noted that the product of one plant is outside the scope of the industry.

The survey of starting rates and job rates in the independent union's lamp plants, made in March 1955, shows no plant with a job rate as low as $1.26. Data are shown for nine plants, but three of these (Niles, Mahoning, and Bucyrus) are outside the definition of the industry.

Therefore, based upon the above information, I find that the prevailing minimum hourly wage in the Electric Lamp Industry is $1.26 an hour for all covered workers exclusive of those in the lowest labor grade with work experience of three months or less.

Subminimum rates. The unions recommended that no tolerance be provided for inexperienced workers. There is no mention of tolerance for beginners or apprentices in either the Lamp Industry Panel's Summary of Indicated Nationwide Determinations on the basis of the Bureau of Labor Statistics survey (Industry Exhibit No. 38–A) or in the indicated area determinations (Industry Exhibit No. 45). In general, however, these proposals were based on established hiring rates which would be applicable to beginners.

Separate wage data were collected by the Bureau of Labor Statistics for beginners (those in the lowest labor grade with work experience of three months or less), and those data justify a separate determination for such workers.

Thirty-one (52 percent) of the 60 establishments having established hiring rates reported lowest established rates of $1.20 an hour or more (BLS Table 4). More than three-fourths (78 percent) of the total covered workers in the 60 establishments were employed in the 31 establishments with rates of $1.20 or more. Only a minority of the 60 plants had established hiring rates above $1.20 an hour. Consideration has also been given to BLS Table 3–A which shows the lowest rate actually paid to covered workers in the lowest labor grade with work experience of three months or less. Sixty-six percent of the covered workers in the 34 establishments employing such workers at the time of the wage survey were employed in those plants paying more than $1.20 an hour to all covered workers.

IUE–CIO Exhibit No. 1 shows lowest entrance rates of $1.20 an hour or more for all 14 establishments. "Hiring-in" rates of $1.20 an hour or more also were reported for the 9 lamp plants having contracts with an independent union.

Guided by the above information, I conclude that an hourly wage rate of $1.20 an hour shall be permitted for beginners with 480 hours or less experience.

The record indicates that apprentices are not widely employed in the industry. However, since it has consistently been the policy of the Department to encourage the training of workers in the skilled trades, it appears appropriate to permit employment of bona fide apprentices at rates lower than $1.26 provided their employment is in accordance with standards approved by the Bureau of Apprenticeship, United States Department of Labor.

The general regulations presently permit employment of handicapped workers at subminimum rates on contract work under the act. This authorization was not an issue in the proceedings. For purposes of clarity, however, it appears advisable to include in the determination a specific authorization for such employment.

Proposed determination. Accordingly, upon the findings and conclusions stated herein, notice is hereby given that I propose to amend Title 41 of the Code of Federal Regulations, Part 202, by the addition of § 202.53 (41 CFR Part 202) to read as follows:

§ 202.53 Electric lamp industry—(a) Definition. The electric lamp industry is defined as that industry which manufactures electric bulbs, tubes and related light sources, including but not limited to such products as incandescent filament lamps, sealed beam headlights composed of a filament in a glass shell, vapor and fluorescent lamps, photoflash and photoflood lamps, and the following electric lamp components: Lead-in-wires, support wires, filament, welds, hooks, and metal bases: Provided, however, That this definition shall not include electro-therapeutic lamp units, electronic tubes, X-ray tubes, sealed beam headlights composed of an electric lamp enclosed in a shell of glass or of glass and metal, carbon arc lamps, custom made luminous tube signs, electric lighting fixtures, plastic lamp bases, chemicals, gases, glass blanks, glass tubing, glass rod, and dumet, molybdenum and tungsten wire. For the purpose of this definition an electric lamp is defined as any device the primary purpose of which is to convert electric energy into radiation within the visible spectrum and/or into ultra-violet radiations of wavelengths of not less than 500 Angstrom units, and/or infra-red radiation not longer than 100,000 Angstrom units.

(b) Minimum wages. The minimum wage for persons employed in the manufacture or furnishing of products of the electric lamp industry under contracts subject to the Walsh-Healey Public Contracts Act shall be not less than $1.26 an hour arrived at either on a time or incentive basis.

(c) Subminimum wages authorized. (1) Beginners may be employed at wages not less than $1.20 an hour for a period not to exceed 480 hours. A beginner for the purpose of this determination is a worker who has had no more than 480 hours of experience in the plant.

(2) (i) Handicapped workers may be employed in the industry at wages below the applicable minimum wage specified by the Fair Labor Standards Act of 1938 upon the same terms and conditions as are prescribed for the employment of handicapped workers by the regulations of the Administrator of the Wage and Hour Division of the Department of Labor (29 CFR Parts 524 and 525) under section 14 of the Fair Labor Standards Act.

(ii) The Administrator of the Public Contracts Division is authorized to issue certificates under the Public Contracts Act for the employment of handicapped workers not subject to the Fair Labor Standards Act or subject to different minimum rates of pay under the two acts, at appropriate rates of compensation and in accordance with the standards and procedures prescribed by the applicable regulations issued under the Fair Labor Standards Act.

(3) (i) Apprentices may be employed at wage rates below the statutory minimum of the Fair Labor Standards Act upon the same terms and conditions as are prescribed for the employment of apprentices by the regulations of the Administrator of the Wage and Hour and Public Contracts Divisions of the United States Department of Labor (29 CFR Part 521), under section 14 of the Fair Labor Standards Act.

(3) (ii) Apprentices may be employed at wage rates equal to or in excess of the statutory minimum of the Fair Labor Standards Act but less than $1.26 an hour, provided the apprentice is employed under a written apprenticeship agreement or program which is recorded as meeting the standards of a State Apprenticeship Agency recognized by the Bureau of Apprenticeship, United States Department of Labor; or the standards of the Bureau of Apprenticeship, United States Department of Labor, or which substantially conforms to such standards.

(d) Effect on other obligations. Nothing in this section shall affect any obligations for the payment of minimum wages that an employer may have under any law or agreement more favorable to employees than the requirements of this section.

Within thirty days from the date of the publication of this notice in the FEDERAL REGISTER, interested parties may submit written exceptions to the proposed actions above described. Exceptions should be addressed to the Secretary of Labor, United States Department of Labor, Washington 25, D. C.

Signed at Washington, D. C., this 2nd day of April 1956.

JAMES P. MITCHELL,
Secretary of Labor.

FEDERAL COMMUNICATIONS COMMISSION

[Docket Nos. 11364, 11663; FCC 56-276]

RCA COMMUNICATIONS, INC., AND WESTERN UNION TELEGRAPH CO.

MEMORANDUM OPINION AND ORDER DESIGNATING MATTERS FOR CONSOLIDATED HEARING ON STATED ISSUES

In the matter of RCA Communications, Inc., v. The Western Union Telegraph Company, complaint with respect to Area "C" Pacific Traffic under the International Formula; Docket No. 11364.

In the matter of RCA Communications, Inc., request for appropriate Commission action with respect to alleged illegal practices of The Western Union Telegraph Company in handling traffic destined to various Far Eastern points; Docket No. 11663.

Preliminary statement. 1. This matter is before us as a result of a petition filed by RCA Communications, Inc. (RCAC), on June 24, 1955, asking us to reconsider our Memorandum Opinion and Order (Opinion)[1] of May 25, 1955 (released May 26, 1955), in which we denied a request by RCAC that we institute compliance proceedings against The Western Union Telegraph Company (Western Union) for alleged violations of our decision in Commercial Pacific Cable Co., et al., Docket No. 9292 (1953) and the affirming decision of the Second Circuit Court of Appeals in The Western Union Telegraph Co. v. United States, 217 F. 2d 579 (2d Cir. 1954). In addition to the request for reconsideration, RCAC, in the petition, asks for further relief[2] not contained in its original request.

Background. 2. Under date of April 7, 1955, RCAC, by letter, wrote to the Commission, alleging that Western Union was handling traffic to points in the Far East[3] listed in the International Formula (Formula)[4] as Area C (Pacific)[5] points, and that such practice was in violation of the decisions above mentioned. In its letter RCAC requested that we ask Western Union to state its intentions with respect to the distribution of this traffic, and that, if it did not forthwjth distribute it to the international carriers entitled under the Formula to traffic destined to Area C (of which Western Union allegedly is not one), we institute compliance proceedings.

3. At the same time that RCAC sent this letter to the Commission, RCAC filed a formal complaint (Docket No. 11364) wherein it incorporated said letter, and sought reparations for the deprivation of this traffic through the alleged illegal actions of Western Union. We have not as yet made any disposition of the complaint but propose to act thereon herein.

4. On April 20, 1955, Western Union wrote to the Commission in answer to the RCAC letter. In this answer Western Union contended that RCAC's position was based on a misunderstanding of the scope and effect of the above two decisions, and requested a denial of the RCAC request. On May 18, 1955, Western Union filed an answer to the RCAC complaint in Docket No. 11364, wherein it incorporated its April 20 letter, and, after denying the material allegations of the complaint, requested dismissal thereof.

5. RCAC, by letter of April 27, replied to the Western Union letter, and supported its original position. On May 25, it filed a reply to the Western Union answer to the formal complaint in Docket No. 11364, wherein it incorporated its letter of April 27.

[1] In the matter of RCA Communications, Inc., Request for appropriate Commission action with respect to alleged illegal practices of The Western Union Telegraph Company in handling traffic destined to various Far Eastern points, Mimeo. No. FCC 55-611.

[2] The details with respect to the further relief are set forth below in paragraphs 7 and 8 hereof.

[3] Japan, Korea, Hong Kong, Okinawa, Indonesia, Vietnam, Thailand, Australia, New Zealand, and other points in Australasia are mentioned.

[4] The Commission, as required by section 222 (c) of the Communications Act of 1934, as amended, prescribed a "Formula, Pursuant to section 222 (c) (1) of the Communications Act for the Distribution of Outbound International Traffic Handled by The Western Union Telegraph Company following Merger with Postal Telegraph, Inc." See Application for Merger Western Union and Postal Telegraph, Separate Report of the Commission on Formulas, 10 F. C. C. 184 (1943).

[5] Area C is defined in the Formula as follows: Pacific, Sub-areas: Hawaii; Midway and Guam; Australasia; Remainder of the Far East.

6. In our Opinion of May 25, 1955, which was issued in response to the RCAC letters, we considered the situation described in the RCAC letters and concluded that it was clearly distinguishable from that adjudicated in Docket No. 9292. We, therefore, denied the request of RCAC that we institute compliance proceedings against Western Union.

The instant pleadings. 7. The RCAC petition: In support of its petition of June 24, RCAC alleged that there are two fundamental errors in the Commission's Opinion, namely:

(a) That there was a violation of due process in that the Opinion is based on matters outside "the official record," which according to RCAC consists of only the RCAC letter of April 7, the Western Union letter of April 20, and the RCAC letter of April 27; and

(b) That the Opinion errs in using an "overlap" theory under which traffic to the points in question is classified as being Area A[6] or Area C traffic under the Formula in accordance with the route used to destination (that is, whether it is transmitted across the Atlantic Ocean or the Pacific Ocean, respectively), rather than only by the geographic location of the point of destination.[7]

8. On the basis of the foregoing, RCAC requested that the Commission:

(a) Reconsider and set aside the Opinion;

(b) Order Western Union:

(i) To cease and desist from claiming traffic to the points in question for its cable system;

(ii) To distribute such traffic as Area C traffic under the Formula to the International carriers listed therein as "interested" in Area C; and

(c) Grant RCAC the relief requested in its complaint in Docket No. 11364, and such other relief as the Commission deems appropriate.

9. The Western Union opposition: In its opposition, filed July 1, 1955, Western Union argued (a) that there was no error in considering facts "outside the record," in that all the Commission did was to refuse the RCAC request that the Commission institute compliance proceedings against Western Union to make it comply with the RCAC interpretation of the Commission decision in Docket No. 9292, and in so refusing, clarified the scope and extent of that decision, and interpreted the Formula it prescribed, and is not limited in such clarification and interpretation; (b) that such other rights as RCAC may have in the premises remain undisturbed; and (c) that the Commission is correct in the substantive portions of its Opinion.

[6] Area A is defined in the Formula as "Area 'A'—Atlantic, Sub-areas: United Kingdom and Eire; Continental Europe; Beyond the Continent; including Greenland and Iceland (but excluding Liberia); Liberia; Saint Pierre-Miquelon."

[7] In this connection, it is also alleged that in arriving at the "overlap" theory the Commission made several material factual errors and omitted data essential to the Opinion. These allegations will be considered more fully below, see paragraph 19, infra.

10. The RCAC reply: In its reply, filed on July 11, 1955, RCAC reiterated its contentions with respect to the violation of due process and the incorrectness of the Commission's theory in the Opinion.

Discussion. 11. Due process: In alleging that the Commission has followed an "unfair and arbitrary procedure" in arriving at its Opinion, and that the Opinion violates "the first principle of due process," RCAC appears to assume that its letter instituted a legal proceeding and that as a result of such proceeding we issued an Opinion designed to adjudicate the respective rights of it and Western Union to the traffic in question. RCAC then argues, evidently on the basis of this assumption, that our Opinion must be based on the "record" before the Commission, which, it alleges, consists only of its letter of April 7, 1955, the Western Union letter of April 20, 1955, and the RCAC letter of April 27, 1955. We need not consider whether the RCAC argument would be accurate if, in fact, its letter had instituted a legal proceeding before this Commission. An examination of what transpired shows clearly that the aforementioned correspondence from RCAC and Western Union did not institute any such proceeding before us. Instead, the only matter before us was an informal request, submitted by letter, that we exercise our discretion to institute and expedite compliance proceedings because of an alleged violation of a previous order issued by this Commission in Docket No. 9292.

12. A legal proceeding of the type RCAC appears to believe it instituted, is properly instituted pursuant to section 208 of the Act[8] and Section 1.575 et seq. of our rules. RCAC is well aware of this, as is shown by its complaint in Docket No. 11364, described above. That complaint was, however, designed to determine only the extent of the damages RCAC suffered as a result of the Western Union activities therein described and was based upon the assumption of a pre-existing adjudication that such activities were unlawful. But, in the matter now before us for reconsideration, RCAC did not avail itself of the above-described procedure for instituting a legal proceeding. Instead, it by-passed such procedures and merely requested by informal letter that we institute compliance proceedings on our own initiative and without holding formal hearings,[9] on the basis of RCAC's representations that there was a violation of our decision and order in another proceeding, namely, Docket No. 9292.

13. In its original letter, RCAC did not specify the exact nature of the compliance proceedings it desired we take, but made it clear that it felt that such proceedings should be instituted without the necessity of a hearing and that "ample reason and authority" existed for us to so do, particularly in view of the statement in section 1 of the Communications Act of 1934 (act) that we "shall execute and enforce the provisions of this act." However, in its letter of April 27, 1955, RCAC made specific reference to section 401 of the act, which provides for compliance proceedings. In view of the foregoing, it appeared to us that RCAC was asking that we institute proceedings, on our own initiative, pursuant to the provisions of section 401 (b) of the act, which provides as follows:

> (b) If any person fails or neglects to obey any order of the Commission other than for the payment of money, while the same is in effect, the Commission or any party injured thereby, or the United States, by its Attorney General, may apply to the appropriate district court of the United States for the enforcement of such order. If, after hearing, that court determines that the order was regularly made and duly served, and that the person is in disobedience of the same, the court shall enforce obedience to such order by a writ of injunction or other proper process, mandatory or otherwise, to restrain such person or the officers, agents, or representatives of such person, from further disobedience of such order, or to enjoin upon it or them obedience to the same.

14. It appeared to us that sound administrative policy required that such an exercise of our discretion—namely, affirmative action on a request that we invoke judicial process—must be preceded by a careful examination of all relevant factors. Accordingly, we felt it necessary to determine for ourselves whether the handling of the traffic in question herein was in contravention of our decision and order in Docket No. 9292, either expressly or by necessary implication.

15. In making such a determination, we are not aware of any principle of law or equity which required us to limit our examination of the relevant factors solely to the matters set forth in the letters from RCAC and Western Union, but rather are of the opinion that such exercise of our initiative is a matter to be determined by such reasonable means as we feel to be appropriate under the circumstances.[10] Nor do we feel that our determination as to whether or not we wish to invoke judicial process under section 401 (b) is the type of determination to which RCAC can legally take exception, particularly in view of the fact that under such section RCAC could

[8] Section 208 governs the procedure for filing and handling of complaints regarding "* * * anything done or omitted to be done by any common carrier subject to this act, in contravention of the provisions thereof, * * *."

[9] We note that in its letters RCAC urged that we take action promptly and asserted that a hearing where Western Union would have had an opportunity to justify its actions, was "neither necessary nor desirable" but instead that such a hearing was "contrary to the public interest."

[10] We wish to point out that at least one authority has stated that a "regulatory agency has an affirmative duty to carry out a program, to protect a public interest which frequently is otherwise unrepresented. When parties fail to produce needed facts, the regulatory agency typically must take the initiative in aggressively making its own factual investigation." Davis, Administrative Law 476 (1951). This statement is made in the context of a discussion relating to adversary proceedings in formal hearings before an administrative agency. It is, therefore, more strongly applicable to a situation of the type now before us, which involves only a request addressed to the discretion of the Commission.

16. In view of the foregoing, it would appear that the Commission not only had a right, but also an obligation, to examine any relevant information in its possession to determine whether, on the basis of such information, the situation described by RCAC could properly come within the context of our decision and order in Docket No. 9292. In making our determination, we studied such data as was available in our files and also reviewed the purpose and intent of our decision in Docket No. 9292.

17. We could have disposed of the RCAC request by a simple letter in response to the RCAC letters. However, in view of the importance attached to the matter by RCAC, as evidenced by the claim for damages in the sum of three and one-half million dollars set forth in its complaint in Docket No. 11364, we felt that we should apprize the parties fully of our reasons for denying the RCAC request. Accordingly, we issued our Opinion of May 25, 1955. We should like to emphasize that in such Opinion we acted only upon the request before us, namely, that we institute compliance proceedings against Western Union. We did not purport to preclude RCAC from instituting any formal proceedings designed to establish relevant factual data nor from seeking substantive relief on the basis thereof.

18. In view of all of the foregoing we must specifically reject the RCAC allegation that our procedure herein was either "unfair and arbitrary" or that it violated any "principle of due process." Since there was no proceeding before the Commission, there can be no question of due process or the violation thereof.

19. Reconsideration: As noted above, RCAC also alleged that our Opinion sets forth an incorrect interpretation of the Formula in that it is based on a so-called "overlap" theory [1] and that such interpretation is based on material factual errors. These allegations are amplified and set forth in detail in an affidavit (attached to and made part of the petition) by Lon A. Cearley, Vice President and Controller of the petitioner. Mr. Cearley states that our Opinion is erroneous "in that it contains, among other errors, misstatements of fact, draws erroneous inferences, omits data essential to the scope of the Opinion, and fails to specify to which Far Eastern points the cable system of Western Union is entitled to traffic." On the basis of the foregoing, RCAC asked, among other things, that we reconsider and set aside our Opinion of May 25, 1955.

20. We cannot find that any of the foregoing allegations, even if we were to accept them as accurate, provide a basis for reconsideration of our Opinion and the institution of a compliance proceeding under section 401 of the Act. Section 401 may be invoked only if there is failure or neglect to obey an order of this Commission. There is no showing that Western Union has failed to obey any outstanding order of the Commission with respect to the traffic in question. Docket No. 9292, to which RCAC referred in its original letter and in its petition for reconsideration, was, as is set forth more fully in our Opinion of May 25, 1955, herein, a complaint proceeding which involved certain contracts between Western Union, on the one hand, and Globe and Tropical, on the other hand. At the conclusion of the proceedings in that matter we issued an order requiring Western Union to cease and desist from exchanging traffic with Globe and Tropical pursuant to the aforementioned contracts between Western Union and such companies. So far as we are informed, Western Union has in fact obeyed this order and is no longer exchanging traffic with Globe and Tropical pursuant to the contracts at issue in Docket No. 9292. We have also determined in our Opinion of May 25, 1955, that we did not purport to include in our decision in Docket No. 9292 any general interpretation of the meaning, scope, or applicability of the Formula, except insofar as it was necessary to interpret and apply such Formula to the contracts at issue in that proceeding. Accordingly, even if we were to accept all of the allegations set forth in RCAC's petition for reconsideration and its reply to Western Union's opposition to such position as accurate, there would be no basis for the institution of compliance proceedings by this Commission pursuant to the provisions of section 401 of the act. We must, therefore, deny the petition of RCAC insofar as it asks that we reconsider and vacate our Order of May 25, 1955.

21. Further relief: However, as set forth above, the petition for reconsideration also contains requests for additional relief, which are in the nature of a new complaint against Western Union. In support of such additional relief RCAC raises substantive issues which we feel should be resolved. We shall, therefore, deny the petition for reconsideration without prejudice to RCAC insofar as its right to raise such substantive matters as are set forth in its petition for reconsideration and subsequent reply to the Western Union opposition in further proceedings before us is concerned.

22. The RCAC complaints: We do not feel that a petition for reconsideration is a proper vehicle to request entirely new and different relief or to present substantive allegations to the Commission for the first time. Under ordinary circumstances we would have terminated this matter with the denial of the RCAC petition without prejudice to its right to file such new complaint as it deemed proper. However, there is already pending before us in Docket No. 11364 a complaint from RCAC alleging that because of certain illegal actions on the part of Western Union insofar as the handling of traffic to points in Area C is concerned, RCAC has suffered substantial monetary injury. In this complaint RCAC has asked that we issue an order directing Western Union to transfer additional traffic to RCAC to compensate it for such loss or otherwise make restitution for such loss, and that we grant such further relief as may be warranted in the circumstances. Originally this complaint was based on the assumption that our decision in Docket No. 9292 precluded Western Union from handling the traffic in question. In the petition for reconsideration RCAC has raised substantive issues relating to the right of Western Union to handle such traffic. It also appears that Western Union, the party directly affected thereby, as well as all carriers interested in Area C traffic, were served with copies of the RCAC petition for reconsideration. It further appears that Western Union filed an opposition to such petition wherein it entered a general denial to the RCAC allegations and likewise served all carriers interested in Area C traffic. Finally, it appears that RCAC filed a reply and again served all carriers interested in this traffic. In view of this fact, namely, that in essence the issue has been joined, and in the interest of a prompt disposition of this matter, it does not appear to us that the public interest requires or would be served by action on our part which would (a) necessitate the filing of a formal complaint by RCAC wherein it would again set forth the data contained in its petition for reconsideration, and wherein it would seek the additional relief therein requested, and (b) necessitate a further answer from Western Union wherein it would reiterate what it has already stated in its opposition to the RCAC petition for reconsideration. Accordingly, we shall treat this portion of the petition for reconsideration as if it were a properly filed complaint which has been answered by the defendant, Western Union.

23. As has been set forth above, in its petition for reconsideration, RCAC raises numerous issues of fact with respect to the manner in which Western Union has handled traffic filed with it and destined to the points in Area C at issue herein, as well as with respect to other subjects relevant to a substantive disposition of its complaints. It appears to us that these issues, together with the questions of law raised by RCAC, are sufficiently serious to warrant setting this matter for hearing. Upon consideration of all the facts which will be adduced at such a hearing and of the arguments made by the parties on the basis thereof, we shall be in a position to dispose of this matter. Since the damages sought by RCAC in its complaint in Docket No. 11364 are based on the alleged wrongful actions set forth in the RCAC petition for reconsideration, it appears to us that both matters should be considered together for a prompt and expeditious disposition thereof. Accordingly, we shall consolidate the proceeding we are setting on the complaint issues raised by the RCAC petition for reconsideration with the complaint in Docket 11364.

24. Accordingly, it is ordered, This 28th day of March that the petition for reconsideration, insofar as it requests that we reconsider and set aside our Memorandum Opinion and Order of May 25, 1955, is denied without prejudice to the right of RCA Communications, Inc., (RCAC), The Western Union Telegraph Company (Western Union) or any other party to the proceedings which we are setting for hearing herein to adduce such evidence and make such arguments as may be relevant to a decision on the issues set for hearing herein;

It is further ordered, That, pursuant to the provisions of sections 201, 208 and 222 of the Communications Act of 1934, as amended (act), a public hearing shall be held at a time and place to be specified in a subsequent order on the substantive issues presented in connection with the request for further relief set forth in the petition for reconsideration filed by RCAC on June 24, 1955, the opposition thereto filed by Western Union on July 1, 1955, and the reply filed by RCAC on July 11, 1955, insofar as such further relief was requested in such reply;

It is further ordered, That, pursuant to the provisions of Sections 206 through 209 of the Act, a public hearing shall be held on the issues presented by the pleadings in the complaint proceeding in Docket No. 11364 and that such hearing shall be consolidated with the hearing ordered herein in Docket No. 11663;

It is further ordered, That, without in any way limiting the scope of the hearing on the above-referred to issues, such hearing shall include the following matters:

(a) The manner in which Western Union has heretofore and is now disposing of traffic to the points at issue;

(b) Whether Western Union handled any traffic out of the continental United States over its own facilities directly or by intermediate relay at an overseas or foreign point to any point at issue during the base period for establishing quotas to such points, and, if so, the volume thereof, as well as the routes used from point of origin to point of destination;

(c) Whether Western Union now has a route whereby it handles traffic to any point at issue, and if so, the route used to handle any such traffic from point of origin to point of destination and when such route was established;

(d) Whether Western Union was at any time, or is now, assigned a quota to any point at issue, and if so, whether such quota was, or is, properly assigned, and if not, whether such quota was, or is, properly denied;

(e) The terms of any contract between RCAC and Western Union in effect on September 27, 1943, relating to the interchange of traffic destined to any of the points at issue;

(f) Whether any such contract or any modification thereof is still in effect and, if so, the present terms thereof;

(g) The effect of any such contract, if still in effect, upon the manner in which Western Union must dispose of traffic routed via its facilities and destined to any of the points at issue;

(h) The position taken by the Committee, or members thereof, established pursuant to section XI of the Formula to administer the Formula, with respect to the right of Western Union to handle traffic to the points at issue herein;

(i) What criteria shall be used to determine, with respect to any particular carrier, the area or subarea in which a country is located;

(j) Whether any point may be considered to be in more than one area, and if so, the basis for such determination;

(k) Whether Western Union may lawfully handle traffic to any of the points at issue, and if so, under what conditions.

It is further ordered, That, a copy of this order shall be served on the parties complainant and defendant herein, upon each international telegraph carrier subject to the jurisdiction of this Commission and upon each telegraph carrier entitled to share, in international fixed point-to-point telegraph traffic pursuant to any of the Formulas approved or prescribed by the Commission in the proceedings in Application for Merger of Western Union and Postal Telegraph (Separate Report of the Commission on Formulas, etc.) 10 F. C. C. 184, 197–198 (1943).

It is further ordered, That, each of the persons other than the parties hereto ordered served herein may participate in the proceedings herein by filing a notice of intention to participate within twenty days after the date this order is released.

Adopted: March 28, 1956.

Released: March 30, 1956.

[1] As has been set forth above, under what RCAC calls the "overlap" theory the "area" in which a point is located depends upon the route used by a carrier to serve such point, rather than the actual geographic location of the point. RCAC contends that only the latter criteria is proper.

At a session of the Federal Communications Commission held at its offices in Washington, D. C., on the 28th day of March 1956;

The Commission having under consideration the above-entitled application of the Blackstone Broadcasting Company for a construction permit to increase the daytime power of Station KTBB, Tyler, Texas, from 500 watts to one kilowatt to operate on 600 kilocycles with directional antenna at night, unlimited time; and a request by KTBB for a waiver of § 3.28 (c) of the Commission's rules;

It appearing that the applicant is legally, technically, financially and otherwise qualified, except as may appear from the issues specified below, to operate Station KTBB as proposed, but that the proposed operation may be involved in objectionable interference with Station KTBC, Austin, Texas (590 kc, 1 kw, 5kw-LS, DA-N, U), and that the proposed operation would receive interference from Station KTBC which would be excessive under § 3.28 (c) of the Commission's rules; and

It further appearing that pursuant to section 309 (b) of the Communications Act of 1934, as amended, the subject applicant was advised by letter dated December 30, 1955, of the aforementioned deficiencies and that the Commission was unable to conclude that a grant of the application would be in the public interest; and

It further appearing that the applicant, in a reply dated February 8, 1956, stated that KTBC had agreed to accept the interference that would be caused to that station and attached a copy of a letter addressed to the applicant, dated August 26, 1954, stating that KTBC would not "protest the increase in power"; that the proposed operation would not violate § 3.28 (c) of the rules; and that, in the event the Commission rules that the proposed operation would violate § 3.28 (c), the applicant requests a waiver of that section; and

It further appearing that the Commission is unable to make a determination in this matter on the basis of the data before it and is of the opinion that an evidentiary hearing is necessary to obtain complete information relative to the above-entitled application and the grounds advanced in support of the request for waiver of § 3.28 (c) of the rules to enable the Commission to determine whether the public interest would be served by a grant thereof;

It is ordered, That, pursuant to section 309 (b) of the Communications Act of 1934, as amended, the above-entitled application is designated for hearing, at a time and place to be specified in a subsequent order, upon the following issues:

1. To determine the areas and populations which may be expected to gain or lose primary service from the operation of Station KTBB as proposed, and the availability of other primary service to such areas and populations.

3. To determine whether, because of the interference received, the proposal of KTBB would comply with § 3.28 (c) of the Commission's rules; and if compliance with § 3.28 (c) is not achieved, whether circumstances exist which would warrant a waiver of said section of the rules.

4. To determine, in the light of the evidence adduced pursuant to the foregoing issues, whether the above-entitled application of KTBB should be granted.

[File No. 812–1000]

INTERNATIONAL MINING CORP. AND SUNSET OIL CO.

NOTICE OF AND ORDER FOR HEARING ON APPLICATION FOR AN ORDER EXEMPTING CERTAIN TRANSACTIONS INCIDENT TO A MERGER

APRIL 2, 1956.

Notice is hereby given that International Mining Corporation ("International"), a Delaware corporation and a registered close-end non-diversified investment company, has filed an application pursuant to section 17 (b) of the Investment Company Act of 1940 ("act") for an order exempting from the provisions of section 17 (a) of the act certain transactions incident to a proposed merger of Sunset Oil Company ("Sunset"), a California corporation, into and with International which is to be the surviving corporation. On the effective date of the proposed merger, International's proposed name is to be changed to Sunset International Petroleum Corporation.

Introductory. The Boards of Directors of International and Sunset have taken the steps required of them for approval of the proposed merger by applicable statutes. The proposed merger will also require the affirmative vote of the holders of not less than two-thirds of the outstanding shares of the capital stock of International and Sunset. The Delaware and California statutes confer upon the shareholders of corporations proposing to merge or consolidate the right, upon compliance with certain statutory provisions, to require the appraisal of their shares and the payment of the appraised value in cash.

International was organized in 1936 as successor to a company of the same name organized in 1929. Prior to and since its registration as an investment company under the Act in 1942, International, in addition to its investment securities activities, has owned interests directly or indirectly in mining operations. International's last major operating property, a gold and copper mine located in Mexico was damaged by fire in 1955, and International disposed of this property early in 1956 reserving only a royalty interest. The assets of International now consist principally of cash, United States Government obligations, and investments in securities of unaffiliated issuers. In addition, International has mineral land and natural resource interests which the company characterizes as "minor".

Sunset was organized in 1934 under a plan of reorganization to acquire the properties of Sunset Pacific Oil Company, Marine Corporation, and Marine Refining Company. In 1951, Sunset acquired the producing, refining, and marketing assets of Eagle Oil and Refining Co., Inc. ("Eagle Oil") in exchange for Sunset common stock. The application states that Sunset is primarily engaged in the exploration for and production of oil and gas, and that in conjunction with its producing operations, Sunset operates pipe line and refining facilities, and a retail marketing distribution system.

The capitalization of International at December 31, 1955, consisted of 488,973 shares of outstanding common stock including 1,000 shares of treasury stock with a par value of $1 a share. International's stock is listed on the New York Stock Exchange. The capitalization of Sunset at the same date consisted of 678,788 shares of outstanding common stock with an aggregate stated value of $267,217. Sunset stock is not listed on any securities exchange.

Eagle Oil owns 177,750 shares of International's outstanding common stock and 353,789 shares of Sunset's outstanding common stock, equivalent to 36.35 percent and 52.12 percent, respectively, of the outstanding common stock of International and of Sunset.

Eagle Oil has outstanding 1,000,000 shares of common stock. Of this amount, 125,000 shares are owned by George C. Sheahan, a Vice-President and Director of both Sunset and International, and 365,692 shares are owned beneficially by the following persons and their families:

V. D. Sterling, President and Director of Eagle and Sunset, Morton A. Sterling, Executive Vice-President and Director of Sunset, and Barry H. Sterling, Vice-President and Director of Eagle Oil and Assistant Secretary-Treasurer and Director of International.

Statutory requirements. Eagle Oil is an affiliate of International, and Sunset is an affiliate of Eagle Oil within the definition of "affiliated person" contained in section 2 (a) (3) of the act. Therefore Sunset is an affiliated person of an affiliated person of a registered investment company. Generally speaking, section 17 (a) of the act prohibits an affiliated person of a registered investment company or any affiliated person of such a person, from selling to or purchasing from such registered investment company or any company controlled by such registered investment company, any securities or property, subject to certain exceptions not pertinent here. The Commission upon application pursuant to section 17 (b) may grant an exemption from the provisions of section 17 (a) if it finds that the terms of the proposed transaction, including the consideration to be paid, are reasonable and fair and do not involve overreaching on the part of any person concerned, that the proposed transactions are consistent with the policy of each registered company concerned, as recited in its registration statement and reports filed under the act and is consistent with the general purposes of the act.

The proposed merger. As previously indicated, Sunset will be merged into International which will become the surviving corporation under the name of Sunset International Petroleum Corporation.

The merger agreement provides that the authorized stock of the surviving corporation shall be 5,000,000 shares of common stock with a par value of $1 a share. Each share of the outstanding common stock of Sunset will be converted into three shares of common stock of the surviving corporation. The present shareholders of International will continue to hold their shares as shares of the surviving corporation.

The application states that upon consummation of the merger, the surviving corporation will concentrate on the acquisition, development and exploration of oil and gas properties. It appears that the merger will change the nature of International's business from that of an investment company to an oil and gas enterprise.

International and Sunset have been advised by counsel that, in their opinion, for Federal income tax purposes, no taxable gain or loss will be realized by any of the stockholders of International or Sunset as a result of the merger. The merger agreement also provides that the surviving corporation shall pay all expenses of the merger.

It appearing to the Commission that it is appropriate in the public interest and in the interest of investors that a hearing be held with respect to the application;

It is ordered, Pursuant to section 40 (a) of said act, that a hearing on the aforesaid application under the applicable provisions of the act and of the rules of the Commission thereunder be held on the 24th day of April 1956 at 10:00 a. m., in the offices of the Securities and Exchange Commission, 425 Second Street NW., Washington 25, D. C. At such time the Hearing Room Clerk will advise as to the room in which such hearing will be held. Any person desiring to be heard or otherwise wishing to participate in this proceeding is directed to file with the Secretary of the Commission his application as provided by Rule XVII of the Commission's rules of practice, on or before the date provided in the rule, setting forth any issues of law or facts which he desires to controvert or any additional issues which he deems raised by this notice and order or by such application.

It is further ordered, That William W. Swift, or any officer or officers of the Commission, designated by it for that purpose, shall preside at said hearing. The officer so designated is hereby authorized to exercise all the powers granted to the Commission under Sections 41 and 42 (b) of the Investment Company Act of 1940 and to a hearing officer under the Commission's rules of practice.

The Division of Corporate Regulation having advised the Commission that it has made a preliminary examination of the application, and that upon the basis thereof the following matters and questions are presented for consideration, without prejudice to its specifying additional matters and questions upon further examination:

(1) Whether the terms of the proposed transactions, including the considerations to be paid or received, are reasonable and fair and do not involve overreaching on the part of any person concerned;

(2) Whether the proposed transactions are consistent with the policy of International, as recited in its registration statement and reports filed pursuant to the act;

(3) Whether the proposed transactions are consistent with the general purposes of the act.

It is further ordered, That at the aforesaid hearing attention be given to the foregoing matters and questions.

It is further ordered, That the Secretary of the Commission shall give notice of the aforesaid hearing by mailing a copy of this notice and order by registered mail to International Mining Corporation and that notice to all persons shall be given by publication of this notice and order in the FEDERAL REGISTER and that a general release of this Commission in respect of this notice and order be distributed to the press and mailed to the mailing list for releases.

It is further ordered, That International Mining Corporation shall give notice of this hearing to all of its stockholders (insofar as the identity of such security holders is known or available) by mailing to each of said persons a copy of this notice and order to his last known address at least 13 days prior to the date set for said hearing.

By the Commission.

TITLE 7—AGRICULTURE

Chapter IX—Agricultural Marketing Service (Marketing Agreements and Orders), Department of Agriculture

[Navel Orange Reg. 82]

PART 914—NAVEL ORANGES GROWN IN ARIZONA AND DESIGNATED PART OF CALIFORNIA

LIMITATION OF HANDLING

§ 914.382 Navel Orange Regulation 82—(a) Findings. (1) Pursuant to the marketing agreement, as amended, and Order No. 14, as amended (7 CFR Part 914), regulating the handling of navel oranges grown in Arizona and designated part of California, effective September 22, 1953, under the applicable provisions of the Agricultural Marketing Agreement Act of 1937, as amended (7 U. S. C. 601 et seq.), and upon the basis of the recommendation and information submitted by the Navel Orange Administrative Committee, established under the said amended marketing agreement and order, and upon other available information, it is hereby found that the limitation of handling of such navel oranges, as hereinafter provided, will tend to effectuate the declared policy of the act.

(2) It is hereby further found that it is impracticable and contrary to the public interest to give preliminary notice, engage in public rule-making procedure, and postpone the effective date of this section until 30 days after publication thereof in the FEDERAL REGISTER (60 Stat. 237; 5 U. S. C. 1001 et seq.) because the time intervening between the date when information upon which this section is based became available and the time when this section must become effective in order to effectuate the declared policy of the act is insufficient, and a reasonable time is permitted, under the circumstances, for preparation for such effective time; and good cause exists for making the provisions hereof effective as hereinafter set forth. The Navel Orange Administrative Committee held an open meeting on April 5, 1956, after giving due notice thereof, to consider supply and market conditions for navel oranges and the need for regulation; interested persons were afforded an opportunity to submit information and views at this meeting; the recommendation and supporting information for regulation during the period specified herein was promptly submitted to the Department after such meeting was held; the provisions of this section, including its effective time, are identical with the aforesaid recommendation of the committee, and information concerning such provisions and effective time has been disseminated among handlers of such navel oranges; it is necessary, in order to effectuate the declared policy of the act, to make this section effective during the period herein specified; and compliance with this section will not require any special preparation on the part of persons subject thereto which cannot be completed on or before the effective date hereof.

(b) Order. (1) The quantity of navel oranges grown in Arizona and designated part of California which may be handled during the period beginning at 12:01 a. m., P. s. t., April 8, 1956, and ending at 12:01 a. m., P. s. t., April 15, 1956, is hereby fixed as follows:

(i) District 1: 231,000 cartons;
(ii) District 2: 693,000 cartons;
(iii) District 3: Unlimited movement;
(iv) District 4: Unlimited movement.

(2) Navel oranges handled pursuant to the provisions of this section shall be subject to any size restrictions applicable thereto which have heretofore been issued on the handling of such oranges and which are effective during the period specified herein.

(3) As used in this section, "handled," "District 1," "District 2," "District 3," and "District 4," have the same meaning as when used in said amended marketing agreement and order; and "carton" means the standard one-half orange, grapefruit, or lemon box set forth as standard container number 58 in section 828.83, as amended, of the Agricultural Code of California.

(Sec. 5, 49 Stat. 753, as amended; 7 U. S. C. 608c)

§ 922.362 Valencia Orange Regulation 62—(a) Findings. (1) Pursuant to Order No. 22 (7 CFR Part 922), regulating the handling of Valencia oranges grown in Arizona and designated part of California, effective March 31, 1954, under the applicable provisions of the Agricultural Marketing Agreement Act of 1937, as amended (7 U. S. C. 601 et seq.), and upon the basis of the recommendations and information submitted by the Valencia Orange Administrative Committee, established under the said order, and upon other available information, it is hereby found that the limitation of handling of such Valencia oranges, as hereinafter provided, will tend to effectuate the declared policy of the act.

(2) It is hereby further found that it is impracticable and contrary to the public interest to give preliminary notice, engage in public rule-making procedure, and postpone the effective date of this section until 30 days after publication thereof in the FEDERAL REGISTER (60 Stat. 237; 5 U. S. C. 1001 et seq.) because the time intervening between the date when information upon which this section is based became available and the time when this section must become effective in order to effectuate the declared policy of the act is insufficient, and a reasonable time is permitted, under the circumstances, for preparation for such effective time; and good cause exists for making the provisions hereof effective as hereinafter set forth. The Valencia Orange Administrative Committee held an open meeting on April 5, 1956, after giving due notice thereof, to consider supply and market conditions for Valencia oranges and the need for regulation; interested persons were afforded an opportunity to submit information and views at this meeting; the recommendation and supporting information for regulation during the period specified herein was promptly submitted to the Department after such meeting was held; the provisions of this section, including its effective time, are identical with the aforesaid recommendation of the committee, and information concerning such provisions and effective time has been disseminated among handlers of such Valencia oranges; it is necessary, in order to effectuate the declared policy of the act, to make this section effective during the period herein specified; and compliance with this section will not require any special preparation on the part of persons subject thereto which cannot be completed on or before the effective date hereof.

(b) Order. (1) The quantity of Valencia oranges grown in Arizona and designated part of California which may be handled during the period beginning at 12:01 a. m., P. s. t., April 8, 1956, and ending at 12:01 a. m., P. s. t., April 15, 1956, is hereby fixed as follows:

(i) District 1: 29,860 cartons;

(ii) District 2: Unlimited movement;

(iii) District 3: Unlimited movement.

(2) Valencia oranges handled pursuant to the provisions of this section shall be subject to any size restrictions applicable thereto which have heretofore been issued on the handling of such oranges and which are effective during the period specified herein.

(3) As used in this section, "handled," "handler," "District 1," "District 2," and "District 3," have the same meaning as when used in said order; and "carton" means the standard one-half orange, grapefruit or lemon box set forth as standard container number 58 in section 828.83, as amended, of the Agricultural Code of California.

(2) It is hereby further found that it is impracticable and contrary to the public interest to give preliminary notice, engage in public rule-making procedure, and postpone the effective date of this section until 30 days after publication thereof in the FEDERAL REGISTER (60 Stat. 237; 5 U. S. C. 1001 et seq.) because the time intervening between the date when information upon which this section is based became available and the time when this section must become effective in order to effectuate the declared policy of the act is insufficient, and a reasonable time is permitted, under the circumstances, for preparation for such effective time; and good cause exists for making the provisions hereof effective as hereinafter set forth. Shipments of lemons, grown in the State of California or in the State of Arizona, are currently subject to regulation pursuant to said amended marketing agreement and order; the recommendation and supporting information for regulation during the period specified herein was promptly submitted to the Department after an open meeting of the Lemon Administrative Committee on April 4, 1956, such meeting was held, after giving due notice thereof to consider recommendations for regulation, and interested persons were afforded an opportunity to submit their views at this meeting; the provisions of this section, including its effective time, are identical with the aforesaid recommendation of the committee, and information concerning such provisions and effective time has been disseminated among handlers of such lemons; it is necessary, in order to effectuate the declared policy of the act, to make this section effective during the period hereinafter specified; and compliance with this section will not require any special preparation on the part of persons subject thereto which cannot be completed by the effective time thereof.

TITLE 16—COMMERCIAL PRACTICES

Chapter I—Federal Trade Commission

[Docket 6494]

NORITO CO. AND I. R. F. SPIEGEL

Subpart—Advertising falsely or misleadingly: § 13.170 Qualities or properties of product or service; § 13.205 Scientific or other relevant facts.

(Sec. 6, 38 Stat. 721; 15 U. S. C. 46. Interpret or apply sec. 5, 38 Stat. 719, as amended; 15 U. S. C. 45) [Cease and desist order. The Norito Company et al., Chicago, Ill., Docket 6494, March 27, 1956]

In the Matter of The Norito Company, a Corporation, and I. R. F. Spiegel, Individually and as an Officer and Director of Said Corporation

This proceeding was heard by a hearing examiner upon the complaint of the Commission—charging a corporation and its president, with office in Chicago, with advertising in newspapers, magazines, circulars, etc., that the "Norito-Plus Tablets" they sold and distributed in commerce constituted a reliable treatment and cure for any kind of arthritis or rheumatism; constituted an effective substitute for laboratory-made ACTH and would relieve ACTH deficiency in the body; would stimulate the pituitary gland to produce more ACTH and thereby increase the body's production of cortisone-like substances; would erect a "pain-block" in the thalamus to prevent pain impulses from reaching the brain; and would "expel pain-continuing pain-wastes" more quickly—and respondents' answer admitting all the material allegations of the complaint.

Upon this basis, the hearing examiner made his initial decision, including findings and order to cease and desist, which, by the Commission's order of March 27, 1956, became the "Decision of the Commission".

Said order to cease and desist is as follows:

It is ordered, That respondents, The Norito Company, a corporation, and its officers, and I. R. F. Spiegel, individually and as an officer and director of said corporation, and respondents' agents, representatives and employees, directly or through any corporate or other device, in connection with the offering for sale, sale and distribution of Norito-Plus Tablets or any other product of substantially the same composition or possessing substantially similar properties whether sold under the same name or under any other name, do forthwith cease and desist from, directly or indirectly:

1. Disseminating, or causing to be disseminated, by means of the United States mails, or by any other means in commerce, as "commerce" is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, any advertisement which represents, directly or by implication:

(a) That Norito-Plus Tablets, in any amount, however taken,

(1) Will constitute an adequate, effective or reliable treatment for any kind of arthritis or rheumatism;

(2) Will arrest the progress of, correct the underlying causes, or cure any kind of arthritis or rheumatism;

(3) Will constitute an adequate or effective substitute for laboratory-made ACTH and relieve ACTH deficiency in the body;

(4) Will stimulate the pituitary gland in the human body to produce more ACTH and will increase the production of cortisone-like substances in the human body;

(5) Will erect a "pain-block" in the thalamus or prevent pain impulses from reaching the brain;

(6) Will afford any relief of the pains of arthritis or rheumatism in excess of temporary relief of minor pains; or that said preparation will prevent the recurrence of pain;

(7) Will expel "pain-continuing pain-wastes";

(b) That pain causes pain-wastes;

2. Disseminating or causing to be disseminated any advertisements by any means, for the purpose of inducing, or which are likely to induce, directly, or indirectly, the purchase in commerce, as "commerce" is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, of the drug preparation Norito-Plus Tablets, which advertisements contain any of the representations prohibited in paragraph 1. of this order.

By said "Decision of the Commission," report of compliance was required as follows:

It is ordered, That respondents The Norito Company, a corporation, and I. R. F. Spiegel, individually and as an officer and director of said corporation, shall, within sixty (60) days after service upon them of this order, file with the Commission a report in writing setting forth in detail the manner and form in which they have complied with the order to cease and desist.

Issued: March 27, 1956.

By the Commission.

[SEAL] ROBERT M. PARRISH, Secretary.

The original certificate shall be forwarded by the collector to the consignee. The duplicate copy shall be given to the exporter and the triplicate copy shall be retained.

(f) Whenever boxes or barrels alleged to have been manufactured from American shooks or staves are shipped to the United States from a person abroad other than the one to whom they were exported from the United States, the importer shall be required to obtain from the foreign consignee to whom the shooks or staves were originally exported from this country the certificate or certificates, customs Form 4479, covering the exportation of the shooks or staves from the United States, or an extract therefrom signed by such consignee, showing the number of shooks or staves covered by such certificate or certificates, together with the number of superficial feet of such shooks or staves. When returns in the form of boxes, barrels, etc. entirely account for the shooks and staves exported as shown on the appropriate customs Form 4479, the collector maintaining the account shall so inform the collector making inquiry about the merchandise being imported and alleged to contain shooks or staves covered by the particular exportation.

(h) A record of cloth boards of domestic manufacture exported to be wrapped with foreign textiles shall be kept by collectors of customs in a similar manner as for shooks and staves. Upon receipt, from the collector at the port of exportation of the shooks and staves, of corroboration that the records of exportation do not conflict materially with such claim, the exemption may be allowed. If the claim for an exemption is disallowed in full or in part, the importer may file a request, within 15 days of the date of the collector's notice to him of any disallowance, for referral of the question to the Commissioner of Customs for review.

Chapter II—Civil Aeronautics Administration, Department of Commerce

[Amdt. 190]

PART 609—STANDARD INSTRUMENT APPROACH PROCEDURES

PROCEDURE ALTERATIONS

The standard instrument approach procedure alterations appearing hereinafter are adopted to become effective when indicated in order to promote safety. Compliance with the notice, procedures, and effective date provisions of section 4 of the Administrative Procedure Act would be impracticable and contrary to the public interest, and therefore is not required.

Part 609 is amended as follows:

NOTE: Where the general classification (LFR, VAR, ADF, ILS, GCA, or VOR), location, and procedure number (if any) of any procedure in the amendments which follow, are identical with an existing procedure, that procedure is to be substituted for the existing one, as of the effective date given, to the extent that it differs from the existing procedure; where a procedure is canceled, the existing procedure is revoked; new procedures are to be placed in appropriate alphabetical sequence within the section amended.

1. The low frequency range procedures prescribed in § 609.6 are amended to read in part:

LFR STANDARD INSTRUMENT APPROACH PROCEDURE

Bearings, headings, and courses are magnetic. Distances are in statute miles unless otherwise indicated. Elevations and altitudes are in feet, MSL. Ceilings are in feet above airport elevation.

If an LFR instrument approach is conducted at the below named airport, it shall be in accordance with the following instrument approach procedure, unless an approach is conducted in accordance with a different procedure for such airport authorized by the Administrator of Civil Aeronautics. Initial approaches shall be made over specified routes. Minimum altitude(s) shall correspond with those established for en route operation in the particular area or as set forth below.

If a GCA instrument approach is conducted at the below named airport, it shall be in accordance with the following instrument procedure, unless an approach is conducted in accordance with a different procedure for such airport authorized by the Administrator of Civil Aeronautics. Initial approaches shall be made over specified routes. Minimum altitude(s) shall correspond with those established for en route operation in the particular area or as set forth below. Positive identification must be established with the radar controller. From initial contact with GCA to final authorized landing minimums the instructions of the radar controller are mandatory except when (A) visual contact is established on final approach at or before descent to the authorized landing minimums, or (B) at pilot's discretion if it appears desirable to discontinue the approach. Except when the radar controller may direct otherwise prior to final approach, a missed approach shall be executed as provided below when (A) communication on final approach is lost for more than 5 seconds during a PAR approach, or for more than 30 seconds during an ASR approach; (B) directed by radar controller; (C) visual contact is not established upon descent to authorized landing minimums; or (D) if landing is not accomplished.

TITLE 32—NATIONAL DEFENSE

Chapter I—Office of the Secretary of Defense

Subchapter A—Armed Services Procurement Regulations

[Amdt. 11]

MISCELLANEOUS AMENDMENTS

The following amendments are made to this subchapter:

SUBPART C—BASIC POLICIES

A new § 1.309 has been added to implement P. L. 664, 83d Congress (15 U. S. C. 616a, 68 Stat. 832), which amends section 901 of the Merchant Marine Act, 1936 (46 U. S. C. 1241). The amendment requires, generally, the transportation of at least 50 percent of certain military supplies by privately owned United States commercial vessels when such supplies are transported by sea. Section 1.309 reads as follows:

§ 1.309 Preference for United States-flag privately owned ocean carriers—(a) Definitions. As used in this section:

(1) "Dry bulk carriers" are ships for the carriage of shipload lots of homogeneous unmarked cargoes such as grain, coal, cement and lumber;

(2) "Dry cargo liners" are ships used for the carriage of heterogeneous marked cargoes in parcel lots. However, any cargo can be carried in such ships, including part cargoes of bulk items such as those mentioned in subparagraph (1) of this paragraph, or, when carried in deep tanks, bulk liquids such as petroleum and vegetable oils;

(3) "Tankers" are ships used for the carriage of bulk liquid cargoes such as liquid petroleum products, vegetable oils and molasses;

(4) "Government vessel" means a vessel owned by the United States Government and operated directly by the Government or for the Government by an agent or contractor, including privately owned United States-flag vessels under bareboat charter to the Government;

(5) "Private United States vessel" means a privately owned United States-flag commercial vessel, including such vessels when under voyage or time charter to the United States Government, and including Government-owned vessels under bareboat charter to private operators; and

(6) "United States-flag vessels" when used independently means both Government vessels and private United States vessels.

(b) General. It is the policy of the Department of Defense, in furtherance of the Cargo Preference Act (68 Stat. 832; 46 U. S. C. A. 1241 (b)) and the act of April 28, 1904 (33 Stat. 518; 10 U. S. C. 1365; 34 U. S. C. 528), to encourage and foster the American merchant marine. When transportation of supplies by ocean vessel is required:

(1) Private United States vessels shall be employed for the transportation of at least 50 percent of the aggregate gross tonnage per annum of the following categories of supplies:

(i) Supplies owned by the Government and in the possession of a Military Department, or of a contractor, or subcontractor of any tier, of a Military Department;

(ii) Supplies for the use of the United States which are contracted for and require subsequent delivery to a Military Department but are not owned by the Government at the time of shipment; and

(iii) Supplies procured, contracted for or otherwise obtained for nonreimbursable contribution to foreign assistance programs, but which are not owned by the Government at the time of shipment: Provided, That this requirement shall not extend to the ocean transportation between foreign countries of supplies procured with local currency funds made available, or derived from funds made available, under the Mutual Security Act.

Provided, That the allocation of gross tonnage will be computed separately for dry bulk carriers, dry cargo liners, and tankers and in such a manner as to assure fair and reasonable participation by geographic areas; and provided, That pivate United States vessels are available at fair and reasonable rates for such vessels;

(2) Only United States-flag vessels will be employed for the transportation of the supplies defined in subparagraph (1) (i) of this paragraph unless such vessels are not available at fair and reasonable United States-flag rates.

(c) Applicability. (1) For the purposes of this paragraph the following geographic areas are established:

(i) North Atlantic. Includes Eastern Canada from the United States border to Goose Bay, Labrador; and Narsarssuak, Greenland.

(ii) U. S. East Coast. Includes the eastern United States from the Canadian border to (and including) Key West, Florida.

(xvii) Western Mexico and Central America. Includes the western coast of Mexico and the western coast of Central America.

(xviii) Western South America. Includes the western coast of South America from (and including) the Republic of Colombia to Cape Horn, and the Pacific Island possessions of South American countries.

(xix) Exempt areas. (a) Alaska, north of Cape Prince of Wales.

(b) Greenland, except Narsarssuak.

(c) Northern and eastern Canada from Goose Bay, Labrador, to Alaska.

(d) Ports and facilities under security restrictions in otherwise nonexempt areas.

(e) Antarctica.

(2) The procedures set forth in this subparagraph are applicable to all ocean shipments of supplies except:

(i) Shipments in vessels assigned to United States Navy fleets other than the Military Sea Transportation Service;

(ii) Shipments which originate or terminate in "exempt areas" as established in subparagraph (1) of this paragraph;

(iii) Shipments which originate and terminate in the same geographic area: Provided, however, That supplies of the type described in paragraph (b) (1) (i) of this section shall be transported in United States-flag vessels to the extent such vessels are available at fair and reasonable United States-flag rates;

(iv) Shipments aboard vessels of the Panama Canal Company; and

(v) Shipments of classified supplies where the classification prohibits the use of non-Government vessels.

(d) Procedures. (1) Ocean transportation of supplies owned by the Government and in the possession of either a Military Department, or a contractor, or subcontractor of any tier, of a Military Department, will be provided by the Military Sea Transportation Service. Accordingly, any contract which may involve ocean transportation of property owned by the Government and in the possession of the contractor or any of its subcontractors (including any contract under which title to property may pass to the Government prior to shipment) shall include a provision requiring the shipment of such property only as directed by the Contracting Officer, who shall be guided by this subchapter and applicable Departmental procedures. The Military Sea Transportation Service shall take such action as may be necessary and practicable to assure proper utilization of Government vessels and private United States vessels in accordance with § 1.310 and applicable service regulations. The Commander of the Military Sea Transportation Service, or his designated representative, is authorized to make any determination as to availability of United States-flag vessels required to assure such proper utilization.

(2) (i) Except as provided in subdivision (ii) of this subparagraph, procuring activities shall include the following clause in any contract which may involve the ocean transportation of supplies of the type described in paragraph (b) (1) (ii) and (iii) of this section:

EMPLOYMENT OF OCEAN GOING VESSELS

If ocean transportation is required after the date of award of this contract in delivering any of the supplies to be furnished hereunder, the Contractor, promptly after each shipment, shall furnish to the Contracting Officer one copy of the applicable ocean shipping document indicating for each shipment made under this contract the name and nationality of the vessel and the measurement tonnage (40 cubic feet) of dry cargo, or long tons (2,240 pounds) of bulk liquid cargo, shipped on such vessel.

Additional provisions concerning the vessels to be used may be inserted in accordance with Departmental procedures.

(ii) The contract shall include the following clause in lieu of the clause set forth in subdivision (i) of this subparagraph (a) when determined by the head of a Procuring Activity to be necessary to assure proper implementation of the policy expressed in this section or (b) when the procuring activity has been instructed, pursuant to paragraph (e) (2) of this section, that particular supplies of the type described in paragraph (b) (1) (ii) and (iii) of this section are to be carried exclusively in private United States vessels:

PREFERENCE FOR UNITED STATES-FLAG VESSELS

(a) After the date of award of this contract, the Contractor shall employ privately owned United States-flag commercial vessels, and no others, in the transportation by sea of any supplies to be furnished hereunder: Provided, however, That if such vessels are not available for timely shipment at fair and reasonable rates for such vessels, the Contractor shall so notify the Contracting Officer and request authorization to ship in foreign flag vessels or designation of available United States-flag vessels. If the Contractor is authorized in writing by the Contracting Officer to ship such supplies in foreign flag vessels, the contract price shall be equitably adjusted to reflect the difference in costs of shipping such supplies on privately owned United States-flag commercial vessels and foreign flag vessels.

(b) Promptly after each shipment the Contractor shall furnish the Contracting Officer one copy of the applicable shipping document indicating for each shipment made under this contract the name and nationality of the vessel and the measurement tonnage (40 cubic feet) of dry cargo, or long tons (2,240 pounds) of bulk liquid cargo, shipped on such vessels.

(e) Responsibilities—(1) Military Departments. (i) Each Military Department will furnish quarterly reports to the Office of the Secretary of Defense, showing the gross tonnage of all supplies owned, procured, contracted for or otherwise obtained (computed separately for dry bulk carriers, dry cargo liners, and tankers) which have been transported by ocean carrier, during the report period. Such report will consist of two parts. Part I will include all tonnage subject to this section except Mutual Defense Assistance Program tonnage and Part II will show all Mutual Defense Assistance Program tonnage. The report will also show the geographic area of origin and of destination and shall separately reflect all such information for:

(a) Private United States vessels;

(b) Government vessels (showing separately where Government vessels were used due to nonavailability of private United States vessels); and

(c) Foreign-flag vessels (showing separately where foreign vessels were used due to nonavailability of United States-flag vessels).

Cargoes transported under arrangements made by the Military Sea Transportation Service will be excluded from the reports made by the Military Departments. Until a Department of Defense report form is announced in Part 16 of this subchapter, the Military Departments will maintain records of required information and prepare reports in accordance with Departmental procedures. After promulgation, the appropriate Department of Defense form will be used by the Military Departments in furnishing the required reports, except that if a Military Department develops, for its own use, reports which meet the requirements of this section, and which are acceptable to the Assistant Secretary of Defense (Supply and Logistics), such reports may be forwarded in lieu of the Department of Defense form.

(ii) The Department of Navy will also furnish quarterly reports in two parts as described in subdivision (i) of this subparagraph to the Office of the Secretary of Defense showing the gross tonnage of all supplies (computed separately for dry bulk carriers, dry cargo liners, and tankers) for which transportation has been arranged by the Military Sea Transportation Service by geographic areas of origin and destination for:

(a) Private United States vessels;

(b) Government vessels (showing separately where Government vessels were used due to nonavailability of private United States vessels); and

(c) Foreign-flag vessels (showing separately where foreign vessels were used due to nonavailability of United States-flag vessels).

(2) Office of the Secretary of Defense. The Office of the Secretary of Defense will evaluate the reports submitted under subparagraph (1) of this paragraph. In the event the evaluation of the reports indicates the need for increased utilization of private United States vessels, the Office of the Secretary of Defense will issue appropriate instructions to the Military Departments.

PART 3—PROCUREMENT BY NEGOTIATION

SUBPART D—TYPES OF CONTRACTS

Section 3.405–3 has been added to set forth uniform policy concerning conditions under which letter contracts may be awarded, limitations upon the authority to use them, and minimum requirements concerning contract clauses.

§ 3.405–3 Letter contract—(a) Description. A letter contract is a written preliminary contractual instrument which authorizes immediate commencement of manufacture of supplies, or performance of services, including, but not limited to, preproduction planning and the procurement of necessary materials.

(b) Applicability. A letter contract may be entered into when (1) the interests of national defense demand that the contractor be given a binding commitment so that work can be commenced immediately, and (2) negotiation of a definitive contract in sufficient time to meet the procurement need is not possible, as, for example, when the nature of the work involved prevents the preparation of definitive requirements, specifications, or cost data.

(c) Limitations. (1) A letter contract shall be used only after a determination in accordance with Departmental procedures that no other type of contract is suitable.

(2) A letter contract shall not be entered into without competition when competition is practicable.

(3) A letter contract shall be superseded by a definitive contract at the earliest practicable date. This date shall be prior to:

(i) the expiration of 180 days from the date of the letter contract; or

(ii) 40 percent of the production of the supplies, or the performance of the work, called for under the contract; whichever occurs first. In extreme cases, an additional period may be authorized in accordance with Departmental procedures.

(4) The maximum liability of the Government stated in the letter contract generally shall not exceed 50 percent of the total estimated cost of the procurement, but this liability may be increased in accordance with Departmental procedures.

(d) Content. Letter contracts shall be specifically negotiated and shall, as a minimum requirement, include agreement as to the following:

(1) That the contractor will proceed immediately with performance of the contract, including procurement of necessary materials;

(2) The extent and method of payments in the event of termination either for the convenience of the Government or for default;

(3) That the contractor is not authorized to expend moneys or incur obligations in excess of the maximum liability of the Government as stated in the letter contract;

(4) The type of definitive contract;

(5) As many definitive contract provisions as possible;

(6) That the contractor shall provide such price and cost information as may reasonably be required by the Contracting Officer;

(7) That the contractor and the Government shall promptly enter into negotiations in good faith to reach agreement upon and execute a definitive contract.

PART 5—INTERDEPARTMENTAL PROCUREMENT

SUBPART A—PROCUREMENT UNDER FEDERAL SUPPLY SCHEDULE CONTRACTS

Revisions to §§ 5.103, 5.501 through 5.508 and 5.701, prescribe forms to be used in connection with interdepartmental procurements (from GSA and under the Economy Act of 1932). In addition, these revisions clarify the procedure in connection with the purchase of blind-made products.

§ 5.103 Mandatory use of Federal Supply Schedules. Those classes of supplies and services, the procurement of which under Federal Supply Schedules is designated as mandatory on the Department of Defense, are listed in § 5.103–2. Procurement of such supplies and services shall be effected by placing delivery orders on DD Form 702 or DD Form 738 (see §§ 16.303 and 16.304 of this subchapter) under the applicable Federal Supply Schedule contract as required by the provisions of the corresponding Federal Supply Schedule.

SUBPART E—PROCUREMENT OF BLIND-MADE SUPPLIES

Sections 5–501 to 5.506 have been revised as follows and §§ 5.507 and 5.508 revoked:

§ 5.501 General. Supplies listed in the Schedule of Blind-Made Products shall be procured in accordance with the policies and procedures set forth in this subpart.

§ 5.502 Schedule of supplies which are blind-made. Supplies manufactured by agencies for the blind are listed in the Schedule of Blind-Made Products (referred to in this subpart as the Schedule), now printed in separate loose-leaf form, copies of which may be obtained from any of the General Services Administration Regional Offices or Depots listed in § 5.204. Items available from stocks at General Services Administration Stores Depots are so identified in the Schedule.

§ 5.503 Mandatory procurement of blind-made supplies. (a) Except as provided in § 5.402, supplies listed in the Schedule shall be procured from agencies for the blind. Orders for such supplies shall be submitted to the General Services Administration Stores Depot which can best serve the procuring activity or installation, except that when one of the conditions set forth in this paragraph is present, procurement shall be through the National Industries for the Blind.

(1) Supplies require overseas packaging or packing;

(2) Supplies are required in carload lots, as described in the Consolidated Freight Classification for the commodity concerned;

(3) Supplies are stocked by General Services Administration Stores Depots, but the procuring activity or installation is so located that it is more practical and economical to purchase directly from the agency for the blind which manufactures the supplies, rather than from the stores depot; or

(4) The schedule indicates that the supplies are not stocked by General Services Administration Stores Depots.

(b) Supplies listed in the Schedule may be procured from commercial sources under any of the conditions set forth below without securing clearance;

(1) Military necessity requires delivery within two weeks;

(2) The procurement is less than a single unit as listed in the Schedule or is for $25 or less; or

(3) Supplies are both procured and used outside the continental United States and Alaska.

§ 5.504 Procurement procedure.

§ 5.504–1 From General Services Administration Stores Depots. When procurement of blind-made supplies is to be effected from a General Services Administration Stores Depot, such procurement shall be made by submitting a delivery order on DD Form 702 or DD Form 738 (see §§ 16.303, 16.304 of this subchapter) to the General Services Administration Stores Depot which can best serve the procuring activity or installation.

§ 5.504–2 Through National Industries for the Blind. When procurement of blind-made supplies is to be effected through the National Industries for the Blind, such procurement shall be made by submitting directly to the National Industries for the Blind, 15 West 16th Street, New York 11, New York, a request, in letter form, for an allocation. Upon receipt of the request, requirements will be allocated by the National Industries for the Blind and the procuring activity will be notified of the name and location of the agency designated to manufacture the requirements. Upon receipt of such notification, a delivery order on DD Form 702 or DD Form 738, as appropriate, shall be issued to the designated agency for the blind.

§ 5.505 Clearances. In addition to the exceptions listed in § 5.503 (b) the Military Departments may procure from commercial sources, supplies of the types listed in the Schedule only to the extent that such procurement is specifically authorized in clearances issued by National Industries for the Blind or General Services Administration as provided below.

§ 5.505–1 Emergency requirements. In an emergency when the required delivery date is in excess of two weeks, procurement of supplies of the classes listed in the Schedule may be made from a commercial source: Provided, however, That a clearance shall be obtained, prior to the purchase, from the General Services Administration regional office which normally serves the procuring activity or installation.

§ 5.505–2 Supplies not available from agencies for the blind. When a request for supplies is submitted to National Industries for the Blind and notification is received that none of the agencies for the blind can furnish the supplies within the period specified, an open-market purchase of the items listed in such notification may be effected: Provided, That purchase action is instituted within 30 days from the date of notification.

§ 5.506 Optional procurement of blind-made supplies. Supplies of any type or classification may be procured from agencies for the blind in any quantity, including less than carload lots, when such agency is the low bidder or offeror in response to an invitation for bids or request for proposals.

SUBPART G—PROCUREMENT UNDER THE ECONOMY ACT FROM OR THROUGH ANOTHER FEDERAL AGENCY

Section 5.701, as revised, reads as follows:

§ 5.701 Authorization and policy relating to placing and filling orders. Each procuring activity, when it is in the interest of the Government to do so, may place delivery orders, on DD Form 702 or DD Form 738 (see §§ 16.303 and 16.304 of this subchapter), with any other Government department or agency for supplies or services that any such requisitioned department or agency may be in a position to furnish or perform or to obtain by contract. Generally, an order for supplies or services will not be placed with a department or agency which is not in a position to furnish the supplies or is not equipped to perform the services, except that an order may be filled by means of an outside contract with a commercial source of supply if the order is placed by any one of the following: Department of the Army, Department of the Navy, Department of the Air Force, Department of the Treasury, Civil Aeronautics Administration, or Maritime Commission. An order for services shall not be placed with a department or agency when such services can be performed as conveniently or more cheaply by private contractors.

PART 7—CONTRACT CLAUSES AND FORMS

SUBPART A—CLAUSES FOR FIXED-PRICE SUPPLY CONTRACTS

1. Section 7.103–8 has been revised as follows: The "no set-off" provisions authorized by P. L. 30, 82d Congress, will not be inserted in negotiated contracts with foreign contractors. Section 7.103–8, as revised, reads as follows:

§ 7.103–8 Assignment of claims.

ASSIGNMENT OF CLAIMS

(a) Pursuant to the provisions of the Assignment of Claims Act of 1940 as amended (31 U. S. Code 203, 41 U. S. Code 15), if this contract provides for payments aggregating $1,000 or more, claims for moneys due or to become due the Contractor from the Government under this contract may be assigned to a bank, trust company, or other financing institution, including any Federal lending agency, and may thereafter be further assigned and reassigned to any such institution. Any such assignment or reassignment shall cover all amounts payable under this contract and not already paid, and shall not be made to more than one party, except that any such assignment or reassignment may be made to one party as agent or trustee for two or more parties participating in such financing. Notwithstanding any other provision of this contract, payments to an assignee of any moneys due or to become due under this contract shall not, to the extent provided in said Act as amended, be subject to reduction or set-off.

(b) In no event shall copies of this contract or of any plans, specifications, or other similar documents relating to work under this contract, if marked "Top Secret," "Secret," or "Confidential," be furnished to any assignee of any claim arising under this contract or to any other person not entitled to receive the same: Provided, That a copy of any part or all of this contract so marked may be furnished, or any information contained therein may be disclosed, to such assignee upon the prior written authorization of the Contracting Officer.

The last sentence of paragraph (a) of the foregoing clause shall be included in contracts only in time of war, or national emergency proclaimed by the President (including the National Emergency Proclamation of December 15, 1950) or by Act or Joint Resolution of the Congress and shall not be included in contracts entered into after such war or national emergency has been terminated: Provided, That in cases where special circumstances make it advisable in the best interests of the Government, and in accordance with Departmental procedures, such sentence may be omitted. In any event the sentence will be deleted from negotiated contracts entered into with foreign contractors.

Pursuant to the provisions of the Assignment of Claims Act of 1940, as amended by Public Law 30, 82d Congress, the effect of the last sentence of paragraph (a) of the foregoing clause is that payments to be made to an assignee after May 15, 1951 of any moneys due or to become due under the contract shall not be subject to reduction or set-off for any liability of any nature of the Contractor to the Government which arises independently of the contract, or for any liability of the Contractor on account of (a) renegotiation under any renegotiation statute or under any statutory renegotiation clause in the contract, (b) fines, (c) penalties (which term does not include amounts which may be collected or withheld from the Contractor in accordance with or for failure to comply with the terms of the contract), or (d) taxes, Social Security contributions, or the withholding or nonwithholding of taxes or Social Security contributions, whether arising from or independently of the contract.

The assignee is required by said Act, as amended, to "File written notice of the assignment together with a true copy of the instrument of assignment with (1) the Contracting Officer or the head of his department or agency; (2) the surety or sureties upon the bond or bonds, if any, in connection with such contract; and (3) the disbursing officer, if any, designated in such contract to make payment."

2. In § 7.103–11 (b) the phrase "usually severe weather", has been corrected to "unusually severe weather" as follows:

§ 7.103–11 Default. • • •

(b) The Contractor shall not be liable for any excess costs, if any failure to perform the contract arises out of causes beyond the control and without the fault or negligence of the Contractor. Such causes include, but are not restricted to, acts of God or of the public enemy, acts of the Government, fires, floods, epidemics, quarantine restrictions, strikes, freight embargoes, unusually severe weather, and defaults of subcontractors due to any of such causes unless the Contracting Officer shall determine that the supplies or services to be furnished by the subcontractor were obtainable from other sources in sufficient time to permit the Contractor to meet the required delivery schedule.

* * * * * *

3. A revised Renegotiation clause is set forth in § 7.103–13. Since the clause is now both self-effectuating and self-deleting, it has been removed from § 7.104, and its insertion is required in all supply contracts, both fixed-price and cost-reimbursement type.

§ 7.103–13 Renegotiation.

RENEGOTIATION

(a) This contract is subject to the Renegotiation Act of 1951 (Pub. Law 9, 82d Cong., 65 Stat. 7) as amended (Pub. Law 764, 83d Cong., 68 Stat. 1116; Pub. Law 216, 84th Cong., 69 Stat. 447), and to any subsequent act of Congress providing for the renegotiation of contracts. Nothing contained in this clause shall impose any renegotiation obligation with respect to this contract or any subcontract hereunder which is not imposed by an act of Congress heretofore or hereafter enacted. Subject to the foregoing this contract shall be deemed to contain all the provisions required by section 104 of the Renegotiation Act of 1951, and by any such other act, without subsequent contract amendment specifically incorporating such provisions.

(b) The Contractor agrees to insert the provisions of this clause, including this paragraph (b), in all subcontracts, as that term is defined in section 103g of the Renegotiation Act of 1951 or in any subsequent act of Congress providing for the renegotiation of contracts.

4. Section 7.104–3 has been deleted. Deletion of § 7.104–3 renders it unnecessary (any longer) to include the contract clause relating to Employment of Aliens in contracts entered into pursuant to the authority of the Armed Services Procurement Act. It has been determined that the "Employment of Aliens" clause is required only when contracts are made under the authority of the Air Corps Act of 1926 (see section 10j).

5. Section 7.104.10 Renegotiation Act of 1951 has been deleted. A new § 7.104.10 Aircraft in the open has been added, as follows:

§ 7.104–10 Aircraft in the open. In all negotiated fixed-price type contracts for production or modification of aircraft (or missiles having the general characteristics of aircraft), insert the clause set forth in § 10.404 of this subchapter.

SUBPART B—CLAUSES FOR COST-REIMBURSEMENT TYPE SUPPLY CONTRACTS

1. A new § 7.203–13 Renegotiation has been added as follows, making it mandatory to insert the clause set forth in § 7.103–13 in all supply contracts both fixed-price and cost-reimbursement type. The Contracting Officer is no longer required to determine in advance whether a particular contract is subject to renegotiation.

§ 7.203–13 Renegotiation. Insert the contract clause set forth in § 7.103–13.

2. Section 7.204–3 has been deleted. Deletion of § 7.204–3 renders it unnecessary (any longer) to include the contract clause relating to Employment of Aliens in contracts entered into pursuant to the authority of the Armed Services Procurement Act. It has been determined that the "Employment of Aliens" clause is required only when contracts are made under the authority of the Air Corps Act of 1926 (see section 10j).

3. Section 7.204–10 Renegotiation has been revoked.

PART 9—PATENTS AND COPYRIGHTS

SUBPART A—PATENTS

Section 9.107–1 has been revised for the purpose of clarifying several aspects of the Patent Rights Clauses. Section 9.107–1, as revised, reads as follows:

§ 9.107 Patent rights under contracts involving research or development.

§ 9.107–1 License rights—(a) General rule. Under any contract or modification thereof having experimental, developmental, or research work as one of its purposes, the Government should receive a royalty-free, nonexclusive license to practice or have practiced any inventions conceived or first actually reduced to practice in the course of performing such work or in the course of performing any prior experimental, developmental, or research work done upon the understanding in writing that a contract would be awarded. The contract cost or price should in no event be increased merely by reason of the inclusion of the Patent Rights clause set forth in paragraph (d) of this section.

(b) Inventions first actually reduced to practice under contracts. Upon request of the Contractor, the Contracting

Office shall carefully consider and may exclude from the grant in the Patent Rights clause any invention covered by a United States patent issued or application for patent filed by or on behalf of the Contractor prior to the award of a contract when he finds one or more of the following circumstances to be established:

(1) The Contractor has expended sums in developing the invention (as represented by research and development costs and expenses for preparing and prosecuting the patent application) which are relatively large in comparison to the amount of the proposed contract or such portion of the proposed contract amount as can be allocated in advance for the development of such an invention, or

(2) The practicability of such an invention has been established as by engineering design, or

(3) The invention covers a basic material and it is not the purpose of the contract to develop such material, or

(4) The invention is useful only for military purposes and the Contractor does not have facilities for furnishing the item to the Government in production quantities.

Any inventions to be excluded from the license grant by reason of the foregoing circumstances shall be specifically identified and listed in the Schedule.

(c) Contract clause. The clause set forth below shall be included in all contracts or modifications thereof under the conditions outlined in paragraph (a) of this section, but shall not otherwise be included in a contract. See § 16.809 of this subchapter for an approved form for optional use by contractors in reporting information required by paragraphs (c) (ii), (c) (iii), and (h) of the clause. In the administration of paragraph (e) of the clause, a request for conveyance of foreign rights to the Government is not required when the contractor does not file an application for patent in a foreign country under the conditions provided in that paragraph, unless the Government intends to apply for such patent.

PATENT RIGHTS

(a) As used in this clause, the following terms shall have the meanings set forth below:

(i) The term "Subject Invention" means any invention, improvement or discovery (whether or not patentable) conceived or first actually reduced to practice either—

(A) In the performance of the experimental, developmental, or research work called for or required under this contract; or

(B) In the performance of any experimental, developmental, or research work relating to the subject matter of this contract which was done upon an understanding in writing that a contract would be awarded;

Provided, That the term "Subject Invention" shall not include any invention which is specifically identified and listed in the Schedule for the purpose of excluding it from the license granted by this clause.

(ii) The term "Technical Personnel" means any person employed by or working under contract with the Contractor (other than a subcontractor whose responsibilities with respect to rights accruing to the Government in inventions arising under subcontracts are set forth in (g), (h), and (i) below) who, by reason of the nature of his duties in connection with the performance of this contract, would reasonably be expected to make inventions.

(iii) The terms "subcontract" and "subcontractor" means any subcontract or subcontractor of the Contractor, and any lower-tier subcontract or subcontractor under this contract.

(b) (1) The Contractor agrees to and does hereby grant to the Government an irrevocable, nonexclusive, nontransferable, and royalty-free license to practice, and cause to be practiced by or for the United States Government, throughout the world, each Subject Invention in the manufacture, use and disposition according to law, of any article or material, and in the use of any method. No license granted herein shall convey any right to the Government to manufacture, have manufactured, or use any Subject Invention for the purpose of providing services or supplies to the general public in competition with the Contractor or the Contractor's commercial licensees in the licensed fields.

(2) With respect to:

(i) Any Subject Invention made by other than Technical Personnel;

(ii) Any Subject Invention conceived prior to, but first actually reduced to practice in the course of, any of the experimental, developmental, or research work specified in (a) (i) above; and

(iii) The practice of any Subject Invention in foreign countries; the obligation of the Contractor to grant a license as provided in (b) (1) above, to convey title as provided in (d) (ii) (B) or (d) (iv) below, and to convey foreign rights as provided in (e) below, shall be limited to the extent of the Contractor's right to grant the same without incurring any obligation to pay royalties or other compensation to others solely on account of said grant. Nothing contained in this Patent Rights clause shall be deemed to grant any license under any invention other than a Subject Invention.

(c) The Contractor shall furnish to the Contracting Officer the following information and reports concerning Subject Inventions which reasonably appear to be patentable:

(i) A written disclosure promptly after conception or first actual reduction to practice of each such Invention together with a written statement specifying whether or not a United States patent application claiming the Invention has been or will be filed by or on behalf of the Contractor;

(ii) Interim reports, at least every twelve months, commencing with the date of this contract, each listing all such Inventions conceived or first actually reduced to practice more than three months prior to the date of the report, and not listed on a prior interim report, or certifying that there are no such unreported Inventions; and

(iii) Prior to final settlement of this contract, a final report listing all such Inventions including all those previously listed in interim reports. (d) In connection with each Subject Invention referred to in (c) (i) above, the Contractor shall do the following:

(i) If the Contractor specifies that a United States patent application claiming such Invention will be filed, the Contractor shall file or cause to be filed such application in due form and time; however, if the Contractor, after having specified that such an application would be filed, decides not to file or cause to be filed said application, the Contractor shall so notify the Contracting Officer at the earliest practicable date and in any event not later than eight months after first publication, public use or sale.

(ii) If the Contractor specifies that a United States patent application claiming such Invention has not been filed and will not be filed (or having specified that such an application will be filed thereafter notifies the Contracting Officer to the contrary), the Contractor shall:

(A) Inform the Contracting Officer in writing at the earliest practicable date of any publication of such Invention made by or known to the Contractor or, where applicable, of any contemplated publication by the Contractor, stating the date and identity of such publication or contemplated publication; and

(B) Convey to the Government the Contractor's entire right, title, and interest in such Invention by delivering to the Contracting Officer upon written request such duly executed instruments (prepared by the Government) of assignment and application, and such other papers as are deemed necessary to vest in the Government the Contractor's right, title, and interest aforesaid, and the right to apply for and prosecute patent applications covering such Invention throughout the world, subject, however, to the right of the Contractor specified in (e) below to file foreign applications, and subject further to the reservation of a nonexclusive and royalty-free license to the Contractor (and to its existing and future associated and affiliated companies, if any, within the corporate structure of which the Contractor is a part) which license shall be assignable to the successor of that part of the Contractor's business to which such Invention pertains;

(iii) The Contractor shall furnish promptly to the Contracting Officer on request an irrevocable power of attorney to inspect and make copies of each United States patent application filed by or on behalf of the Contractor covering any such Invention;

(iv) In the event the Contractor, or those other than the Government deriving rights from the Contractor, elects not to continue prosecution of any such United States patent application filed by or on behalf of the Contractor, the Contractor shall so notify the Contracting Officer not less than sixty days before the expiration of the response period and, upon written request, deliver to the Contracting Officer such duly executed instruments (prepared by the Government) as are deemed necessary to vest in the Government the Contractor's entire right, title, and interest in such Invention and the application, subject to the reservation as specified in (d) (ii) above; and

(v) The Contractor shall deliver to the Contracting Officer duly executed instruments fully confirmatory of any license rights herein agreed to be granted to the Government.

(e) The Contractor, or those other than the Government deriving rights from the Contractor, shall have the exclusive rights to file applications on Subject Inventions in each foreign country within:

(i) Nine months from the date a corresponding United States application is filed;

(ii) Six months from the date permission is granted to file foreign applications where such filing had been prohibited for security reasons; or

(iii) Such longer period as may be approved by the Contracting Officer. The Contractor shall, upon written request of the Contracting Officer, convey to the Government the Contractor's entire right, title, and interest in each Subject Invention in each foreign country in which an application has not been filed within the time above specified, subject to the reservation of a non-exclusive and royalty-free license to the Contractor together with the right of the Contractor to grant sublicenses, which license and right shall be assignable to the successor of that part of the Contractor's business to which the Subject Invention pertains.

(f) If the Contractor fails to deliver to the Contracting Officer the interim reports required by (c) (ii) above, or fails to furnish the written disclosures for all Subject Inventions required by (c) (i) above shown to be due in accordance with any interim report delivered under (c) (ii) or otherwise known to be unreported, there shall be withheld from payment until the Contractor shall have corrected such failures either ten percent (10%) of the amount of this contract, as from time to time amended, or five thousand dollars ($5,000), whichever is less. After payment of eighty percent (80%) of the amount of this contract, as from time to time amended, payment shall be withheld until a reserve of either ten percent (10%) of such amount or five thousand dollars ($5,000), whichever is less, shall have been set aside, such reserve or balance thereof to be retained until the Contractor shall have furnished to the Contracting Officer:

(i) The final report required by (c) (iii) above;

(ii) Written disclosures for all Subject Inventions required by (c) (i) above which are shown to be due in accordance with interim reports delivered under (c) (ii) above or in accordance with such final reports or are otherwise known to be unreported; and

(iii) The information as to any subcontractor required by (h) below. The maximum amount which may be withheld under this paragraph (f) shall not exceed ten percent (10%) of the amount of this contract or five thousand dollars ($5,000), whichever is less, and no amount shall be withheld under this paragraph (f) when the amount specified by this paragraph (f) is being withheld under other provisions of this contract. The withholding of any amount or subsequent payment thereof to the Contractor shall not be construed as a waiver of any rights accruing to the Government under this contract. This paragraph (f) shall not be construed as requiring the Contractor to withhold any amounts from a subcontractor to enforce compliance with the patent provisions of a subcontract.

(g) The Contractor shall exert all reasonable effort in negotiating for the inclusion of this Patent Rights clause in any subcontract hereunder of three thousand dollars ($3,000) or more having experimental, developmental, or research work as one of its purposes. In the event of refusal by a subcontractor to accept the Patent Rights clause, the Contractor shall not proceed with the subcontract without written authorization of the Contracting Officer, and upon obtaining such authorization, shall cooperate with the Government in the negotiation with such subcontractor of an acceptable patent rights clause: Provided, however, That the Contractor shall in any event require the subcontractor to grant to the Government patent rights under Subject Inventions of no less scope and on no less favorable terms than those which the Contractor has under such subcontracts, except that in no event shall the subcontractor be required to grant to the Government patent rights in excess of those herein agreed to be granted to the Government by the Contractor.

(h) The Contractor shall, at the earliest practicable date, notify the Contracting Officer in writing of any subcontract containing a patent rights clause, furnish the Contracting Officer a copy of such clause, and notify the Contracting Officer when such subcontract is completed. It is understood that with respect to such subcontract clause, the Government is a third party beneficiary; and the Contractor hereby assigns to the Government all the rights that the Contractor would have to enforce the subcontractor's obligations for the benefit of the Government with respect to Subject Inventions. The Contractor shall not be obligated to enforce the agreements of any subcontractor hereunder relating to Subject Inventions.

(i) When the Contractor shows that it has been delayed in the performance of this contract by reason of its inability to obtain in accordance with (g) above a suitable patent rights clause from a qualified subcontractor for any item or service required under this contract for which the Contractor itself does not have available facilities or qualified personnel, the Contractor's delivery dates shall be extended for a period of time equal to the duration of such delay; and, upon request of the Contractor, the Contracting Officer shall determine to what extent, if any, an additional extension of the delivery dates and an increase in contract prices based upon additional costs incurred by such delay are proper under the circumstances; and the contract shall be modified accordingly. If the Contractor, after exerting all reasonable effort, is unable to obtain a qualified subcontractor as set forth above, the Contractor may submit to the Contracting Officer a written request for waiver or modification of the requirement that a suitable patent rights clause be included in the subcontract.

Such request shall specifically state that the Contractor has used all reasonable effort to obtain such qualified subcontractor, and shall cite the waiver or termination provision hereinafter set forth. If, within thirty-five (35) days after the date of receipt of such request for a waiver or modification of said requirement, the Contracting Officer shall fail to deny in writing such request, the requirement shall be deemed to have been waived by the Government. If within such period the Contractor shall receive a written denial of such request by the Contracting Officer, this contract shall thereupon automatically terminate and the rights and obligations of the parties shall be governed by the provisions of the clause of this contract providing for termination for the convenience of the Government.

PART 10—BONDS AND INSURANCE

SUBPART D—INSURANCE UNDER FIXED-PRICE CONTRACTS

Section 10.404 has been added in order to conform with Government self-insuring policy (cross-referenced to the revised § 7.104–10 Aircraft in the open) which provides for Government assumption of risk of loss or damage in fixed-price contracts with respect to aircraft stored in the open, under conditions approved by the Contracting Officer. The term "aircraft" is specially defined for the purposes of the clause, and includes among other things missiles having the general characteristics of aircraft. In general, the Government may assume the same risks as are assumed in connection with Government-furnished property in fixed-price contracts.

Section 10.404, reads as follows:

§ 10.404 Aircraft in the open. Negotiated fixed-price type contracts for production or modification of aircraft (or missiles having the general characteristics of aircraft) shall provide that the Government shall assume the risk of loss or damage to aircraft in the open, and such contracts shall include the clause set forth below. Such assumption of risk shall be limited to aircraft in the open under conditions approved by the contracting officer.

AIRCRAFT IN THE OPEN

(a) Subject to the definitions and limitations prescribed in this clause, the Government assumes the risk of damage to or loss or destruction of aircraft[1] in the open: Provided, That such damage, loss, or destruction is caused by any of the following perils:

(i) Fire; lightning, windstorm, cyclone, tornado, hail; explosion; riot, riot attending a strike, civil commotion, vandalism and malicious mischief, sabotage; aircraft or objects falling therefrom; vehicles running on land or tracks, excluding vehicles owned or operated by the Contractor or any agent or employee of the Contractor; smoke; earthquake or volcanic eruption; flood, meaning thereby rising of a body of water; hostile or warlike action, including action in hindering, combating, or defending against an actual, impending or expected attack by any government or sovereign power (de jure or de facto), or by any authority using military, naval, or air forces, or by any agent of any such government, power, authority, or forces; or

(ii) Other peril of a type not listed above, if such other peril is customarily covered by insurance (or by a reserve for self-insurance) in accordance with the normal practice of the Contractor, or a prevailing practice in the industry in which the Contractor is engaged with respect to similar property.

(b) For purposes of this clause:

(i) The term "Aircraft" means aircraft to be furnished to the Government under this contract, including complete aircraft; and aircraft in the course of manufacture or modification, including engines, instruments, subassemblies, parts, and equipment installed therein, or in process of installation, and all uninstalled property withdrawn from stores for installation in aircraft in the open or temporarily removed from such aircraft, provided such uninstalled property is in the open.

(ii) The term "in the open" means located wholly outside of buildings or roofed structures.

(c) The Government's obligation under this clause shall extend only to aircraft in the open under conditions approved by the Contracting Officer, and shall not extend to the following:

(i) Loss, destruction, or damage resulting from the failure of the Contractor, due to willful misconduct or lack of good faith of any of the Contractor's managerial personnel, to maintain and administer a program for the maintenance, repair, protection, and preservation of aircraft in the open, in accordance with sound industrial practice. The term "Contractor's managerial personnel" means the Contractor's directors, officers, and any of its managers, superintendents, or other equivalent representatives who have supervision or direction of all or substantially all of the Contractor's business, or all or substantially all of the Contractor's operation at any one plant or separate location at which this contract is performed, or a separate and complete major industrial operation in connection with the performance of this contract;

(ii) Loss, destruction or damage to aircraft in the possession or control of any subcontractor, except to the extent that the subcontract, with the approval of the Contracting Officer and consistent with this clause, may otherwise provide.

(d) The Contractor warrants that the contract price does not and will not include any charge or reserve for insurance (including self-insurance funds or reserves) covering damage to or loss or destruction of aircraft in the open caused by any of the perils set forth in paragraph (a) hereof.

[1] When the above clause is included in contracts for the procurement of missiles having the general characteristics of aircraft, substitute in the clause the word "missile" for the word "aircraft," in each instance where the latter appears.

(e) In the event of damage to or loss or destruction of aircraft in the open, the Contractor shall take all reasonable steps to protect such aircraft from further damage, separate damaged and undamaged aircraft, put all aircraft in the best possible order, and furnish to the Contracting Officer a statement of:

(i) The lost, destroyed, or damaged aircraft;

(ii) The time and origin of the loss, destruction, or damage;

(iii) All known interests in commingled property of which aircraft in the open are a part;

(iv) The insurance, if any, covering any part of the interest in such commingled property.

The Contractor shall be reimbursed for expenditures made by it in performing its obligations under this paragraph, to the extent approved by the Contracting Officer and this contract shall be modified in writing accordingly.

(f) If prior to acceptance by and delivery to the Government any aircraft in the open is lost, destroyed, or damaged due to any of the perils set forth in paragraph (a) hereof, the Government may, unless otherwise provided in this contract, elect to require that such aircraft be replaced by the Contractor or restored by the Contractor to the condition in which it was immediately prior to such damage. If the Government requires the aircraft to be replaced or restored, an equitable adjustment shall be made in the amount due under this contract and in the time required for its performance, and this contract shall be modified in writing accordingly. Alternatively, the Government may elect to terminate this contract as to any such lost, destroyed, or damaged aircraft, and in that event the rights of the parties shall be as provided in the clause entitled Termination for Convenience of the Government.

(g) In the event the Contractor is at any time reimbursed or compensated by any third person for any damage to or loss or destruction of any aircraft in the open caused by any peril set forth in paragraph (a) hereof for which the Contractor has been compensated by the Government, it shall equitably reimburse the Government. The Contractor shall do nothing to prejudice the Government's rights to recover against third parties for any such loss, destruction or damage and, upon the request of the Contracting Officer, shall at the Government's expense, furnish to the Government all reasonable assistance and cooperation (including the prosecution of suit and the execution of instruments of assignment or subrogation in favor of the Government) in obtaining recovery.

(h) Any loss or destruction of, or damage to, property furnished by the Government will be governed by the clause of this contract entitled "Government-furnished Property," to the extent that such clause is, by its terms, applicable.

(i) Any loss, or destruction of, or damage to, aircraft occurring in connection with operations of said aircraft will be governed by the clause of this contract entitled "Flight Risk," to the extent that such clause is, by its terms, applicable.

PART 13—GOVERNMENT PROPERTY

SUBPART E—CONTRACT CLAUSES

Sections 13.505 and 13.506 have been revised for the purpose of clarifying clauses relating to Government Property and Government-furnished Property in connection with research and development contracts entered into with non-profit institutions.

Sections 13.505 and 13.506, as revised, read as follows:

§ 13.505 Government-furnished property clause for fixed-price type contracts with non-profit institutions. The following clause shall be used in fixed-price research and development contracts with non-profit institutions (provided such contracts are executed on a non-profit basis) under which a Department is to furnish property to the contractor:

GOVERNMENT-FURNISHED PROPERTY

(a) The Government shall deliver to the Contractor, for use in connection with and under the terms of this contract, the property described in the Schedule or specifications, together with such related data and information as the Contractor may request and as may reasonably be required for the intended use of such property (hereinafter referred to as "Government-furnished Property"). The delivery or performance dates for the supplies or services to be furnished by the Contractor under this contract are based upon the expectation that Government-furnished Property suitable for use will be delivered to the Contractor at the times stated in the Schedule, or, if not so stated, in sufficient time to enable the Contractor to meet such delivery or performance dates. In the event that Government-furnished Property is not delivered to the Contractor by such time or times, the Contracting Officer shall, upon timely written request made by the Contractor, make a determination of the delay occasioned the Contractor thereby, and shall equitably adjust the delivery or performance dates or the contract price, or both, and any other contractual provision affected by the delay. In the event that Government-furnished Property is received by the Contractor in a condition not suitable for its intended use, the Contractor shall, upon receipt thereof, notify the Contracting Officer of such fact and, as directed by the Contracting Officer, either (i) return such property at the Government's expense or otherwise dispose of such property, or (ii) effect repairs or modifications. Upon completion of (i) or (ii) above, the Contracting Officer upon timely written request of the Contractor shall equitably adjust the delivery or performance dates or the contract price, or both, and any other contractual provision effected by the return, disposition, repair or modification. The foregoing provisions for adjustment are exclusive and the Government shall not be liable to suit for breach of contract by reason of any delay in delivery of Government-furnished Property or delivery of such property in a condition not suitable for its intended use.

(b) By notice in writing the Contracting Officer may decrease the property furnished or to be furnished by the Government under this contract. In any such case, the Contracting Officer upon timely written request of the Contractor shall equitably adjust the delivery or performance dates or the contract price, or both, and any other contractual provisions affected by the decrease.

(c) Title to the Government-furnished Property shall remain in the Government. Title to Government-furnished Property shall not be affected by the incorporation or attachment thereof to any property not owned by the Government, nor shall such Government-furnished Property, or any part thereof, be or become a fixture or lose its identity as personalty by reason of affixation to any realty.

(d) The Government-furnished Property shall, unless otherwise provided herein, and except as may be otherwise approved by the Contracting Officer, be used only for the performance of this contract.

(e) The Contractor shall maintain and administer, in accordance with sound business practice, a program for the maintenance, repair, protection and preservation of Government-furnished Property, until disposed of by the Contractor in accordance with this clause. In the event that any damage occurs to Government-furnished Property the risk of which has been assumed by the Government under this contract, the Government shall replace such items or the Contractor shall make such repair of the property as the Government directs; provided, however, that if the Contractor cannot effect such repair within the time required, the Contractor may reject such property. The contract price includes no compensation to the Contractor for the performance of any repair or replacement for which the Government is responsible, and an equitable adjustment will be made in the contract price for any such repair or replacement of Government-furnished Property made at the direction of the Government. Any repair or replacement for which the Contractor is responsible under the provisions of this contract shall be accomplished by the Contractor at its own expense.

(f) The provisions of Part III, Appendix C, Armed Services Procurement Regulation, Manual for Control of Government Property in possession of Non-Profit Research and Development Contractors, as in effect on the date of this contract are hereby incorporated by reference and made a part of the contract, insofar as they relate to Government-furnished Property. The Contractor agrees to comply with the provisions thereof relating to the keeping of property control records, identification and marking, segregation and commingling, taking of inventories, and control of salvage and scrap, and the Contractor also accepts the responsibilities set forth in said Part III with respect to Government-furnished Property.

(g) The Contractor agrees to make available to authorized representatives of the Contracting Officer at all reasonable times at the office of the Contractor all of its property records under this contract, and access to any premises where any of the Government-furnished Property is located.

(h) (i) The Contractor shall not be liable for any loss of or damage to the Government-furnished Property, or for expenses incidental to such loss or damage except that the Contractor shall be liable for any such loss or damage (including expenses incidental thereto):

(A) Which results from willful misconduct or lack of good faith on the part of any of the Contractor's directors or officers, or on the part of any of its managers, superintendents, or other equivalent representatives who have supervision or direction of all or substantially all of the Contractor's business, or all or substantially all of the Contractor's operations at any one plant, laboratory, or separate location in which this contract is being performed; or

(B) Which results from a failure on the part of the Contractor, due to the willful misconduct or lack of good faith on the part of any of its directors, officers, or other representatives mentioned in subparagraph (A) above, to maintain and administer, in accordance with sound business practice, the program for maintenance, repair, protection and preservation of Government-furnished Property as required by subparagraph (e) above; or

(C) For which the Contractor is otherwise responsible under the express terms of the clause or clauses designated in the Schedule; or

(D) Which results from a risk expressly required to be insured under some other provision of this contract, or of the schedules or task orders thereunder, but only to the extent of the insurance so required to be procured and maintained or to the extent of insurance actually procured and maintained, whichever is greater; or

(E) Which results from a risk which is in fact covered by insurance or for which the Contractor is otherwise reimbursed, but only to the extent of such insurance or reimbursement;

Provided, That, if more than one of the above exceptions shall be applicable in any case, the Contractor's liability under any one exception shall not be limited by any other exception.

(ii) The Contractor represents that it is not including in the price hereunder, and agrees that it will not hereafter include in any price to the Government, any charge or reserve for insurance (including self-insurance funds or reserves) covering loss or destruction of or damage to the Government-furnished Property, except to the extent that the risk of loss is imposed on the Contractor under (i) (C) above, or insurance has been required under (i) (D) above.

(iii) Upon the happening of loss or destruction of or damage to any Government-furnished Property, the Contractor shall notify the Contracting Officer thereof and shall communicate with the Loss and Salvage Organization, if any, now or hereafter designated by the Contracting Officer, and with the assistance of the Loss and Salvage Organization so designated (unless the Contracting Officer has directed that no such organization be employed) shall take all reasonable steps to protect the Government-furnished Property from further damage, separate the damaged and undamaged Government-furnished Property, put all the Government-furnished Property in the best possible order, and furnish to the Contracting Officer a statement of:

(A) The lost, destroyed and damaged Government-furnished Property;

(B) The time and origin of the loss, destruction or damage;

(C) All known interests in commingled property of which the Government-furnished Property is a part; and

(D) The insurance, if any, covering any part of or interest in such commingled property.

The Contractor shall be reimbursed for the expenditures made by it in performing its obligations under this subparagraph (iii) (including charges made to the Contractor by the Loss and Salvage Organization, except any of such charges the payment of which the Government has, at its option, assumed directly), to the extent approved by the Contracting Officer and set forth in a Supplemental Agreement or amendment to this contract.

(iv) With the approval of the Contracting Officer after loss or destruction of or damage to Government-furnished Property, and subject to such conditions and limitations as may be imposed by the Contracting Officer, the Contractor may, in order to minimize the loss to the Government or in order to permit resumption of business or the like, sell for the account of the Government any item of Government-furnished Property which has been damaged beyond practicable repair, or which is so commingled or combined with property of others, including the Contractor, that separation is impracticable.

(v) Except to the extent of any loss or destruction of or damage to Government-furnished Property for which the Contractor is relieved of liability under the foregoing provisions of this clause, and except for reasonable wear and tear or depreciation, or the utilization of the Government-furnished Property in accordance with the provisions of this Contract, the Government-furnished Property (other than property permitted to be sold) shall be returned to the Government in as good condition as when received by the Contractor in connection with this contract, or as repaired under paragraph (e) above.

(vi) In the event the Contractor is reimbursed or compensated for any loss or destruction of or damage to the Government-furnished Property, it shall equitably reimburse the Government. The Contractor shall do nothing to prejudice the Government's rights to recover against third parties for any such loss, destruction or damage and, upon the request of the Contracting Officer, shall at the Government's expense, furnish to the Government all reasonable assistance and cooperation (including assistance in the prosecution of suit and the execution of instruments of assignment in favor of the Government) in obtaining recovery.

(vii) (Where applicable). In the event any aircraft are to be furnished under this contract, any loss or destruction of, or damage to, such aircraft or other Government-furnished Property occurring in connection with operations of said aircraft will be governed by the clause of this contract captioned "Flight Risks," to the extent such clause is, by its terms applicable.

(i) Upon completion or expiration of this contract, any Government property which has not been consumed in the performance of this contract, or which has not been disposed of as hereinafter provided in subparagraph (i) of this article, or for which the Contractor has not otherwise been relieved of responsibility, shall be disposed of in the same manner, and subject to the same procedures, as is provided in subparagraph (g) of the clause of this contract entitled "Termination for the Convenience of the Government" with respect to termination inventory. The proceeds of any such disposition shall be applied in reduction of any payments to be made by the Government to the Contractor under this contract, or shall otherwise be credited to the price or costs of the work covered by this contract, or shall be paid in such other manner as the Contracting Officer may direct. Pending final disposition of such property, the Contractor agrees to take such action as may be necessary, or as the Contracting Officer may direct, for the protection and preservation thereof.

(j) If the Contracting Officer determines that the interests of the Government require removal of any Government-furnished Property, or if the Contractor determines any Government-furnished Property to be in excess of its needs under this contract, such Government-furnished Property shall be disposed of in the same manner as covered by paragraph (i) above. In the event that the Contracting Officer requires the removal of any Government-furnished Property under this subparagraph (j) or subparagraph (i) above, upon timely written request of the Contractor, an equitable adjustment shall be made in the contract price to cover the direct cost to the Contractor of such removal and of any property damage occasioned thereby.

§ 13.506 Government property clauses for cost-reimbursement type research and development contracts with non-profit institutions. The following clause shall be used in cost-reimbursement type research and development contracts with non-profit institutions (provided such contracts are executed on a no-fee basis) under which a Department is to furnish Government property to the contractor, or the contractor is to acquire property for the account of the Government:

GOVERNMENT PROPERTY

(a) The Government shall deliver to the Contractor, for use, in connection with and under the terms of this contract, the property described in this contract, together with such related data and information as the Contractor may request and as may reasonably be required for the intended use of such property (hereinafter referred to as "Government-furnished Property"). The delivery or performance dates for the supplies or services to be furnished by the Contractor under this contract are based upon the expectation that Government-furnished Property suitable for use will be delivered to the Contractor at the times stated in the Schedule of this contract or, if not so stated, in sufficient time to enable the Contractor to meet such delivery or performance dates. In the event that Government-furnished Property is not delivered to the Contractor by such time or times, the Contracting Officer shall, upon timely written request made by the Contractor, make a determination of the delay occasioned the Contractor and shall equitably adjust the estimated cost, or delivery or performance dates, or both, and any other contractual provisions affected by such delay. In the event that the Government-furnished Property is received by the Contractor in a condition not suitable for the intended use, the Contractor shall, upon receipt thereof, notify the Contracting Officer of such fact and, as directed by the Contracting Officer, either (i) return such property at the Government's expense or otherwise dispose of such property, or (ii) effect repairs or modifications. Upon completion of (i) or (ii) above, the Contracting Officer upon timely written request of the Contractor shall equitably adjust the estimated cost, or delivery or performance dates, or both, and any other contractual provision affected by the return, disposition, repair or modification. The foregoing provisions for adjustment are exclusive and the Government shall not be liable to suit for breach of contract by reason of any delay in delivery of Government-furnished Property or delivery of such property in a condition not suitable for its intended use.

(b) The Government may deliver to the Contractor Government-furnished Property in addition to that set forth in this contract. Upon such delivery this contract may be amended, if appropriate, to accomplish an equitable adjustment in its terms and provisions.

(c) Title to all property furnished by the Government shall remain in the Government. Title to all property purchased by the Contractor, for the cost of which the Contractor is to be reimbursed as a direct item of cost under this contract, shall pass to and vest in the Government upon delivery of such property by the vendor. Title to other property, the cost of which is to be reimbursed to the Contractor under this contract, shall pass to and vest in the Government upon (i) issuance for use of such property in the performance of this contract, or (ii) commencement of processing or use of such property in the performance of this contract, or (iii) reimbursement of the cost thereof by the Government, whichever first occurs. All Government-furnished Property, together with all property acquired by the Contractor, title to which vests in the Government under this paragraph, are subject to the provisions of this clause and are hereinafter collectively referred to as "Government Property."

(d) Title to the Government Property shall not be affected by the incorporation or attachment thereof to any property not owned by the Government, nor shall such Government Property, or any part thereof, be or become a fixture or lose its identity as personalty by reason of affixation to any realty.

(e) The Government Property provided or furnished pursuant to the terms of this contract shall, unless otherwise provided herein and except as may be otherwise approved by the Contracting Officer, be used only for the performance of this contract.

(f) The Contractor shall maintain and administer in accordance with sound business practice a program for the maintenance, repair, protection and preservation of Government Property so as to assure its full availability and usefulness for the performance of this contract. The Contractor shall take all reasonable steps to comply with all appropriate directions or instructions which the Contracting Officer may prescribe as reasonably necessary for the protection of the Government Property.

(g) The provisions of Part III, Appendix C, Armed Services Procurement Regulation, Manual for Control of Government Property in Possession of Non-Profit Research and Development Contractors, as in effect on the date of this contract, are herein incorporated by reference and made a part of this contract. The Contractor agrees to comply with the provisions thereof relating to the keeping of property control records, identification and marking, segregation and commingling, taking of inventories, and control of salvage and scrap, and the Contractor also accepts the responsibilities set forth in said Part III with respect to Government Property.

(h) The Contractor agrees to make available to authorized representatives of the Contracting Officer at all reasonable times at the office of the Contractor all of its property records under this contract, and access to any premises where any of the Government Property is located.

(i) (1) The Contractor shall not be liable for any loss of or damage to the Government Property, or for expenses incidental to such loss or damage, except that the Contractor shall be responsible for any such loss or damage (including expenses incidental thereto):

(i) Which results from willful misconduct or lack of good faith on the part of any of the Contractor's directors or officers, or on the part of any of its managers, superintendents, or other equivalent representatives, who has supervision or direction of all or substantially all of the Contractor's business, or all or substantially all of the Contractor's operations at any one plant, laboratory, or separate location in which this contract is being performed;

(ii) Which results from a failure on the part of the Contractor, due to the willful misconduct or lack of good faith on the part of any of its directors, officers, or other representatives mentioned in (i) above, (A) to maintain and administer, in accordance with sound business practice, the program for maintenance, repair, protection and preservation of Government Property as required by (f) above, or (B) to take all reasonable steps to comply with any appropriate written directions of the Contracting Officer under (f) above;

(iii) For which the Contractor is otherwise responsible under the express terms of the clause or clauses designated in the schedule;

(iv) Which results from a risk expressly required to be insured under some other provision of this contract, but only to the extent of the insurance so required to be procured and maintained, or to the extent of insurance actually procured and maintained, whichever is greater; or

(v) Which results from a risk which is in fact covered by insurance or for which the Contractor is otherwise reimbursed, but only to the extent of such insurance or reimbursement: Provided, That, if more than one of the above exceptions shall be applicable in any case, the Contractor's liability under any one exception shall not be limited by any other exception.

(2) The Contractor shall not be reimbursed for, and shall not include as an item of overhead, the cost of insurance, or any provision for a reserve, covering the risk of loss of or damage to the Government Property, except to the extent that the Government may have required the Contractor to carry such insurance under any other provision of this contract.

(3) Upon the happening of loss or destruction of or damage to the Government Property, the Contractor shall notify the Contracting Officer thereof, and shall communicate with the Loss and Salvage Organization, if any, now or hereafter designated by the Contracting Officer, and with the assistance of the Loss and Salvage Organization so designated (unless the Contracting Officer has designated that no such organization be employed), shall take all reasonable steps to protect the Government Property from further damage, separate the damaged and undamaged Government Property, put all the Government Property in the best possible order, and furnish to the Contracting Officer a statement of:

(i) The lost, destroyed and damaged Government Property;

(ii) The time and origin of the loss, destruction or damage;

(iii) All known interests in commingled property of which the Government Property is a part; and

(iv) The insurance, if any, covering any part of or interest in such commingled property.

The Contractor shall make repairs and renovations of the damaged Government Property or take such other action as the Contracting Officer directs.

(4) In the event the Contractor is indemnified, reimbursed, or otherwise compensated for any loss or destruction of or damage to the Government property, it shall use the proceeds to repair, renovate or replace the Government property involved, or shall credit such proceeds against the cost of the work covered by the contract, or shall otherwise reimburse the Government, as directed by the Contracting Officer. The Contractor shall do nothing to prejudice the Government's right to recover against third parties for any such loss, destruction or damage and, upon the request of the Contracting Officer, shall, at the Government's expense, furnish to the Government all reasonable assistance and cooperation (including assistance in the prosecution of suit and the execution of instruments of assignment in favor of the Government) in obtaining recovery.

(5) (Where applicable.) In the event any aircraft are to be furnished under this contract, any loss or destruction of, or damage to, such aircraft or other Government Property occurring in connection with operations of said aircraft will be governed by the clause of this contract captioned "Flight Risks," to the extent such clause is, by its terms, applicable.

(j) The Government Property shall remain in the possession of the Contractor for such period of time as is required for the performance of this contract unless the Contracting Officer determines that the interests of the Government require removal of such property. In such case the Contractor shall promptly take such action as the Contracting Officer may direct with respect to the removal and shipping of Government Property. In any such instance, this contract may be amended to accomplish an equitable adjustment in its terms and provisions.

(k) Upon completion or expiration of this contract, any Government Property which has not been consumed in the performance of this contract, or which has not been disposed of as hereinafter provided in subparagraph (1) of this clause, or for which the Contractor has not otherwise been relieved of responsibility, shall be disposed of in the same manner, and subject to the same procedures, as is provided in subparagraph (g) of the clause of this contract entitled "Termination for the Convenience of the Government" with respect to termination inventory. The proceeds of any such disposition shall be applied in reduction of any payments to be made by the Government to the Contractor under this contract, or shall otherwise be credited to the cost of the work covered by this contract, or shall be paid in such other manner as the Contracting Officer may direct. Pending final disposition of such property, the Contractor agrees to take such action as may be necessary, or as the Contracting Officer may direct, for the protection and preservation thereof.

(l) If the Contracting Officer determines that the interests of the Government require removal of any Government Property, or if the Contractor determines any Government Property to be in excess of its needs under this contract, such Government Property shall be disposed of in the same manner as provided by subparagraph (k) above. In the event that the Contracting Officer requires the removal of any Government Property under this subparagraph (l) or subparagraph (k) above, the direct cost to the Contractor of such removal and of any property damage occasioned thereby shall constitute an allowable cost thereunder.

(m) Unless otherwise provided herein, the Government shall not be under any duty or obligation to restore or rehabilitate, or to pay the costs of the restoration or rehabilitation of the Contractor's plant or any portion thereof which is affected by the removal of any Government Property.

(n) Directions of the Contracting Officer and communications of the Contractor issued pursuant to this clause shall be in writing.

SUBPART H—MISCELLANEOUS FORMS

Section 16.809 has been added making DD Form 882 available for optional use by Contractors in reporting information required by the newly revised Patent Rights Clause set forth in § 9.107–1.

Section 16.809 reads as follows:

[ 47 CFR Part 31 ]

[Docket No. 11402; FCC 56–275]

UNIFORM SYSTEM OF ACCOUNTS

CLASS A AND CLASS B TELEPHONE COMPANIES

In the matter of amendments of Part 31 (Uniform System of Accounts for Class A and Class B Telephone Companies) of the Commission's rules and regulations.

1. The American Telephone and Telegraph Company (A. T. & T.) and the U. S. Independent Telephone Association (USITA) by letters dated September 30, 1954, and February 21, 1955, respectively, requested the Commission to revise Part 31 of its rules. The proposed revisions would provide that the telephone companies charge their contributions to, and membership fees and dues in, organizations engaged in activities beneficial to the community, to the operating expense account, "Other expenses" (account 675), or to the appropriate operating departmental expense accounts, if directly related thereto, rather than to the "below-the-line" account, "Miscellaneous income charges" (account 323), as currently required.

2. The Commission released a notice of proposed rule making in this matter on June 3, 1955 (published in 20 F. R. 3962), inviting interested parties to present their views to the Commission concerning the industry's proposal as well as the following:

(a) Include the costs of the items in question in a specially designed operating expense account or in account 675, "Other expenses", thereby eliminating the use of departmental expense accounts as proposed by the industry.

(b) If charitable contributions were to be charged to operating expenses, whether such contributions should be limited in amount or type by the accounting rules.

(c) Continue the current requirement that all the items in question be charged to account 323, "Miscellaneous income charges", but amend the rules to eliminate the effect on net operating income of the reduction in federal and state income taxes attributable to charitable contributions by crediting account 323 in the amount of such tax reduction with an offsetting charge to an operating expense account, such as a subdivision of account 305, "Operating taxes".

3. Comments were received from twenty-one parties. Four carriers, A. T. & T.,[1] Hawaiian Telephone Company, R. C. A. Communications, Inc., and The Western Union Telegraph Company, supported the industry's proposal and either criticized,[2] opposed, or ignored the above-described related proposals. The latter two companies urged that the telephone industry's proposed rule revision be extended to the appropriate parts of the Uniform Systems of Accounts relating to telegraph carriers. Eleven state regulatory agencies responded; namely, those of the States of California, Kentucky, Louisiana, Michigan, New Jersey, New York, North Carolina, Pennsylvania, Washington, West Virginia and Wisconsin. All the regulatory agencies from the above States opposed amendment of the accounting rules to permit the telephone companies to charge the cost of contributions and memberships to operating expenses, except the Washington Public Service Commission which favored an amendment permitting such items to be charged to a single operating expense account.[3] Of the two responding associations, the National Association of Railroad and Utilities Commissioners' Committee on Accounts and Statistics opposed any change in the accounting rules, while USITA supported the industry's proposal and opposed the related proposals enumerated above in paragraph two. One public accounting firm, Arthur Andersen & Co., favored the industry's proposal.[4] The Communication Workers of America opposed any amendments of the accounting rules. Two individuals submitted comments opposing the industry's proposal. Reply comments were received from A. T. & T.

4. In general, the proponents of the revised rule to permit the charging of the items in question to operating expenses contended that such items are necessary and legitimate operating expenses; that if private contributions are insufficient to support community welfare agencies, government subsidization thereof with consequent increased taxes would follow, with increased taxes reflected in the carriers' operating expenses; and that while charitable contributions not directly benefiting corporate donors were once generally considered ultra vires, such contributions are now recognized in most jurisdictions as within management's authority, and have been deductible for federal income tax purposes for many years. Those opposed to permitting charitable contributions to be charged to operating expenses generally contended that such accounting would ultimately result in the rate payers bearing the costs of the contributions contrary to the majority of the reported cases; that if charitable contributions are made, the carriers have

[1] A. T. & T. also submitted a statement from Lybrand, Ross Bros. and Montgomery, a public accounting firm, which favored the industry's proposal in substance.

[2] Two carriers (Hawaiian and RCAC), while critical of the tax normalization proposal, indicated that it was preferable to the current rules.

[3] Many of the agencies did not comment specifically on the related proposals enumerated in paragraph two. However, those agencies which referred to the related proposals opposed such proposals with the exception of the Washington Public Service Commission, as noted above.

[4] This firm also indicated that the tax normalization proposal was preferable to the current rules regarding contributions.

an obligation to make them out of net income rather than exact involuntary donations from the rate payers who have no choice in the selection of the beneficiaries and who have their own individual charitable obligations; that the regulatory burden of analyzing the accounts for rate making would increase; and that a lack of uniformity in utility accounting would result. In reply to the comments of those opposed to any rule revisions, A. T. & T. stated in part that if the expenditures in question are not legitimate operating expenses, as contended by many of the respondents, then management, having no authority to pay to third parties portions of net income belonging to stockholders, would in effect be doing that by making charitable contributions under express statutory authority in most states; that the stockholders' individual charitable responsibilities must be considered as well as those of the rate payers; and that the proposed rule revisions relate only to the accounting for the costs of contributions and memberships rather than the treatment of such items for rate making which is not now in issue.

5. With respect to the variation to the industry's proposal whereby the expenditures in question would be charged to a single operating expense account, several respondents stated that such method would facilitate regulatory analysis more readily than departmentalized expense accounts. On the other hand, several respondents commented that the single account procedure would obscure the true nature of the expenditures and would hamper the companies' internal control over such expenditures. All the comments mentioning the proposal to limit by amount or type the expenditures in question chargeable to operating expenses generally opposed the proposed rule either as arbitrary, unworkable or unsound. The tax normalization proposal (described above in paragraph 2c) was criticized in those comments responding to such proposal because tax adjustment accounting: (1) would complicate the accounts and financial statements making them difficult for the layman to understand; (2) could not be justified by the precedent of tax adjustment accounting for unusual, nonrecurring distortive items because contributions are of a continuing nature in relatively uniform amounts and not of sufficient magnitude to materially distort net operating income; and (3) would result in an unsound accounting practice of splitting the items in question between operating expenses and "below-the-line" deductions.

6. The classification of the expenditures in question as operating expenses for rate making is a controversial matter. Many of the reported rate decisions indicate that these expenditures are not allowable as operating expenses. While we recognize that this rule making proceeding concerns accounting, not rate making, we find particularly appropriate the following statement of this Commission taken from a previous accounting case: [1]

> The Commission is here concerned with preserving the identity and usefulness of an operating expense account by requiring the exclusion therefrom of charges which might distort its character and which might become submerged before occasion arose for review of their merits. In order to provide essential information in the form which the Commission considers most serviceable, operating expense accounts should reflect only clear-cut current costs. The inclusion therein of doubtful items or of items pertaining to other fiscal periods would require time-consuming and expensive reappraisal and analysis of each such item questioned in a regulatory rate proceeding and might be misleading to members of the public interested in the accounts.

Likewise, the inclusion of the doubtful items in question herein in the operating expense accounts, as proposed, is likely to require burdensome, detailed regulatory analysis of the accounts and cause delay in rate proceedings to the disadvantage of regulatory authorities and carriers. Such accounting also could mislead the public.

7. We believe our accounting rules should facilitate expeditious rate proceedings, insofar as possible, and should not impose upon the Commission, to the possible detriment of the rate payers, the burden of ferreting out doubtful or improper items from the accounts. Our current accounting rules are conducive to a rate case procedure whereby each contribution and membership item, currently charged "below-the-line", can be advanced by the carrier as properly includible in operating expenses, and such inclusion therein can be supported by pertinent evidence and argument (the latter might well include nearly every contention contained in the comments of the proponents of the proposed rule revision). The Commission could then rule on the merits of the issues at the proper time. In view of the controversy concerning the rate making treatment of the community welfare expenditures, the amendment of our accounting rules to permit the charging of such expenditures to any of the operating expense accounts might indicate to interested parties that we lean toward allowing such expenditures as operating expense for rate making. Since this matter is not now before us, we do not intend that this document should be construed as setting forth any opinion concerning the rate making aspects of the items at issue.

8. In our opinion, it would be unwise to adopt the proposed tax normalization rule, under which charitable contributions would continue to be charged to account 323, but an amount equal to the income tax reduction attributable to such contributions would be credited to account 323 with an offsetting charge to operating expenses. Even if we assume tax normalization accounting to be desirable in principle, we have doubts whether such accounting should be applied in the case of charitable contributions by the telephone companies. Our records indicate that annual contributions are relatively uniform and not of such magnitude as to produce tax reductions which could distort net operating income to any appreciable extent. Tax normalization accounting is usually applied to extraordinary non-recurring transactions which are of sufficient magnitude to substantially distort net income. Further, tax normalization accounting for contributions would complicate the accounts and may confuse some readers of the carriers' financial statements.

9. Aside from the above-mentioned obection to the proposed tax normalization rule, we believe that such proposal might more appropriately be considered, if at all, as part of a comprehensive review of the entire subject of tax normalization accounting. Such comprehensive subject is beyond the scope of this proceeding. Finally, we feel that if we were to apply tax normalization accounting solely to the matters now under consideration, such action might be construed as an indication that we were of the opinion that carriers may partially charge contributions to operating expenses for rate making purposes. As we have already stated, we do not at this time take any position on such matter.

10. In view of the foregoing, the Commission has concluded that there is no current need to adopt any of the proposed amendments to the accounting rules, and that the current rules are well adapted to serve the regulatory purposes and the public interest: Accordingly, it is ordered, That the proceeding in Docket No. 11402 is terminated.

Adopted: March 28, 1956.

DEPARTMENT OF HEALTH, EDUCATION, AND WELFARE

Food and Drug Administration

PUBLIC WARNING AGAINST HOXSEY CANCER TREATMENT

Under the authority vested in the Secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare by the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act (sec. 705 (b), 52 Stat. 1058; 21 U. S. C. 375 (b)) and delegated to the Commissioner of Food and Drugs by the Secretary (20 F. R. 1996), and upon the conclusion by the Commissioner that the Hoxsey Cancer Treatment is imminently dangerous to health and constitutes gross deception of the consumer, the following notice is issued:

Sufferers from cancer, their families, physicians, and all concerned with the care of cancer patients are hereby advised and warned that the so-called Hoxsey treatment for internal cancer has been found by the United States Court of Appeals for the Fifth Circuit, on the basis of evidence presented by the Food and Drug Administration, to be a worthless treatment.[1]

The Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act authorizes dissemination of information regarding drugs in situations involving imminent danger to health or gross deception of the consumer, supra. The Hoxsey treatment for internal cancer involves such drugs. Its sale represents a gross deception of the consumer. It is imminently dangerous to rely upon it in neglect of competent and rational treatment.

The Hoxsey treatment costs the patient $400, plus $60 in additional fees—expenditures that will yield nothing of any value in the cure of cancer. It begins with a superficial and inadequate examination of the patient at the Hoxsey Cancer Clinic, Dallas, Texas, or Portage, Pennsylvania. The patient at Dallas is then supplied with one of the following "cancer" medicines: Black pills, red pills, a brownish-black liquid, or a light-red liquid. The black pills and the brownish-black liquid contain potassium iodide, licorice, red clover blossoms, burdock root, Stillingia root, berberis root, pokeroot, cascara sagrada, prickly ash bark, and buckthorn powder. The red pills contain potassium iodide, red clover, Stillingia root, pokeroot, buckthorn, and pepsin. At Portage the patient is given the same "cancer" medication, although the colors of the pills are different. The light-red liquid medicine is potassium iodide in elixir of lactated pepsin. There is evidence that potassium iodide accelerates the growth of some cancers.

The Food and Drug Administration has conducted a thorough and long-continuing investigation of Hoxsey's treatment. His claimed cures have been extensively studied, and the Food and Drug Administration has not found a single verified cure of internal cancer effected by the Hoxsey treatment. In addition, the National Cancer Institute of the United States Public Health Service has reviewed case histories submitted by Hoxsey and has advised him that the cases provided no scientific evidence that the Hoxsey treatment has any value in the treatment of internal cancer.

On October 26, 1953, Harry M. Hoxsey, the Clinic, and all persons in active concert with him were enjoined by the United States District Court at Dallas, Texas, from shipping their worthless cancer medicines in interstate commerce with labeling representing, suggesting, or implying that the products are effective in the treatment of any type of internal cancer. While the Government intends to prosecute violations of the injunction, this warning is necessary for the immediate protection of cancer victims who may be planning to take the Hoxsey treatment.

Those afflicted with cancer are warned not to be misled by the false promise that the Hoxsey cancer treatment will cure or alleviate their condition. Cancer can be cured only through surgery or radiation. Death from cancer is inevitable when cancer patients fail to obtain proper medical treatment because of the lure of a painless cure "without the use of surgery, X-ray, or radium" as claimed by Hoxsey.

DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE

Agricultural Marketing Service

[ 7 CFR Parts 61, 64 ]

GRADING HEMP LINE AND HEMP TOW; COTTONSEED SOLD OR OFFERED FOR SALE FOR CRUSHING PURPOSES

PROPOSED TERMINATION AND REVISION OF REGULATIONS

Notice is hereby given that the United States Department of Agriculture is considering a revision of the regulations governing cottonseed sold or offered for sale for crushing purposes (7 CFR 61.1–61.46) pursuant to authority contained in the Agricultural Marketing Act of 1946 as amended (60 Stat. 1087; 7 U. S. C. 1621 et seq.).

The proposed amendment will implement Public Law 272, 84th Congress, 1st Session, approved August 9, 1955, amending the Agricultural Marketing Act of 1946, by designating the certificates, memoranda, marks, and other identifications and devices for making such marks or identifications, with respect to sampling, inspection, class, grade, quality, or condition, that are official for the purpose of said Act. The proposal would also make minor changes in the method of making payment for services but does not involve any changes in fees.

The proposed amendment would also delete Part 64 (7 CFR 64.1–64.11), Grading Hemp Line and Hemp Tow, in its entirety because these regulations are now obsolete.

Any interested person who wishes to submit written data, views, or arguments concerning the proposed amendment may do so by filing them with the Director, Cotton Division, Agricultural Marketing Service, United States Department of Agriculture, Washington 25, D. C., not later than 10 days after publication of this notice in the FEDERAL REGISTER.

The proposed amendment is as follows:

1. Add new § 61.2a to read as follows:

§ 61.2a Designation of official certificates, memoranda, marks, other identifications, and devices for purpose of the Agricultural Marketing Act. Subsection 203 (h) of the Agricultural Marketing Act of 1946, as amended by Public Law 272, 84th Congress, provides criminal penalties for various specified offenses relating to official certificates, memoranda, marks, or other identifications, and devices for making such marks or identifications, issued or authorized under section 203 of said act, and certain misrepresentations concerning the inspection or grading of agricultural products under said section. For the purposes of said subsection and the provisions in this part, the terms listed below shall have the respective meanings specified:

(a) "Official certificate" means any form of certification, either written or printed, used under this part to certify with respect to the inspection, sampling, class, grade, quality, quantity, or condition of products (including the compliance of products with applicable specifications).

(b) "Official memorandum" means any initial record of findings made by an authorized person in the process of grading, inspecting, or sampling, pursuant to this part, any processing or plant-operation report made by an authorized person in connection with grading, inspecting, or sampling under this part, and any report made by an authorized person of services performed pursuant to this part.

(c) "Official mark" means the grade mark, inspection mark, and any other mark, approved by the Administrator and authorized to be affixed to any product, or affixed to or printed on the packaging material of any product, stating that the product was graded or inspected or both, or indicating the appropriate U. S. grade or condition of the product, or for the purpose of maintaining the identity of products graded or inspected or both under this part.

(d) "Official identification" means any United States (U. S.) standard designation of class, grade, quality, quantity, or condition specified in this part and §§ 28.401 to 28.404 of this chapter, or any symbol, stamp, label, or seal indicating that the product has been officially graded or inspected and/or indicating the class, grade, quality, quantity, or condition of the product, approved by the Administrator and authorized to be affixed to any product, or affixed to or printed on the packaging material of any product.

(e) "Official device" means a stamping appliance, branding device, stencil, printed label, or any other mechanically or manually operated tool that is approved by the Administrator for the purpose of applying any official mark or other identification to any product or the packaging material thereof.

2. Delete the second sentence in § 61.46 and substitute therefor the following: "Remittance to cover such fee, in the form of a check, draft, or money order payable to the 'Agricultural Marketing Service, USDA,' shall accompany each application for review."

3. Delete Part 64 (7 CFR 64.1–64.11), Grading Hemp Line and Hemp Tow, in its entirety.

Done in Washington, D. C., this 5th day of April 1956.

CHILD LABOR REGULATIONS, ORDERS AND STATEMENTS OF INTERPRETATION

OCCUPATIONS INVOLVED IN MANUFACTURE OF BRICK, TILE, AND KINDRED PRODUCTS; HEARING ON PROPOSED FINDING AND ORDER

In accordance with the procedure governing determinations of hazardous-occupations (29 CFR Part 4, Subpart D), an investigation has been conducted for the purpose of ascertaining what occupations involved in the manufacture of brick, tile, and kindred products are particularly hazardous for the employment of minors between 16 and 18 years of age or detrimental to their health or well-being and thus constitute oppressive child labor as defined in section 3 (l) of the Fair Labor Standards Act of 1938 (52 Stat. 1060, as amended; 29 U. S. C. 201 et seq.).

A report of the investigation, entitled "Occupational Hazards To Young Workers, Report No. 13, The Manufacture of Brick, Tile, and Kindred Products" has been submitted. The report concludes that certain occupations involved in the manufacture of brick, tile, and kindred products are particularly hazardous for the employment of minors between 16 and 18 years of age or detrimental to their health or well-being. Copies of this report will be made available to interested persons upon request to the Bureau of Labor Standards, United States Department of Labor, Washington 25, D. C.

On the basis of such conclusions and pursuant to authority conferred by section 3 (l) of the Fair Labor Standards Act of 1938 (52 Stat. 1060, as amended; 29 U. S. C. 201 et seq.) and Reorganization Plan No. 2 (60 Stat. 1095) effective July 16, 1946, it is proposed to issue a finding and order in the form set forth below.

Accordingly, notice is hereby given of a public hearing to be held May 22, 1956, commencing at 10:00 a. m., in Room 2203, United States Department of Labor Building, 14th Street and Constitution Avenue, Northwest, Washington 25, D. C., before a presiding officer to be hereafter designated, at which hearing interested parties may appear and be heard with respect to said proposed finding and order. All interested persons desiring to appear at the hearing are requested to notify the Secretary of Labor at least five days prior to the date fixed for the hearing. Any interested person who is unable to appear in person may file a written comment or brief with the Secretary of Labor not later than the day prior to the hearing in order that the same may be made a part of the record at the hearing.

PROPOSED FINDING AND ORDER

§ 4.64 Occupations involved in the manufacture of brick, tile, and kindred products—(a) Findings and declaration of fact. The following occupations involved in the manufacture of clay construction products and of silica refractory products are particularly hazardous for the employment of minors between 16 and 18 years of age or detrimental to their health or well-being.

(1) All work in or about establishments in which clay construction products are manufactured, except (i) work in storage and shipping; (ii) work in offices, laboratories, and storerooms; and (iii) work in the drying departments of plants manufacturing sewer pipe.

(2) All work in or about establishments in which silica brick or other silica refractories are manufactured, except work in offices.

(b) Definitions. (1) The term "clay construction products" shall mean the following clay products: brick, hollow structural tile, sewer pipe and kindred products, refractories, and other clay products such as architectural terra cotta, glazed structural tile, roofing tile, stove lining, chimney pipes and tops, wall coping, and drain tile. The term shall not include the following nonstructural-bearing clay products: Ceramic floor and wall tile, mosaic tile, glazed and enameled tile, faience, and similar tile, nor shall the term include non-clay construction products such as sand-lime brick, glass brick, or non-clay refractories.

(2) The term "silica brick or other silica refractories" shall mean refractory products produced from raw materials containing free silica as their main constituent.

(c) This section shall not justify noncompliance with a Federal or State law or municipal ordinance establishing a higher standard than the standard established herein.

Signed at Washington, D. C., this 2d day of April 1956.

Bureau of Foreign Commerce

GEBRS. MELMAN

ORDER TEMPORARILY DENYING EXPORT PRIVILEGES

In the matter of: Gebrs. Melman, Zuid Oosterfront 122, 's-Hertogenbosch, Netherlands; Respondent.

The respondent, Gebrs. Melman, is the subject of an investigation concerning alleged false representations made to induce the exportation of borax and chromic acid from the United States with the object of transshipping the same to communist dominated destinations, and the Acting Director, Investigation Staff, Bureau of Foreign Commerce, has applied for an order temporarily denying to the respondent all export privileges pending completion of the investigation and the determination of any charges which may be brought against it. The application was made pursuant to § 382.11 (b) of the Export Regulations (Title 15, Chapter III, Subchapter B, CFR), and, in accordance with the practice thereunder, was referred to the Compliance Commissioner of the Bureau of Foreign Commerce who, after considering evidence in support thereof, has recommended that it be granted.

Now, upon receipt of the Compliance Commissioner's recommendation, after reviewing and considering the evidence submitted in support of the application, being of the opinion that there is reasonable ground to believe that the respondent has engaged in a persistent and deliberate campaign of making false representations to induce the exportation of chemicals from the United States with the intention to transship them to Communist dominated destinations, and that the respondent, unless prevented by action of this Department, may transship or attempt to transship to unauthorized destinations commodities exported from the United States under general license or under validated licenses, restricted to specified designations only, and, having concluded (a) that it is advisable that persons in the United States and in other parts of the world be informed by publication of this order of the provisions hereafter set forth so that the respondent may be prevented from receiving and so transshipping commodities exported from the United States, and (b) that this order is reasonable and necessary to protect the public interest and to achieve effective enforcement of the Export Control Act,

It is hereby ordered:

(1) All outstanding validated export licenses in which the respondent appears or participates as purchaser, intermediate or ultimate consignee, or otherwise, are hereby revoked and shall be returned forthwith to the Bureau of Foreign Commerce for cancellation;

(2) The respondent, its successors or assigns, directors, officers, partners, representatives, agents, and employees, are hereby denied all privileges of participating directly or indirectly in any manner, form, or capacity in an exportation of any commodity or technical data from the United States to any foreign destination, including Canada. Without limitation of the generality of the foregoing, participation in an exportation shall include and prohibit said respondent's and such other persons' and firms' participation (a) as a party or as a representative of a party to any validated export license application; (b) in the obtaining or using of any validated or general export license or other export control document; (c) in the receiving, ordering, buying, selling, using, or disposing in any foreign country of any commodities in whole or in part exported from the United States; and (d) in the financing, forwarding, transporting, or other servicing of exports from the United States;

(3) This denial of export privileges shall apply not only to the respondent, but also to any person, firm, corporation, or business organization with which it now or hereafter may be related by ownership, control, position of responsibility, or other connection in the conduct of trade involving exports from the United States or services connected therewith;

(4) This order shall be published in the FEDERAL REGISTER, shall be effective forthwith and shall remain in effect until the completion of the investigation of the conduct of the respondent and until the final determination of any compliance proceeding which may be brought against it, except insofar as this order may be amended or modified hereafter in accordance with the export control regulations;

(5) No person, firm, corporation, or other business organization, within the United States or elsewhere, and whether or not engaged in trade relating to exports from the United States, shall, without prior disclosure of the facts to, and specific authorization from, the Bureau of Foreign Commerce, directly or indirectly in any manner, form, or capacity (a) apply for, obtain, transfer, or use any license, shipper's export declaration, bill of lading, or other export control document relating to any exportation of commodities from the United States, or (b) order, receive, buy, use, dispose of, finance, transport, forward, or otherwise service or participate in an exportation from the United States, or in a reexportation of any commodity exported from the United States, with respect to which any of the persons or companies within the scope of paragraphs (2) and (3) hereof have any interest or participation of any kind or nature, direct or indirect.

(6) A certified copy of this order shall be served upon the respondent by registered mail.

(7) In accordance with the provisions of § 382.11 (c) of the export control regulations, the respondent may move at any time prior to the entry of a final order of suspension to vacate or modify this temporary suspension order by filing an appropriate application therefor, supported by evidence, with the Compliance Commissioner and it may request oral hearing thereon, which, if requested, shall be held before the Compliance Commissioner at Washington, D. C., at the earliest possible date.

CENTRAL AND SOUTH WEST CORP.

ORDER PERMITTING EFFECTIVENESS TO DECLARATION REGARDING PROPOSED AMENDMENT TO CERTIFICATE OF INCORPORATION INCREASING TOTAL AUTHORIZED COMMON STOCK AND SOLICITATION OF PROXIES IN RESPECT THEREOF

APRIL 4, 1956.

Central and South West Corporation ("Central"), a registered holding company, has filed with this Commission a declaration and an amendment pursuant to the requirements of sections 6 (a) (2), 7, and 12 (e) of the Public Utility Holding Company Act of 1935 ("act") and Rule U-62 promulgated thereunder and embracing certain proposed transactions which are summarized as follows:

MARKET AGENCIES AT ST. LOUIS NATIONAL STOCK YARDS

NOTICE OF PETITION FOR MODIFICATION OF RATE ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of the Packers and Stockyards Act, 1921, as amended (7 U. S. C. 181 et seq.), an order was issued on April 25, 1955 (14 A. D. 275), continuing in effect to and including May 31, 1956, the order of May 7, 1954 (13 A. D. 488), authorizing respondents to assess the current schedule of rates and charges.

On March 28 and April 2, 1956, petitions were filed on behalf of respondents requesting authority to put into effect, upon the expiration of the current schedule, a schedule of rates and charges, filed with the petitions, containing certain modifications in the presently authorized rates and charges. Those parts of the proposed new schedule which contain modifications of the currently authorized schedule are set forth below.

SECTION D

BUYING CHARGES

Sheep. Maximum charge on any purchase order of sheep shipped out by rail shall not exceed an amount of $30 multiplied by the number of single-deck cars plus $40 multiplied by the number of double-deck cars in which the order is shipped out.

The proposed modifications, if authorized, will produce additional revenue for the respondent market agencies and increase the cost of marketing livestock. Accordingly, it appears that this public notice should be given of the petitions and their contents in order that all interested persons may have an opportunity to indicate a desire to be heard in the matter.

All interested persons who desire to be heard in the matter shall notify the Hearing Clerk, United States Department of Agriculture, Washington 25, D. C., within fifteen days from the date of publication of this notice.

Done at Washington D. C., this 4th day of April 1956.

Chapter I—Civil Service Commission

PART 2—FILLING COMPETITIVE POSITIONS

RESTORATION OF ELIGIBILITY

Section 2.209 (b) is amended as set out below.

§ 2.209 Restoration of eligibility. * * *

(b) Persons who lost eligibility because of military service. (1) Anyone who has served on active duty in the military service since June 30, 1950, and for that reason lost a period of eligibility on a register may have his eligibility restored, if he meets all of the following conditions:

(i) He has not served more than four (4) years following the date of his entrance upon active military duty, exclusive of any additional service imposed pursuant to law. The date of entrance on duty means the first date between June 30, 1950, and July 1, 1959, on which he began a new period of active military duty, whether it was by original entry, reentry, or extension.

(ii) He is honorably separated from active military service.

(iii) He applies for restoration of eligibility within ninety (90) days after discharge from active military duty or from hospitalization continuing after discharge for not more than one (1) year.

(iv) He is still qualified to perform the duties of the position for which the register is used.

(2) A person who establishes his right to restoration of eligibility in accordance with subparagraph (1) of this paragraph shall have his name entered at the top of the appropriate group on the register, if another eligible standing lower on the register on which his name formerly appeared was given a career or a career-conditional appointment from such register while he was on active military duty after June 30, 1950. (All eligibles shall be considered as one group for professional and scientific positions in and above grades GS–9 of the Classification Act of 1949, as amended, and in comparable pay levels under other pay-fixing authority; for all other positions, veterans with a compensable service-connected disability of ten percent or more shall be in one group and all other eligibles in another.)

(3) Anyone who meets the conditions for entry on a register in accordance with subparagraph (2) of this paragraph, shall have his name listed for certification for career or career-conditional appointment, if the original register has been terminated and no successor register exists.

EDITORIAL NOTE: Part 284—Radio Standards of Chapter II of Title 15, appearing at page 1980 of the issue of March 30, 1956, is hereby redesignated "Parts 214—Radio Standards", and the numbering pattern within the tabular material and other references in Subchapter A are changed accordingly.

Chapter I—Civil Aeronautics Board

[Civil Air Regs., Amdt. 62-1]

PART 62—NOTIFICATION AND REPORTING OF AIRCRAFT ACCIDENTS AND OVERDUE AIRCRAFT

NOTIFICATION AND REPORTING OF ACCIDENTS INVOLVING SMALL FIXED-WING AIRCRAFT TO THE CIVIL AERONAUTICS ADMINISTRATION

Adopted by the Civil Aeronautics Board at its office in Washington, D. C., on the 5th day of April 1956.

Section 62.12 of Part 62 of the Civil Air Regulations requires that reports of accidents involving small fixed-wing aircraft be made in triplicate on an accident report form furnished by the Civil Aeronautics Administration. The Civil Aeronautics Administration has adopted a new reporting form which does not require duplicate copies; therefore, the requirement that reports be "in triplicate" is unnecessary.

Since this is a minor amendment and does not adversely affect the public interest, notice of proposed rule making is unnecessary, and it may be made effective immediately.

In consideration of the foregoing, the Civil Aeronautics Board hereby amends Part 62 of the Civil Air Regulations (14 CFR Part 62, as amended) as follows, effective April 5, 1956:

By amending § 62.12 by deleting therefrom the words "in triplicate".

(Sec. 205, 52 Stat. 984, as amended; 49 U. S. C. 425)

PROCEDURE ALTERATIONS

The standard instrument approach procedure alterations appearing hereinafter are adopted to become effective when indicated in order to promote safety. Compliance with the notice, procedures, and effective date provisions of section 4 of the Administrative Procedure Act would be impracticable and contrary to the public interest, and therefore is not required.

Part 609 is amended as follows:

NOTE: Where the general classification (LFR, VAR, ADF, ILS, GCA, or VOR), location, and procedure number (if any) of any procedure in the amendments which follow, are identical with an existing procedure, that procedure is to be substituted for the existing one, as of the effective date given, to the extent that it differs from the existing procedure; where a procedure is cancelled, the existing procedure is revoked; new procedures are to be placed in appropriate alphabetical sequence within the section amended.

1. The very high frequency omnirange procedures prescribed in § 609.9 (c) are amended to read in part:

TITLE 7—AGRICULTURE

Chapter I—Agricultural Marketing Service (Standards, Inspections, Marketing Practices), Department of Agriculture

Subchapter C—Regulations and Standards Under the Farm Products Inspection Act

MISCELLANEOUS AMENDMENTS

Under the authority conferred by the provisions in the Agricultural Marketing Act of 1946 (60 Stat. 1087, as amended; 7 U. S. C. 1621 et seq.), for the investigation and certification of the class, quality, and condition of agricultural commodities and food products and products containing agricultural commodities or derivatives thereof, the regulations governing the inspection and certification of fruits, vegetables and other products (§§ 51.1 through 51.51) are hereby amended, effective on and after 12:01 a. m., e. s. t., April 13, 1956, as follows:

1. Change the main heading "Fees and Charges", immediately preceding § 51.36 Amount of fees, rates, and charges so that it will read "Fees and Charges (Destination Markets)";

2. Change the section numbering of §§ 51.46 to 51.51, both inclusive, which sections follow the main heading "Miscellaneous", so that said sections will be renumbered as §§ 51.53, 51.54, 51.55, 51.56, 51.57, and 51.58, respectively; and

3. Add the following new main heading and new sections immediately after existing § 51.45 Disposition of fees and immediately prior to the main heading "Miscellaneous";

FEES AND CHARGES (SHIPPING AREAS)

§ 51.46 Schedule of fees. In the absence of specific provisions therefor contained in cooperative agreements entered into pursuant to § 51.39, the fees to be charged and collected for any inspection service performed in shipping areas shall be based on the applicable rates specified in this section.

(a) Base fee for fruits and vegetables. The base fee shall be $10.00 per carload of the customary size for the products in the area from which shipped: Provided, That the base fee shall be adjusted on an approximately proportional basis to determine the fee for any lot which is smaller or larger than a carload of the customary size, based either on the number of pounds or the number of containers.

(b) Additional fee for multiple products. An additional fee of $0.50 (fifty cents) per commodity shall be charged whenever the carload or other quantity inspected consists of more than one fruit or vegetable.

(c) Additional fee for certified weight or count. An additional fee of $2.00 per lot shall be charged for determining certified weight and $1.00 per lot shall be charged for determining certified count.

(d) Base fee for peanuts, pecans, or other nuts. The base fee for peanuts (shelled), pecans, or other nuts shall be $12.50 per carload of the customary size for such products in the area from which shipped: Provided, That the base fee shall be adjusted on an approximately proportional basis to determine the fee for any lot which is smaller or larger than a carload of the customary size based either on the number of pounds or the number of containers: And provided further, That the fee for farmers' stock (unshelled) peanuts shall be $1.50 per ton.

(e) Minimum fee. The minimum fee for performing any inspection shall be $2.00 regardless of the size of the lot involved.

§ 51.47 Additional charges for inspections performed at night, Sundays, or holidays. Whenever inspections are performed at the request of the applicant between the hours of 6 o'clock p. m. and 6 o'clock a. m., on Sundays or on holidays, the charge for inspection shall be $2.00 per hour or portion thereof per inspector in addition to the regular lot fees specified in this subpart.

§ 51.48 Charges for inspection service on a contract basis. Irrespective of the fees and charges prescribed in §§ 51.46 and 51.47, the Administrator may enter into contracts with applicants to perform inspection services for the purpose of establishing prescribed minimum charges for specified periods of time whenever the Administrator determines that the regular lot fees will not reimburse the Agricultural Marketing Service for the full cost of rendering such inspection services: Provided, That the fees and charges actually levied shall in no event be less than the regular lot fees per carload or per ton specified in this subpart.

§ 51.49 Inspections for government agencies. Unless otherwise provided in a written agreement between the applicant and the Administrator, the fees to be charged for any inspection service performed at the request of the United States or of any State, or any agency or instrumentality thereof, shall be at the rate of $4.00 per hour.

§ 51.50 Travel and other expenses. Charges may be made to cover the cost of travel and other expenses incurred in connection with the performance of any inspection service.

§ 51.51 Fees for additional copies of certificates. Additional copies of any inspection certificate, other than those provided in § 51.21, may be supplied to any interested party upon payment of a fee of $1.50 for each set of three, or less, copies.

§ 51.52 Payment of fees. Fees shall be paid by the applicant in accordance with directions on the fee bill furnished him by the inspector. Either payment in advance or an advance of funds or surety bond in an amount suitable to the Administrator may be required prior to rendering inspection service.

It is hereby found that it would be impracticable and contrary to the public interest to give preliminary notice and engage in public rule making procedure with respect to these amendments, or to postpone the effective date of said amendments later than 12:01 a. m., e. s. t., April 13, 1956, for the reasons that: (1) The fees and charges of the nature to be provided for under the amendment numbered (3) have heretofore been specified in individual cooperative agreements entered into pursuant to § 51.39; (2) the cooperative agreement in effect in Texas is being terminated as of the close of business on April 12, 1956, and it is necessary that there be in effect on and after April 13, 1956, new provisions to cover the costs of inspections in such a situation; (3) the changes specified in the amendments numbered 1 and 2 are designed merely to make the other sections of these regulations conform with the new provisions added by the amendment numbered 3; and (4) the services provided herein are permissive and the industries affected do not require additional time to comply with these amendments.

Dated: April 6, 1956.

Acting Deputy Administrator, Marketing Services.

TITLE 21—FOOD AND DRUGS

Chapter I—Food and Drug Administration, Department of Health, Education, and Welfare

Subchapter A—General

PART 1—REGULATIONS FOR THE ENFORCEMENT OF THE FEDERAL FOOD, DRUG, AND COSMETIC ACT

EXEMPTION OF CERTAIN DRUGS AND DEVICES FROM LABELING REQUIREMENTS

Pursuant to the authority vested in the Secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare by the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act (sec. 502 (f) (1), 52 Stat. 1051; 21 U. S. C. 352 (f) (1)) and delegated to the Commissioner of Food and Drugs by the Secretary (21 F. R. 1996), Part 1 of the regulations for the enforcement of the act (21 CFR 1.106) is amended as follows:

Section 1.106 Drugs and devices; directions for use is amended by changing paragraph (m) to read as follows:

(m) Exemption for drugs and devices for use in teaching, law enforcement, research, and analysis. A drug or device subject to paragraph (b), (c), or (d) of this section shall be exempt from section 502 (f) (1) of the act if shipped or sold to, or in the possession of, persons regularly and lawfully engaged in instruction in pharmacy, chemistry, or medicine not involving clinical use, or engaged in law enforcement, or in research not involving clinical use, or in chemical analysis, or physical testing, and is to be used only for such instruction, law enforcement, research, analysis, or testing.

Notice and public procedure are not necessary prerequisites to the promulgation of this order, and I so find, since the exemption granted applies only to drugs and devices shipped, sold, or in the possession of persons engaged in law-enforcement and in such cases the labeling requirements are not necessary for the protection of the public health; since the amendment relaxes existing requirements; and since it would be against public interest to delay providing for the amendment.

This order shall become effective upon publication in the FEDERAL REGISTER.

(Secs. 502 (f) (1), 701, 52 Stat. 1051, 1055, as amended; 21 U. S. C. 352 (f) (1), 371)

PAR. 12. Immediately preceding § 411.501, the following is inserted:

SECTION 203 OF THE ACT OF AUGUST 31, 1954 (68 STAT. 1040)

Section 1510 of the Railroad Retirement Tax Act is hereby amended by inserting after the word "month" the following: "before July 1, 1954, and as is not in excess of $350 for any calendar month after June 30, 1954".

PAR. 13. Section 411.501 is amended to read as follows:

§ 411.501 Measure of employee representatives' tax—(a) General rule. Except as provided in paragraph (b) of this section, the employee representatives' tax with respect to compensation paid after December 31, 1948, for services rendered after December 31, 1946, is measured by the amount of such compensation paid to an individual for services rendered as an employee representative, excluding, however, the amount of compensation in excess of $300 which is paid after December 31, 1946, to the employee representative for services rendered during any one calendar month after December 31, 1946, and before July 1, 1954, and excluding the amount of compensation in excess of $350 which is paid after December 31, 1946, to the employee representative for services rendered during any one calendar month after June 30, 1954. (See §§ 411.205 to 411.208, inclusive, relating to compensation.)

(b) Aggregate monthly compensation as employee representative and employee exceeds maximum taxable compensation. (1) If during any one calendar month after December 31, 1946, and before July 1, 1954, an individual renders services as an employee representative and as an employee and the total compensation paid after December 31, 1946, to the individual for services rendered during such month as an employee representative and as an employee exceeds $300, the measure of the employee representatives' tax for such month shall be $300 minus the compensation paid after December 31, 1946, to such individual for services rendered by him during the month as an employee.

(2) If during any one calendar month after June 30, 1954, an individual renders services as an employee representative and as an employee and the total compensation paid after December 31, 1946, to the individual for services rendered during such month as an employee representative and as an employee exceeds $350, the measure of the employee representatives' tax for such month shall be $350 minus the compensation paid after December 31, 1946, to such individual for services rendered by him during the month as an employee.

(3) The application of subparagraphs (1) and (2) of this paragraph may be illustrated by the following example:

Example. A renders services as an employee representative during a particular calendar month before July 1, 1954, for which he is paid in the month or thereafter $100. During the same calendar month A also renders services as an employee for one or more employers and receives during the month or thereafter compensation of $275. Inasmuch as A's total compensation for services rendered during the month as an employee representative and as an employee exceeds $300 ($275 plus $100), the measure of the employee representatives' tax is $300 minus $275 (A's compensation for services rendered as an employee), or $25. (If the particular calendar month were a month after June 30, 1954, the measure of the employee representatives' tax would be $350 minus $275, or $75.)

Because this Treasury decision merely conforms the regulations to the provisions of sections 201, 202, 203, 204, 205, and 402 of the act of August 31, 1954 (68 Stat. 1040, 1042), and is liberalizing in nature to the extent that it gives effect to the decision in Shattuck v. Gallagher (C. A. 6th 1955) 218 F. 2d 428, it is found that it is unnecessary to issue this Treasury decision with notice and public procedure thereon under section 4 (a) of the Administrative Procedure Act, approved June 11, 1946, or subject to the effective date limitation of section 4 (c) of said act.

Chapter V—Department of the Army

Subchapter F—Personnel

PART 577—MEDICAL AND DENTAL ATTENDANCE

ARMY HOSPITAL REGULATIONS; MISCELLANEOUS AMENDMENTS

In § 577.15 (e), revise subparagraphs (15), (19), and (25), revoke subparagraph (23), and revise subparagraph (20) (i) (a) and (b), as follows:

§ 577.15 Persons eligible to receive medical care at army medical treatment facilities. • • •

(e) Persons eligible. • • •

(15) Applicants for enlistment and registrants. Applicants for enlistment and registrants while under military control whose physical fitness for military service cannot be determined without hospital study for a period not to exceed 3 days. In addition, applicants for enlistment who suffer acute illnesses and injuries while awaiting or undergoing enlistment processing at recruiting main stations or at Armed Forces Examining Stations may be furnished emergency medical care including hospitalization.

* * * * * *

(19) Seamen. Civilian seamen in the service of vessels operated by the Department of the Army or the Military Sea Transportation Service listed in subdivisions (i) and (ii) of this subparagraph, respectively, are still in the service of a vessel, although not on board and not engaged in their duties, as long as they are under the power and jurisdiction of competent Department of the Army or Military Sea Transportation Service authorities. On-the-job emergency medical, surgical, and dental service may be provided under the Federal Civilian Employees' Health Service Program. When service is provided to civilian seamen in the service of vessels operated by Military Sea Transportation Service under this program, the outpatient rate will be collected locally from the Military Sea Transportation Service by the medical treatment facility concerned. Cases of traumatic injury or occupational disease incurred in the course of employment should be treated as Bureau of Employees' Compensation beneficiaries (see subparagraph (10) of this paragraph). The provisions of subdivisions (i) and (ii) of this subparagraph, respectively, apply to the furnishing of medical care to civilian seamen in the service of vessels operated by the Department of the Army or the Military Sea Transportation Service who are not beneficiaries of the Bureau of Employees' Compensation.

(i) Civilian seamen in service of vessels operated by the Department of the Army. These seamen are authorized medical care until completion of the agreed upon period of service, or until competent medical authority determines that such personnel have recovered from the illness or injury, whichever occurs first. Except in emergencies, those entitled to care by the Public Health Service will be furnished medical care only when facilities of that service are not available. Authorization for such care will be granted upon presentation of a certificate from the master or other appropriate administrative authority which may be dispensed with only in emergencies.

(ii) Civilian seamen in service of vessels operated by the Military Sea Transportation Service. For a reasonable time provided that, except in emergencies, those entitled to care by the Public Health Service will be furnished medical care only when facilities of that service or Naval facilities are not available. Authorization for such care will be granted upon presentation by the seamen concerned of a duly executed Bureau of Employees' Compensation Form CA–16 (Request for Treatment of injury Under the United States Employees' Compensation Act). In cases where immediate treatment is required and the employee concerned does not have the required Form CA–16, the nearest Military Sea Transportation Service command will be requested to submit a duly executed Form CA–16. (The use of BEC forms in these cases does not imply that these cases are to be treated as beneficiaries of the Bureau of Employees' Compensation.)

(iii) American seamen. American seamen to include both officers and members of the crew outside the continental United States, its Territories and its possessions. This category includes seamen aboard ships of United States registry such as those aboard Department of Defense time-chartered vessels of commercial operators; in emergency to save life or prevent undue suffering those aboard time-chartered vessels, other than those referred to above, and those on privately owned and operated vessels. A seaman whose condition would require retention in an Army medical treatment facility for a prolonged period of time, and when lack of transportation facilities prevents evacuation through the local ship's agent, may be evacuated through Army medical evacuation channels as soon as transfer without detriment to the patient is possible. No seaman in the service of a vessel of foreign registry will be evacuated to the continental United States.

(20) Nationals of foreign governments. (i) Nationals of foreign governments within the continental United States to include the following:

(a) Foreign military personnel in the attache system carried on the current "Diplomatic List" (Blue) published by the State Department.

(b) Foreign military personnel assigned or attached to United States military units for duty or training; and foreign military personnel on foreign government military missions accredited to one of the military departments by virtue of agreements entered into by the United States and the foreign government.

* * * * *

(23) Employees of commercial airlines. [Revoked]

* * * * *

(25) Persons who contribute to accomplishment of oversea commander's mission. Persons who contribute to the accomplishment of the oversea commander's mission and for whom medical care is deemed essential by the oversea commander concerned in the accomplishment of his mission.

PART 9—AVIATION SERVICES

MISCELLANEOUS AMENDMENTS

In the matter of amendment of §§ 2.1, 2.104 (a) (5) and § 9.3 of the Commission's rules and regulations.

It appearing that Flight Test Stations, when operating on the frequency 3281 kc, should be classified as operating in the mobile service and therefore defined, in this instance, as Land Stations rather than Aeronautical Stations; and

It further appearing that the Commission's Table of Frequency Allocations should be amended properly to reflect frequency assignments made pursuant to the Atlantic City Radio Regulations (1947) and the Agreement of the Extraordinary Administrative Radio Conference (1951); and

It further appearing that general notice of proposed rule making, as provided by section 4 (a) of the Administrative Procedure Act, is unnecessary for the reason that the only purpose of the amendments herein ordered is to conform the Commission's rules and Table of Frequency Allocations to existing treaty provisions; and

It further appearing that the changes herein ordered are nonsubstantive in nature, and impose no new requirement on any applicant or licensee; and

It further appearing that authority for issuance of this Order is contained in sections 303 (a), (c) and (r) of the Communications Act of 1934, as amended:

It is ordered, That, effective May 16, 1956, Parts 2 and 9 of the Commission's rules are amended as set forth below.

DEPARTMENT OF THE TREASURY

Internal Revenue Service

[ 26 CFR (1954) Part 1 ]

INCOME TAX; TAXABLE YEARS BEGINNING AFTER DECEMBER 31, 1953

NOTICE OF PROPOSED RULE MAKING

Notice is hereby given, pursuant to the Administrative Procedure Act, approved June 11, 1946, that the regulations set forth in tentative form below are proposed to be prescribed by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, with the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury or his delegate. Prior to the final adoption of such regulations, consideration will be given to any data, views, or arguments pertaining thereto which are submitted in writing, in duplicate, to the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, Attention: T:P, Washington 25, D. C., within the period of thirty days from the date of publication of this notice in the FEDERAL REGISTER. The proposed regulations are to be issued under the authority contained in section 7805 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954 (68A Stat. 917; 26 U. S. C. 7805).

[SEAL] RUSSELL C. HARRINGTON,
Commissioner of Internal Revenue.

The following regulations for taxable years beginning after December 31, 1953, and ending after August 16, 1954, are hereby prescribed under section 214 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954:

§ 1.214 Statutory provisions; additional itemized deductions for individuals; expenses for care of certain dependents.

SEC. 214. Expenses for care of certain dependents—(a) General rule. There shall be allowed as a deduction expenses paid during the taxable year by a taxpayer who is a woman or a widower for the care of one or more dependents (as defined in subsection (c) (1)), but only if such care is for the purpose of enabling the taxpayer to be gainfully employed.

(b) Limitations—(1) In general. The deduction under subsection (a)—

(A) Shall not exceed $600 for any taxable year; and

(B) Shall not apply to any amount paid to an individual with respect to whom the taxpayer is allowed for his taxable year a deduction under section 151 (relating to deductions for personal exemptions).

(2) Working wives. In the case of a woman who is married, the deduction under subsection (a)—

(A) Shall not be allowed unless she files a joint return with her husband for the taxable year, and

(B) Shall be reduced by the amount (if any) by which the adjusted gross income of the taxpayer and her spouse exceeds $4,500.

This paragraph shall not apply if the taxpayer's husband is incapable of self-support because mentally or physically defective.

(c) Definitions. For purposes of this section—

(1) Dependent. The term "dependent" means a person with respect to whom the taxpayer is entitled to an exemption under section 151 (e) (1)—

(A) Who has not attained the age of 12 years, and who (within the meaning of section 152) is a son, stepson, daughter, or stepdaughter of the taxpayer; or

(B) Who is physically or mentally incapable of caring for himself.

(2) Widower. The term "widower" includes an unmarried individual who is legally separated from his spouse under a decree of divorce or of separate maintenance.

(3) Determination of status. A woman shall not be considered as married if she is legally separated from her spouse under a decree of divorce or of separate maintenance at the close of the taxable year.

§ 1.214–1 Expenses for the care of certain dependents—(a) General rule. Section 214 allows a deduction from gross income of expenses paid for the care of certain dependents where the care is for the purpose of enabling the taxpayer to be gainfully employed. Such expenses are referred to in this section as "child care" expenses. The deduction may not exceed $600 for any taxable year (regardless of the number of dependents for whose care the expenses are paid) and is allowed only for expenses incurred while the taxpayer is gainfully employed or in active search of gainful employment. The employment which is the cause of the incurring of the expenses may, however, consist of services either within or without the home of the taxpayer. Self-employment constitutes employment for purposes of section 214.

(b) Taxpayers who may qualify for the deduction. The deduction provided in section 214 is allowed only to a woman or a widower. For the purpose of this paragraph, the following rules apply:

(1) A widower. The deduction is allowed for expenses paid by a taxpayer who is a widower at the time the expenses are incurred. The term "widower" includes (i) a man whose wife has died and who has not remarried, (ii) a man who is divorced from his wife under a decree of divorce, and has not remarried, and (iii) a man who is legally separated from his wife under a decree of legal separation.

(2) A married woman whose husband is capable of self-support. If the expenses are paid by a woman (i) who is married at the time the expenses are incurred, (ii) whose husband at that time is not incapable of self-support because he is mentally defective or physically disabled, and (iii) who is not divorced or legally separated at the end of the taxable year, the deduction is allowed, but only if the taxpayer files a joint income tax return with her spouse for the taxable year in which the expenses are paid. Further, the amount otherwise deductible shall be reduced by the amount, if any, by which the combined adjusted gross income of the taxpayer and her spouse exceeds $4,500 for the taxable year in which the expenses are paid. The amount otherwise deductible is the amount expended for child care or $600, whichever is lesser. The determination of whether the taxpayer's husband is incapable of self-support because of a mental defect or physical disability shall be made without regard to his income from sources other than his own earnings. For purposes of this subparagraph, the term "earnings" means wages, salaries, commissions, professional fees, and other amounts received as compensation for personal services actually rendered. It does not include income such as pensions, annuities, sick-pay, interest, dividends, or rents.

(3) A married woman whose husband is incapable of self-support. (i) The deduction is allowed without regard to the limitations described in subparagraph (2) of this paragraph for expenses paid by a married woman whose husband is incapable of self-support because he is mentally defective or physically disabled (as defined in subparagraph (2) of this paragraph) at the time the expenses are incurred; (ii) a married woman claiming a deduction under this subparagraph shall attach to her income tax return in which the deduction is claimed a statement disclosing (a) the nature of her husband's disability, (b) the period of the disability, and (c) if her husband had earnings during the period, the amount of his earnings, and the total amount expended for his support during the period. Where the husband is capable of self-support for part of a taxable year the child care expenses incurred for such part shall be treated under subparagraph (2) of this paragraph. See example (8) of paragraph (c) of this section.

(4) A single woman. The deduction is also allowed without regard to the limitation described in subparagraph (2) above for expenses paid by a woman who (i) is unmarried at the time the expenses are incurred, or (ii) is, at the close of her taxable year, legally separated from her husband under a decree of divorce or of separate maintenance.

(5) Determination of status. If child care expenses are incurred in one taxable year and paid in another, the status of a taxpayer described in subparagraphs (1) to (4) of this paragraph, inclusive, shall be determined as of the year in which the expenses are incurred, and not when such expenses are paid.

(c) Computation of deduction. The deduction for child care expenses is allowable only with respect to such expenses actually paid during the taxable year regardless of when the event which occasioned the expenses occurred and regardless of the method of accounting employed by the taxpayer in making his income tax return. If child care expenses are incurred but not paid during the taxable year, no deduction can be taken for such year. Thus, if an expenditure was incurred in December 1955, but not paid until January 1956, no deduction may be taken for the calendar year 1955. The following examples illustrate the computation of the deduction allowed by section 214 in the case of a taxpayer making his return on the basis of the calendar year. In each example it is assumed that the expenses are of the type which would qualify for the deduction.

Example (1). M was a widower during 1954, until September 1, when he remarried. He paid $50 each month in 1954 for child care expenses. He may take into account, for purposes of the deduction allowed by section 214, only the expenses paid during the taxable year which were incurred while he was unmarried. Since the expenses were $400 ($50 per month from January to August, inclusive), the amount of the deduction is $400. If M had paid $100 per month during 1954, the deduction would be limited to $600, although the expenses incurred while M was unmarried amount to $800.

Example (2). H and W were married during the entire year 1954. W, the wife, paid $900 for child care expenses incurred during the year. The combined adjusted gross income of H and W for 1954 was $5,000. The allowable deduction under section 214 is $100 ($600, the maximum deduction allowable, reduced by $500, the excess of adjusted gross income of $5,000 over $4,500). The deduction of $100 is allowable only if H and W made a joint return for 1954.

Example (3). The facts are the same as in example (2), except that the child care expenses paid during the year were $400. No deduction is allowable under section 214, since the amount of expenses paid, $400, is less than $500 (the excess of the adjusted gross income over $4,500).

Example (4). During 1954, W, a woman, paid $50 each month for child care expenses. She was unmarried until April 1, 1954, and was married for the remainder of the year. H, her husband, was capable of self-support, and the combined adjusted gross income of husband and wife was $4,700. H and W made a joint return for 1954. The total deduction allowable to W under section 214 is $400, computed as follows: $150 as expenses incurred while W was a single woman, and $250 as expenses incurred while W was married; the $250 is arrived at by taking the amount expended while H and W were married, $450, and reducing it by $200 (the excess of adjusted gross income, $4,700 over $4,500).

Example (5). The facts are the same as in example (4), except that the amounts paid are $75 per month ($225 being paid for expenses incurred while W was single and $675 while she was married). The total allowable deduction in this case is $600. $225 is deductible as expenses incurred while W was a single woman. $400 of the expenses incurred during the period of marriage is also deductible. However, the maximum deduction allowable to W is $600. The allowable amount for expenses incurred during the period of marriage is determined as follows: $675 (the amount expended during the period) is reduced to $600 (the maximum deduction allowable) and $600 is then reduced by $200 (the excess of adjusted gross income $4,700 over $4,500) to $400.

Example (6). H and W were married during 1954 prior to July 1, when they received a decree of divorce. She did not remarry during 1954. W paid $100 per month for child care expenses during 1954. The allowable deduction is $600. Since W is considered to have been a single woman during all of 1954, the limitations with respect to the deduction allowed to a married woman are not applicable, and only the $600 limitation applies.

Example (7). H and W married on July 1, 1954. At all times in 1954, until July 1, H was a widower and W was a widow. H and W each paid $750 for child care in 1954, prior to their marriage. Each is allowed a deduction for 1954 of $600, regardless of their adjusted gross income and of the amount of their child care expenditures while married, and whether or not a joint return was filed. However, no additional deduction would be allowed for child care expenses paid after their marriage.

Example (8). H and W were married at all times during the year 1954. As a result of an accident, H incurred injuries which rendered him incapable of self-support throughout 1954 until September 1. The adjusted gross income of H and W for 1954 was $4,700. W paid $60 each month in 1954 for child care expenses. The deduction allowable to W by section 214 is $520. This amount is composed of $480, representing the amounts paid during H's period of disability, and $40, representing the allowable deduction of expenses paid in the amount of $240 from September to December, inclusive ($240 is reduced by $200, the excess of the adjusted gross income ($4,700) over $4,500).

Example (9). H and W were married from January 1, 1954 to October 1, 1954, when H died. The combined adjusted gross income of the spouses was $4,800. W paid $50 per month for child care expenses throughout the entire year. The deduction allowed to W if she filed a separate return is $150, the amount paid while she was a widow. If a joint return is filed on behalf of the widow and her deceased husband, the deduction allowable is $300 which includes $150 deductible as a married woman (the amount expended during marriage, $450, being reduced by $300, the excess of $4,800 over $4,500).

(d) Dependents. (1) The deduction provided by section 214 is allowed only for expenses paid for the care of an individual who (for the taxable year of the taxpayer in which the expenses are incurred) is a dependent of the taxpayer for whom an exemption is allowed under section 151 (e) (1). Furthermore, the dependent must, at the time the expenses are incurred, be either—

(i) Under the age of 12 years, or

(ii) Physically or mentally unable to care for himself. It is not necessary that the dependent be permanently disabled in order for the amount expended for his care to be deductible. However, the mere fact that the disability, whether temporary or permanent, renders him incapable of self-support does not necessarily mean that he is incapable of self-care within the meaning of this subdivision.

(2) The rules provided in sections 151 and 152, with respect to the definition and qualification of an individual as a dependent, govern for the purpose of section 214. Thus, expenses for the care of a child under 12 whom the taxpayer supports are deductible even though the child has gross income of $600 or more. On the other hand, expenses for the care of an aged parent would not be deductible if the gross income condition of section 151 (e) (1) (A) is not met.

(e) Payments to a dependent. No deduction is allowed under section 214 for expenses paid to an individual for whom the taxpayer is allowed, for the taxable year in which the expenses are paid, an exemption under section 151. Thus, if the taxpayer, a working widow, supports her mother and is entitled to claim her as a dependent, she may not deduct amounts paid to the mother for the care of the taxpayer's children.

(f) What expenses are deductible— (1) In general. In order for an expense to be deductible under section 214, it must meet three conditions: First, the expense must be for the care of a dependent; second, it must be for a dependent's care while the taxpayer is gainfully employed or in search of gainful employment; and third, the expense must be for the purpose of enabling the taxpayer to be gainfully employed. In determining whether an expense meets these conditions, all the facts and circumstances of the case must be taken into consideration.

(2) Definition of care of a dependent. (i) In general, the phrase expenses for the care of a dependent means amounts expended for the primary purpose of assuring the dependent's well being and protection. It does not include all benefits which may be bestowed upon him. Accordingly, amounts expended to provide food, clothing, or education, are not, in themselves, amounts expended for "care" so as to be deductible under section 214. However, where the manner of providing care is such that the expense which must be incurred includes payments for other benefits which are inseparably a part of the care, the full amount of the expense will be considered to be incurred for care. Thus, the full amount paid to a nursery school will be considered to be for the care of the child, even though th eschool also furnishes lunch, recreational activities, and other benefits.

(ii) The manner of providing the care need not be the least expensive method available to the taxpayer. For example, the taxpayer's mother may reside at the taxpayer's home and be available to afford the taxpayer's child adequate care. Regardless of this fact, the expense incurred for the child at a nursery school or day camp may be expense for the care of the child. See, however, suparagraph (4) of this paragraph with respect to the requirement that the expense must be for the purpose of enabling the taxpayer to be gainfully employed.

(iii) Where a portion of an expenditure is for the care of a dependent and a portion is for other unrelated purposes, a reasonable allocation shall be made and only the portion of the amount paid which is attributable to the care shall be considered an amount to which section 214 is applicable. This rule is applicable if, for example, a servant performs household duties and also cares for the children of the taxpayer. In this case, however, where one of the children is under 12, and the other (or others), is over 12, there need be no further allocation between the children under 12 years and those over that age.

(3) Period of employment. Since the deduction is allowed only for expenses for care for those periods during which the taxpayer is gainfully employed (or in active search of gainful employment), an allocation may be required when an expense covers periods of care in which no employment is involved. Thus, if a taxpayer pays $50 each month during the year for care of his child at a foster home, and the taxpayer is employed (or in search of employment) for only two months during the year, the deduction is limited to $100.

(4) Purpose of expenditure. Even if an expense is incurred for the care of a dependent, it is not deductible unless it is incurred for the purpose of permitting the taxpayer to be gainfully employed. Whether that is the true purpose of the expense depends upon the facts and circumstances of the particular case. Thus, the fact that the cost of providing care for a dependent is greater than the amounts anticipated to be received from the employment of the taxpayer may indicate that the purpose of the expenditure is other than to permit the taxpayer to be gainfully employed.

(5) Examples. The following examples illustrate the application of this paragraph.

Example (1). A widow has a child who is too young to attend public school. In order that she may be gainfully employed, the widow places the child in a nursery school while she is at work. The expenses paid to the nursery school are child care expenses to which the deduction under section 214 is applicable. Assuming the nursery school provides lunch for the child, no allocation is required between that part of the expense which might be considered to be for the lunch as distinguished from the expense of assuring the child's protection.

Example (2). The taxpayer, a single woman, in order to be gainfully employed employs a housekeeper who cares for the taxpayer's two children, aged 9 and 13 years, respectively, in addition to performing regular household duties of cleaning and cooking. If it is assumed that the compensation paid to the housekeeper is $1,200 during the year, and that $500 is allocated to the care of the children, a deduction of $500 is allowed under section 214. No allocation is required for purposes of determining which part of the $500 is for the care of the 9 year old child. If the expenses allocable to the care of the children were $700, the amount of the deduction would be $600, the maximum amount allowable in a taxable year under section 214.

Example (3). The taxpayer, a single woman, has a child 10 years of age who has been attending public school. The taxpayer who has been working part time is offered a position involving full time employment which she can accept only if arrangements are made for the care of the child from 8 a. m. to 5:30 p. m. Such arrangements are made at a private school to which she sends the child. The expenses paid to the school are for the care of the child without allocation between that part of the expense which represents tuition and that part which represents true care. The expense is considered to be incurred for the purpose of enabling the taxpayer to be gainfully employed.

Example (4). The taxpayer, a widow with a substantial income, has a child aged 11 who has been attending boarding school for several years. The taxpayer, who has been performing gratuitous services for a philanthropic organization, accepts a part-time job with the organization for which she is paid a small salary. From these facts it would appear that the expense of continuing the child in the boarding school is not for the purpose of enabling the taxpayer to be gainfully employed, whether or not the expense is considered to be incurred for the care of the child.

Example (5). The taxpayer, a widower, has a child who is physically incapable of caring for himself. In order to be gainfully employed the taxpayer sends the child to a school for children who are physically handicapped. The expense of the school, whether a day school or a boarding school, is a child care expense.

Example (6). The taxpayer, a single woman, lives with her mother who is an invalid incapable of caring for herself. In order to be gainfully employed the taxpayer hires a practical nurse whose sole duty consists of providing for the care of the mother while the taxpayer is at work. The expense paid to the nurse may be a "child care" expense.

(g) Expenses qualifying under section 213. (1) An expense which may constitute an amount otherwise deductible under section 213, relating to medical, etc., expenses, may also, as in example (6) of paragraph (f) of this section, constitute an expense for which a deduction is allowable under section 214. In such a case, that part of the amount for which a deduction is allowed under section 214 shall not be treated as an expense under section 213.

(2) On the other hand, where an amount is treated as a medical expense under section 213 for purposes of determining the amount deductible under that section, it shall not be allowed as a deduction under section 214.

(3) The provisions of this paragraph may be illustrated by the following examples:

(i) W, a single woman, pays $720 during the taxable year for the care of her child who suffers from infantile paralysis. It is assumed that the expenses are of a nature which qualify as medical expenses under section 213. It is also assumed that these expenses are for the purpose of permitting W to be gainfully employed. W's adjusted gross income for the taxable year is $5,000. She is allowed a deduction of $600 for child care expenses under section 214. The balance of the expenses, or $120, she treats as medical expenses. However, this amount does not exceed 3 percent of her adjusted gross income and is thus not allowable as a deduction under section 213.

(ii) It would not be proper in the case presented in (i) for W first to determine under section 213 her deductible medical expenses (which would be $570 ($720 less 3% x $5,000)), and then claim as a deduction under section 214 the $150 which is not deductible under section 213. The $150 would be disallowed under section 214 for the reason that it was treated as a medical expense in determining the amount deductible under section 213.

(iii) W, a single woman, is also the head of a household. She pays $12,000 during the taxable year for child care expenses which also qualify as medical expenses under section 213. W's adjusted gross income for the taxable year is $18,000. She is allowed a deduction of $600 for child care expenses under section 214. The balance, or $11,400, is treated as medical expenses. The allowable deduction under section 213 for such expenses is the excess of 3% of W's adjusted gross income, or $10,860, but is limited to a maximum of $10,000.

Agricultural Marketing Service

[ 7 CFR Part 961 ]

[Docket No. AO-160-A17]

HANDLING OF MILK IN PHILADELPHIA, PA., MARKETING AREA

NOTICE OF RECOMMENDED DECISION AND OPPORTUNITY TO FILE WRITTEN EXCEPTIONS THERETO WITH RESPECT TO PROPOSED MARKETING AGREEMENT AND PROPOSED AMENDMENTS TO ORDER, AS AMENDED

Pursuant to the provisions of the Agricultural Marketing Agreement Act of 1937, as amended (7 U. S. C. 601 et seq.), and the applicable rules of practice and procedure, as amended, governing proceedings to formulate marketing agreements and orders (7 CFR Part 900), notice is hereby given of the filing with the Hearing Clerk of this recommended decision of the Deputy Administrator, Agricultural Marketing Service, United States Department of Agriculture, with respect to a proposed marketing agreement and proposed amendments to the order, as amended, regulating the handling of milk in the Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, marketing area.

Interested parties may file written exceptions to the recommended decision with the Hearing Clerk, Room 112, Administration Building, United States Department of Agriculture, Washington 25, D. C., not later than the 7th day after the publication of this recommended decision in the FEDERAL REGISTER. Exceptions should be filed in quadruplicate.

Preliminary statement. A public hearing, on the record of which the proposed marketing agreement and the proposed amending order were formulated, was called by the Agricultural Marketing Service, United States Department of Agriculture, following receipt of a petition filed on behalf of the Milk Distributors Association of the Philadelphia Area, Inc. Other proposals were filed on behalf of Inter-State Milk Producers' Cooperative, Inc., representing a substantial portion of the producers producing milk for the Philadelphia fluid market. The public hearing was held in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, on February 1 to 7, 1956, pursuant to a notice thereof duly published in the FEDERAL REGISTER (21 F. R. 429 and 21 F. R. 647).

The material issues considered at the hearing were:

1. A lower pricing for milk disposed of in specified Class II uses during the months of February through July, 1956.
2. A revision of the producer milk plant definition.
3. Revision of the supply-demand adjustment provision in the Class I pricing formula.
4. The establishment of standards for determining, in the case of a handler operating under more than one Federal order, the order under which his milk shall be classified and priced.
5. Reconsideration of the pricing applicable to milk sold for Class I uses outside the marketing area.
6. Revision of the classification and allocation provisions.
7. Other administrative changes.

During the course of the hearing both the Milk Distributors Association and Inter-State Milk Producers' Cooperative, Inc., requested that issues Nos. 1, 2, and 3 be handled on an emergency basis and that a recommended decision and opportunity to file written exceptions thereto with respect to these three issues be omitted. After a careful review of the record evidence, the Assistant Secretary concluded that the conditions which prompted the requested emergency handling were not such that due and timely execution of his functions imperatively and unavoidably required the omission of the recommended decision, and accordingly, on February 17, 1956, issued an interim decision (21 F. R. 1203; F. R. Doc. 56-1370) directing that a recommended decision be issued covering all issues considered at the hearing, to which interested parties might file written exceptions.

Findings and Conclusions. Upon the evidence adduced at the hearing and the record evidence thereof, it is hereby found and concluded that:

1. Sub-Class II pricing. No provision should be made for sub-Class II pricing under the Philadelphia order during the 1956 flush production season. Under the present terms of the order all milk other than that disposed of for Class I uses is priced at the same level, on the basis of Philadelphia cream or New York 92-score butter prices and roller nonfat dry milk solid prices as published in "Producer's Price Current." The Milk Distributors Association of the Philadelphia Area, Inc., proposed that a sub-Class II price be provided during the months of February through July for all milk, skim milk and butterfat dumped, disposed of for animal feed or manufactured into butter, cheese (except cream or cottage cheese), evaporated milk, milk chocolate, nonfat dry milk solids, soup, candy or bakery products. This proposal was also supported by Inter-State Milk Producers' Cooperative.

In support of the proposal, proponents stressed the fact that a sub-Class II price, of one kind or another, has been provided under the order during the flush production season for the past seven years. In this connection the fact that a sub-Class II price has been provided previously under the Philadelphia order during the flush months of production does not in itself justify continuation of such pricing. The regular Class II price under the Philadelphia order is directly related to cream, butter and nonfat dry milk values and is intended to reflect the use value of milk disposed of for manufacturing purposes. A considerable quantity of producer milk is disposed of as fluid cream in all months of the year and since, at the same time, substantial quantities of outside cream find a market locally throughout the year it is apparent that a ready market for cream from producer milk is available at all times.

As previously indicated, the Class II price and the Class II butterfat differential are directly related to the open market cream price in the Philadelphia area. This pricing has accommodated the disposal of producer butterfat in excess of Class I needs during all months except those in which a special sub-Class II price has been in effect. The record provides no basis for concluding that butterfat cannot be equally well disposed of during the 1956 flush production months since both the Class II price and the Class II butterfat differential will continue to reflect accurately current market values for butterfat during this period.

The bulk of the Class II disposition other than in fluid cream, soft cheeses, condensed milk and skim milk and ice cream, for which no special pricing has been provided or is requested, is in nonfat dry milk solids, soup, candy and bakery products. The regular New York Class III price, which during the flush months has been virtually identical to the Philadelphia Class II price, has regularly accommodated marketing of New York producer milk in these products. A substantial portion of Order 61 producer milk in excess of Class I needs is regularly disposed of in the manufacture of nonfat dry milk solids throughout the year and except during those months when a sub-Class II price has been effective this milk has been handled at the regular Class II price. In both 1954 and 1955 roughly 75 percent of all milk subject to the special subclass price was disposed of in nonfat dry milk solids. There is no apparent reason why such milk should not return to producers a price which reflects the adjacent New York open market nonfat solids price. The remainder of the excess producer milk previously subject to the sub-Class II price has been disposed of in various outlets, primarily evaporated milk, soup, candy and bakery products. The midwestern condensery pay price and the regular Philadelphia Class II price were virtually the same when compared on an annual basis for the years 1954 and 1955 at a 3.5 percent butterfat test. While there were substantial variations by individual months it is significant that prices during the flush months of April, May and June were within a few cents of being identical. Consequently, the regular Class II price should accommodate the disposition of producer milk in evaporated milk. The utilization of producer milk in nonfat dry milk solids, cream, ice cream, evaporated and condensed milk, for which the regular Class II price is reasonable, should afford ample outlets for all excess producer milk. If there is a market for producer milk in candy, soup or bakery products the price for milk in these products should not be lower than its value when used in competing products.

Proponents suggest that a special pricing in the form of a butter-cheese adjustment is contained in both the Boston and New York Federal orders and this provides a precedent for a sub-Class II price under the Philadelphia order. In this connection it should be pointed out that these prices under the Boston and New York orders are provided in recognition of the fact that butter and cheese represent less attractive manufacturing outlets for milk and that available facilities for manufacturing butter and cheese are needed in these markets for full disposition of producer milk in excess of fluid needs. The record indicates that very little producer milk in the Philadelphia market is disposed of in butter and cheese and no need is revealed for the disposal of milk in these products.

Milk produced for the Philadelphia fluid market, but which is in excess of fluid needs, must of course, be disposed of in available manufacturing outlets. While proponents grant the alignment of the Class II price with the New York Class III price and the Pennsylvania Milk Control Commission Class II price they point out that under the Pennsylvania Milk Control Commission milk also moves under so-called "B–I" pricing and that the volumes of such milk are greatest during the flush season. The record, however, does not indicate that the volume of milk moving at this price is sufficient to disrupt seriously orderly marketing at Order 61 prices.

Milk production under normal conditions varies from season to season with the greatest production occurring in the spring months as cows are turned onto lush spring pastures. In developing his procurement policy, a handler must make a decision as to whether to operate with a full year-round supply of producer milk or whether it is to his advantage to look to outside sources for supplemental supplies during the short season in order to minimize his surplus problems during the flush. A handler who uses nonproducer milk to supplement his producer supplies may find that, when handling and transportation costs are added to procurement cost, the overall cost for such supplemental supplies exceeds the cost of local producer milk. The order grants no compensation to such handlers for his additional procurement costs in such instances. The handler who operates with a full year-round supply should likewise expect to assume some direct responsibility and risk in the disposition of his seasonal surplus. As to which way he wishes to operate his plant is clearly the choice of the handler.

While production estimates were offered to show that producer receipts under the Boston and New York orders are expected to run substantially in excess of comparable receipts last year, at least during the flush production months, it is not clear what application these figures have to the Philadelphia market. While there has been an increase in producer receipts under the Philadelphia order during the past year, the record indicates that the rate of such increase over the same month of the previous year was substantially reduced during the late months of 1955. Total producer receipts for the three months of October, November, and December were one and three-fourths million pounds greater than receipts during a similar period in 1954. At the same time Class I sales for these months of 1955 were more than eleven million pounds in excess of those for the corresponding months of 1954. Conversely, the volume of producer milk disposed of during these same months of 1955 in Class II was almost eight million pounds less than for the similar period in 1954. The record fails to show any change in this trend for the month of January 1956. Under the circumstances, unless there is a substantial change from normal in the seasonality of production the surplus disposal problem during the forthcoming flush cannot be of the same magnitude as in 1954 and 1955.

It is extremely unlikely that the volume of producer milk in excess of Class I needs of the market could reach a critical point in any of the following flush months of 1956 with the possible exception of May. While there is little question but that the volume of Class II milk in the month of May will be somewhat in excess of the maximum volume of Class II milk which the market has handled in prior months without a sub-Class II price of one kind or another it does not follow that the market cannot handle such excess. The record fails to substantiate that the market lacks access to manufacturing facilities which would permit the orderly disposition of surpluses at prices which reflect current market values of cream, butter, and nonfat dry milk solids.

The request for a sub-Class II price below the actual use value of milk for manufacturing purposes seems to be primarily a matter of agreement between producers and handlers. While proponents contended that such a pricing method is necessary for competitive reasons it is admitted that there is extremely close alignment of regular surplus prices among New York, Philadelphia and Pennsylvania State Milk Control Commission regulatory programs. Handlers and producers stated that a sub-Class II pricing provision is an inexpensive safety valve for producers. However, the establishment of a sub-Class II price for Philadelphia has far reaching effect on prices paid generally for milk throughout the region. New York order pool plants are immediately placed at a pricing disadvantage in relation to Philadelphia producer milk plants. Lower manufacturing milk values at Philadelphia plants forces more general use of the so-called Pennsylvania Milk Control Commission "B–I" pricing, thus depressing returns to producers at State regulated plants and, through the same process, to producers at unregulated plants. This type of pricing, while perhaps a matter of immediate convenience to both handlers and producer proponents, is not in the general public interest.

2. Revision of producer milk plant definition. The producer milk plant definition should be amended to include any supply plant from which milk shipped, during any of the months of February through September, to a pasteurizing or bottling plant is allocated to Class I during such month(s).

Under the present order provisions a supply plant does not qualify as a producer milk plant in any month of the February through September period in which no more than 25,000 pounds of its milk shipments to a producer milk plant are allocated to Class I.

The proposal in the notice of hearing would delete the 25,000 pound allocation allowance in the months of February through June only. When effort was made to examine the appropriateness of this allowance with respect to the months of July through September the hearing officer ruled that the notice did not permit such examination. He stated that the notice was directed to a consideration of time and not plants and any examination directed to months other than February to June was beyond the scope of the hearing. It is concluded that the hearing officer erred in his ruling in this matter, and further, that the evidence in the record is conclusive with respect to the need for including the entire February–September period.

Through the application of the 25,000 pound allocation allowance to a number of supply plants, a handler may secure his entire supply of milk for Class I use from unregulated sources. Certain handlers with insufficient producer milk to fill their Class I needs have been able to use very substantial quantities of unregulated and unpriced milk for Class I purposes. During the months from February through September 1955 as many as seven handlers and in no case less than three handlers have utilized such milk in Class I. During three of these months the volume of nonproducer milk utilized by such handlers was 1,500,000 pounds or more and in no month was it less than 300,000 pounds.

Producer proponents favored the elimination of the 25,000 pound allocation allowance during the months of February through June. They pointed out that in earlier years the order allowed handlers rather general use of unregulated, unpriced milk throughout the year. As supplies of local producer milk became more adequate the provisions of the order were changed in an effort to restrain the entry onto the market of an unreasonable amount of unpriced milk. The present 25,000 pound Class I allocation allowance was written into the order effective January 1, 1954. In rendering his decision in this matter (18 F. R. 8176, F. R. Doc. 53–10374) the Acting Secretary stated that during the months of February through September it would appear possible for handlers to assure themselves without great difficulty of regular producer milk, either by direct receipt or by purchase from other handlers.

The Philadelphia market has a more than adequate supply of producer milk to meet total fluid needs during the February-September period. In 1954 no less than 22 percent of producer receipts were allocated to Class II during any of the months of February through September and in 1955 this minimum was 23 percent. Certainly the order need not accommodate the use of milk from non-producer sources for fluid purposes at the same time that price relief is being requested to facilitate the disposition of burdensome surpluses. In fact, unpriced milk allocated to Class I during any month in which ample producer milk is available displaces regular producer milk in Class I and forces it into Class II. Producers should have assurance that their milk will not be displaced by unpriced milk in Class I uses. Under the recommended revision in definition, handlers who are presently using nonproducer milk during the months of February through September will have opportunity to bring their present source of supply under regulation. On the other hand, they may prefer to take on their own producers or to secure their necessary supply from other regulated handlers. In any event the market will have assurance that during such months no handler is operating at a price advantage through his ability to use unregulated milk. To the extent that handlers now using unregulated milk turn to other regulated handlers for their milk supply the surplus problem of the market will be alleviated.

Certain handlers opposed the proposal to delete the 25,000 pound Class I allocation allowance claiming that it would jeopardize their ability to continue to get milk from their present suppliers. It is intended by the deletion of the 25,000 pound Class I allocation allowance to require that handlers bring under full regulation their regular sources of supply or change to presently regulated sources of supply. Unless this is done not only are regular producers deprived of their fluid market, but regulated handlers are also subjected to unfair competition in their regular business in the marketing area.

The deletion of the 25,000 pound Class I allocation allowance raises some question as to the appropriateness of continuing the present 10-day shipping allowance during the months of October through January. While there is somewhat less producer milk available during these months than in other months of the year the record indicates no month in the last two years in which less than 18 percent of producer receipts were classified as Class II milk and only in the months of October and November, 1955 did this percentage fall below 21 percent.

With supply plants fully regulated during the balance of the year there is little likelihood that a handler would give up his regular supply in order to gain a possible short term advantage by use of unpriced milk during the short season when milk is generally in demand and prices are highest. During the short production months a handler must have ready access to supplemental supplies if needed. Accordingly, it is desirable that shipping privileges during this period be left rather liberal. While there is serious question as to the reasonableness of the present allocation procedure which permits the assignment of nonproducer milk on a pro rata basis during the months of October through January, this matter was not a consideration at this hearing and no change in the procedure is being made on the basis of this record.

3. Revision of the supply-demand adjuster in the Class I pricing formula. No change should be made at this time in the supply-demand adjustment feature of the Class I pricing formula. Under the present order provision this adjuster moves the Class I price for a calendar quarter upward or downward, as the case may be, whenever supply during the 12-month period ending with the second preceding month is less than 115 percent or more than 137 percent of Class I sales, respectively. In the computation of these percentages receipts at plants which were not producer milk plants during three consecutive months are specifically excluded. Producers proposed that this exemption be extended to five consecutive months on the premise that the elimination of the 25,000 pound Class I allocation allowance in the producer milk plant definition might bring additional milk under regulation and thereby bring the supply-demand adjuster into operation. They contend that the fact that a supply plant comes under regulation is no basis for concluding that all of its receipts are needed in the market. In this connection price must be recognized as the primary factor in adjusting supply to meet the demand of the market. If new plants are added to the market they naturally bring additional volumes of milk and when the supply exceeds demand beyond the limits of the percentage presently set forth in the order it must be presumed that some price adjustment is appropriate. The fact that the supply-demand adjuster is computed for a twelve-month period beginning with the second preceding month, the fact that it can become operative only at the beginning of a calendar quarter, and the fact that plants which have not been producer milk plants for three consecutive months are excluded in the computation, provide ample forewarning to the market of prospective changing supply-demand relation. Further encumbrances would merely tend to impede the intended action of this adjuster as a balancing mechanism.

4. Regulation of a plant doing business under more than one Federal order. The present order provisions should be amended to establish a specific criterion for determining, in the case of a plant doing business under more than one order of the Secretary, the order under which such plant should be regulated. The order presently contains no standards in this regard but merely exempts those plants which are regulated under another order. In this connection it is concluded that handlers who are directly involved, and who would be regulated, should, by referring to the order provisions, be able to ascertain under which order they would be regulated. Unless the respective orders are clear in this regard a handler may unknowingly place necessary to subject a plant to duplicate himself in financial jeopardy. It is not regulation. Neither should it be left to the market administrator(s) to make an unguided decision as to who shall be regulated, nor is it expedient that the Secretary make a separate decision as each individual situation arises.

It is concluded that in the event a Wilmington order is issued, any plant doing a Class I business in both the Philadelphia and the Wilmington, Delaware marketing areas, in all cases should be regulated under the Philadelphia order. In all other situations, a plant which meets the qualifications for a producer milk plant under this order, but which does a greater volume of its Class I business, under another Federal order, or in the case of a supply plant, supplies a greater volume of milk to a distributing plant(s) regulated by another order, should be exempted from regulation under this order if by such exemption it becomes a fully regulated plant under such other order. However, in order that the market administrator may be fully appraised of the continuing status of such a plant, the operator thereof, should, with respect to the total receipts and utilization or disposition of milk, skim milk and butterfat at the plant, make reports to the market administrator at such time and in such manner as the market administrator may require and allow verification of such reports by the market administrator.

The Philadelphia-Wilmington relationship is somewhat unique and requires special consideration. In this connection official notice is taken of the recommended decision of the Deputy Administrator on a proposed marketing order for the Wilmington marketing area issued January 17, 1956 (21 F. R. 486; F. R. Doc. 56–514). While certain Philadelphia handlers distribute milk from their Philadelphia producer milk plants into the Wilmington marketing area, no Wilmington handlers have routes which extend into the Philadelphia marketing area. The proximity of the two markets, the pricing relationship that have existed, the manner in which Philadelphia handlers have extended their businesses, and the comparative sizes of the two markets, all point to Philadelphia as the primary market.

Philadelphia handlers have established their businesses in the Wilmington market under the existing Philadelphia prices and with an intermarket price relationship very similar to that which would prevail if the recommended Wilmington order were made effective. Notwithstanding the fact that general price alignment would prevail, the interrelationship of the geographic boundaries of the two milksheds suggests the possibility that if proportionate volumes of business were used as a standard, a Philadelphia handler might arrange his business so as to qualify his plant(s) for regulation under the Wilmington order and by so doing enjoy a substantial advantage in the Philadelphia market on the volume of his business done there. Such a situation would not be in the interest of orderly marketing and should not be permitted to develop.

5. Reconsideration of the pricing applicable to Class I milk sold outside the marketing area. The pricing provisions of the order should be revised to delete, except in the case of Class I milk disposed of in the New York marketing area, any special pricing on milk disposed of outside the Philadelphia marketing area. No change should be made in the basis of pricing presently provided for milk disposed of in the New York marketing area.

The order presently provides that for Class I milk disposed of outside the marketing area on wholesale or retail routes from which no milk is disposed of inside the marketing area, the applicable price payable to producers shall be, as ascertained by the market administrator, such price as is being paid to farmers for milk of equivalent use in such other markets where the milk is disposed of less the applicable transportation allowances in such outside market, but in no case more than 64 cents. If the market administrator is unable to ascertain such price the Class I price specified under the Philadelphia order applies. In the case of milk disposed of in another Federal milk marketing area, except New York, it is provided that the applicable price shall be the price established under such other order. For milk disposed of in the New York marketing area the price under the Philadelphia order is the New York Class IA price less any payment required to be made to the New York pool.

The market administrator testified that he is experiencing very substantial administrative difficulties in attempting to ascertain prices which farmers in other markets actually receive for milk of equivalent use. While an out-of-area price has been ascertained quite regularly for Pennsylvania Milk Control Commission's area IA and intermittently for New Jersey, the record indicates that such prices have been ascertained only on request, and only when the prices in such other areas were lower than the Philadelphia order price. The market administrator indicated that he has considerable reservation as to the accuracy of his past ascertainments, which in all cases have merely been the announced prices of the Pennsylvania Milk Control Commission or the New Jersey Office of Milk Industry, and he feels that any future ascertainments can only be made subsequent to the time that dairy farmers in the outside markets have actually been paid.

It is not clear why a price ascertainment has been made only during the period when outside prices have been lower than order prices. The order language makes no distinction here, nor does it suggest that ascertainment shall be only on request. Certainly any rationalization which required the ascertainment of prices in months when outside prices are lower than order prices would be equally applicable in establishing the need for such determination when outside prices were higher.

It is obvious that the order in its present form does not require, except in the case of milk disposed of in another Federal order market, that an ascertainment of price be made if the market administrator cannot satisfy himself of his ability to make such ascertainment. In this connection the market administrator has consistently refused to attempt price ascertainment in any totally unregulated area. Handlers in unregulated markets are not required to make any accounting of the disposition of their milk, and they purchase milk under varying types of buying plans and at variable prices. Hence, it would be virtually an impossible task to determine a price which the dairy farmers delivering to such handlers were paid for milk of equivalent use.

It is evident from the record that similar problems exist with reference to prices paid in State regulated areas. The State prices, as announced are for specified local areas and apply only to milk sold within such areas, whereas milk distributors operate across area boundaries and also in unregulated areas and accordingly are subject to, and pay, variable prices. The accounting and classification procedures employed by the States may, and do, differ from those under the Philadelphia order. All of these factors directly affect the ability of the market administrator to ascertain prices actually paid for milk of equivalent use, and certainly preclude such ascertainment until after dairy farmers have actually been paid.

While it may under certain conditions be possible to ascertain an average price subsequent to the time dairy farmers actually received payment, such ascertainment could only be made through a comprehensive analysis and audit of the records of a very substantial number of local individual handlers who are under no obligation to permit such review and audit or to supply accurate records of their business. Such analysis and audit, if permitted, could not be accomplished in sufficient time to provide a basis for fixing prices under the Philadelphia order for the current delivery period.

Under the circumstances it is impractical to attempt continuing application of the present outside area pricing provision as it applies to unregulated and State regulated markets.

The imminence of a Federal marketing order in the Wilmington, Delaware, marketing area requires review of the out-of-area pricing provision as it applies to milk disposed of in another Federal marketing area. If the recommended Wilmington order is made effective without a change in the out-of-area pricing provision of the Philadelphia order, the price applicable to Philadelphia Class I milk sold into the Wilmington market immediately would be reduced by approximately 15 cents plus any location adjustment applicable under the terms of the Wilmington order.

The essentials of the classified pricing plan in effect in the Philadelphia order, and generally applicable to all orders issued by the Secretary, are to establish one level of price for milk which is sold as fluid milk or fluid milk products for fluid consumption and another lower price or prices for the necessary surplus of the market which is disposed of in lower valued manufactured products. It is intended that the price level effective under the Philadelphia order shall bring forth a supply adequate to meet the demands of the marketing area but not necessarily to fulfill the requirements of outside markets at prices different from the price established for milk sold in the marketing area. Producer milk sold for fluid uses outside the Philadelphia marketing area has the same characteristics of bulk and perishability, is produced under identical conditions and cost, and is subject to the same transportation cost of moving from the farm to the handlers' producer milk plant, as is milk disposed of inside the marketing area. Different health and sanitation requirements in markets outside the marketing area might result in different costs of producing milk for those markets only, but would have no effect on the production cost of producer milk sold to Philadelphia handlers.

Reference was made on the record of the hearing to the I–C pricing provision of the New York order which provides a lower level of price for Class I milk sold in certain outside areas than the price for Class I milk disposed of in the marketing area. The pricing provisions of the New York order, of course, were not an issue at this hearing. While the I–C pricing provision under the New York order has long been a matter of controversy it must be recognized that the relationship existing between the New York market and surrounding local markets is unique and for this reason has required singular treatment. In recent years the scope of the application of the I–C pricing provision has been considerably restricted and it now applies only in Northern New Jersey and New York State. If recent proposals which have been made to the Secretary relative to the New York and New Jersey situation should be consummated there might be no further need for the I–C pricing provision under the New York order.

Producer prices in other federally regulated markets in which Philadelphia handlers may wish to sell may be either higher or lower than such prices in the Philadelphia market. In establishing the level of price in a Federal order market consideration is given to prices being paid for milk in competing adjacent markets. Under usual circumstances the variation in basic prices for milk of similar quality and use in various Federal markets reflect differences in transportation costs. These basic prices may be adjusted to reflect differences in seasonality of production and the local supply-demand situation. This general alignment of prices as between orders will tend to maintain equity and no further provision is necessary. In this connection the New York-Philadelphia situation must be handled as a specific exception.

Official notice is hereby taken of those parts of the final decision of the Secretary on proposed amendments to the Philadelphia order issued on April 10, 1952, (17 F. R. 3355, F. R. Doc. 52–4252) the notice of reopening of hearing and tentative findings and conclusions on proposed amendments to the Philadelphia order issued by the Assistant Administrator on December 18, 1952 (17 F. R. 11723, F. R. Doc. 52–13518) and the final decision of the Assistant Secretary issued on December 8, 1953 (18 F. R. 8176, F. R. Doc. 53–10374), dealing with the pricing of milk sold by Philadelphia handlers in the New York marketing area.

The present pricing scheme for milk sold into the New York marketing area was devised to prevent handlers, who might do a substantial business in the New York market and with only a casual association with the Philadelphia market, from using the Philadelphia order as a means of evading regulation and pooling under the New York order and thus depriving the New York pool and regular producers for that market of the value of the Class I sales made there. The reasoning which led to the adoption of the present procedure for pricing milk disposed of in the New York market is equally applicable at this time. The changes hereinbefore recommended in the producer milk plant definition may tend to increase the number of plants which do a fluid business in the two markets and hence, emphasizes the need for continuation of the present basis of pricing milk disposed of in the New York market.

The basic reasoning set forth in denying continuation of a different pricing for milk disposed of in another Federal marketing area is equally applicable in the case of sales into unregulated or State regulated areas. It is not intended that Federal regulation be susceptible of manipulation to permit the use of adjacent outside markets as a dumping ground for milk in excess of a market's needs. The fixing of a lower price for milk sold in other markets could have a depressing effect on the price paid farmers by competing unregulated distributors in such markets. Such action would tend to lower blended returns to producers in the Philadelphia market with the result that prices of milk sold within the regulated market might have to be raised to provide incentive for the production of a sufficient supply to fulfill the market needs. In this connection, the local consumers should not be called upon to subsidize consumers in out-of-area markets.

For these reasons it is concluded that any special out-of-area pricing except that applying to sales into the New York market shall be discontinued.

Because of the impact which the present out-of-area pricing provision would have on the price of milk sold by Philadelphia handlers into the Wilmington market if an order were made effective for Wilmington, it is necessary that this amendment be made effective prior to, or concurrently with, the effective date of the Wilmington order. Accordingly, no order can be issued for Wilmington until this condition has been met.

6. Revision of the classification and allocation provisions. The present classification provisions should be rewritten to specify more clearly the products which are included in the respective classes of utilization and to provide that "ice milk mixes" shall be classified as a Class II product.

Under the present wording of the order it is not always possible to determine clearly the intended classification of specific products. It has been necessary, from time to time, for the market administrator to issue interpretive memoranda advising the industry of the manner in which various products are to be classified. The language of the classification provisions should be sufficiently clear that the continuing issuance of such interpretive memoranda is unnecessary. Except in the case of "ice milk mixes" it is not intended in revising the language that the classification of any product should be changed. While the present wording of the provision would leave some doubt as to whether eggnog, for example, could be classified as other than Class I, interpretive memoranda have placed it in Class II and the order has been so administered over a considerable period of time. The industry has raised no question of the propriety of such a classification. This product is made and sold by manufacturers doing no fluid milk business in the area. Its classification as Class I would certainly present substantial administrative problems by bringing under regulation a large number of additional handlers who are not fluid milk distributors and whose business in the area would be of insufficient consequence to represent a significant competitive factor.

Frozen mixes known locally as "ice milk mixes" which under the present classification provisions are included as a Class I product, should be made a Class II product. These "ice milk mixes," which have a relatively low fat, high solids content, have physical characteristics most similar to ice cream and sherbet which under the classification scheme are Class II products. They are manufactured much in the same manner as ice cream and are dispensed over the counter through stores and soda fountains much in the manner as, and in competition with ice cream. As initially manufactured, these products have none of the aspects of fluid products and the fact that they ultimately may be changed, (either with the addition of other ingredients or otherwise, by melting or beating) to a semi-solid state and consumed much as a thick milkshake should not affect their original classification as Class II.

The present order provisions are silent as to the treatment of receipts of condensed skim milk or nonfat dry milk solids which are disposed of in Class I products, either by reconstitution or for fortification. Through an interpretive memorandum issued on March 25, 1955 by the market administrator, accounting for such disposition has been on the basis of the skim milk equivalent of such condensed skim milk or powder. This is the basis of accounting which has been used since December 1, 1948 in the case of producer milk which is disposed of in such products which are in turn reused, either by reconstitution or for fortification, in Class I products. No change is proposed in this accounting; however, the order should set forth clearly the procedure which is actually followed.

The allocation provisions of the order should also be rewritten to provide more specific direction to the market administrator. Here, as in the case of classification, it has been necessary that the market administrator interpret the intent of the provision. The order presently sets forth no definite sequence of allocation. In this connection the sequence and manner in which milk is allocated is important to handlers since it may directly affect the handler's cost for producer milk. In like manner it is equally important to producers since producer returns are dependent on the classification resulting from allocation. Both handlers and producers, merely by review of the order language, should be able to ascertain the manner in which the allocation of milk to classes is made. Except in unusual circumstances it should not be necessary to rely on administrative interpretation. It is not intended in spelling out the allocation sequence, that any changes shall be made in the allocation as presently applied. The sequence of allocation as presently applied by the market administrator, was placed in the record. The sequence set forth in the proposed order language reflects this procedure.

7. Other administrative changes. The several order provisions should be made compatible with reference to the treatment to be accorded an individual who operates both a dairy farm and a fluid milk plant from which Class I milk is disposed of in the marketing area but who receives no milk from other dairy farmers. Under the present language of the order such an individual is included in both the producer and the handler definitions. Notwithstanding, under the application of provisions section, a producer-handler is specifically excepted from all terms of the order except for reporting and administrative assessment. In addition, the allocation provisions very specifically provide a different treatment for receipts of milk from a producer-handler than that given regular producer milk. While the order prescribes specific treatment for a producer-handler, there is no definition of such an individual. It is left to the market administrator to interpret the intended meaning.

Under these circumstances, the order as it has been administered, does not treat a producer-handler in the same manner as other producers. It is apparent that the market administrator has no responsibility under the order to enforce payment of minimum prices to a producer-handler. The application of the allocation procedure provided in the order results in the exemption from the pricing provisions of receipts from a producer-handler. While receipts of bulk milk and skim milk from a producer-handler may be allocated to classes in the same proportionate amounts as receipts from producers, the handler may elect to assign a greater proportion or all of such receipts to Class II. When such receipts are all assigned to Class II the handler would presumably return to the producer-handler not more than the Class II price.

While both handlers and producers raised numerous questions with reference to the operations of a producer-handler and the manner in which such an individual might be treated under a regulatory program, there was no supporting testimony for a treatment other than that which has prevailed under the administration of the order. Notwithstanding, the confusion which might exist because of conflicting order language, the treatment prescribed under the allocation provisions is controlling. Obviously, it was not intended that the producer-handler should enjoy the status of a regular producer. Otherwise there would have been no reason to prescribe a specific, and different treatment for such an individual under the allocation provisions.

The order should be amended to define specifically the type of operation to which the term "producer-handler" is intended to apply and the producer definition should be amended to exclude such an individual. While these changes will afford no different treatment of a producer-handler than that presently provided, they will provide greater specificity and compatibility in order language and thus facilitate order administration.

While there appear to be a number of additional changes which should be made in the language of the administrative provisions of the order to provide greater specificity and more categorical direction to the market administrator, these matters were not explored at this hearing and accordingly cannot be considered on the basis of the record.

General findings. (a) The proposed marketing agreement and the order as amended, and as hereby proposed to be further amended, and all of the terms and conditions thereof will tend to effectuate the declared policy of the act;

(b) The proposed marketing agreement and the order as amended, and as hereby proposed to be further amended, regulates the handling of milk in the same manner as, and are applicable only to persons in the respective classes of industrial and commercial activity specified in a proposed marketing agreement and order upon which a hearing has been held; and

(c) The parity prices of milk as determined pursuant to section 2 of the act are not reasonable in view of the price of feeds, available supplies of feeds, and other economic conditions which affect market supply of and demand for milk in the marketing area, and the minimum price specified in the proposed marketing agreement and the order as amended, and as hereby proposed to be further amended, are such prices as will reflect the aforesaid factors, insure a sufficient quantity of pure and wholesome milk in the marketing area and be in the public interest.

Rulings on proposed findings and conclusions. Briefs were filed on behalf of interested parties. The briefs contained suggested findings of fact, conclusions, and arguments with respect to the proposals considered at the hearing. Every point covered in the briefs was carefully examined along with the evidence in the record in making the findings and reaching the conclusions hereinbefore set forth. To the extent that the suggested findings and conclusions are inconsistent with the findings and conclusions contained herein the request to make such findings or to reach such conclusions is denied.

(2) Subtract from the product pounds in Class II milk the product pounds in receipts from nonproducer milk plant(s) in the form of cream containing 18 percent or more butterfat and the milk or skim milk equivalent of such receipts of concentrated and dried milk or skim milk utilized in a reconstituted or fortified product: Provided, That if the product pounds of such receipts to be subtracted are greater than the product pounds in Class II milk, the balance shall be subtracted pro rata from the product pounds in the several price subdivisions of Class I milk;

(3) During the months of February through September, subtract from the remaining product pounds in Class II milk, the product pounds of milk and skim milk received from nonproducers milk plants: Provided, That if the product pounds of such receipts to be subtracted are greater than the remaining product pounds in Class II milk, the balance shall be subtracted pro rata from the product pounds in the several price subdivisions of Class I milk;

(4) Subtract from the product pounds remaining in each class, the product pounds of milk, skim milk and cream in receipts from producer milk plants of other handlers and assigned to such class pursuant to § 961.32: Provided, That if the product pounds of such receipts to be subtracted from Class II milk are greater than the remaining product pounds in such class, the balance shall be subtracted pro rata from the remaining product pounds in the several price subdivisions of Class I milk;

(5) During the months of October through January, subtract from the product pounds remaining in Class II milk the product pounds of milk and skim milk in receipts from nonproducer milk plants: Provided, That if the product pounds of such receipts to be subtracted are greater than the remaining product pounds in Class II milk, the balance shall be subtracted pro rata from the remaining product pounds in the several price subdivisions of Class I milk: And provided further, That a different allocation shall be made at the written request of the receiving handler if it does not result in a greater than pro rata allocation to Class I milk;

(6) Subtract from the product pounds remaining in Class II milk the product pounds of milk and skim milk received in bulk from producer-handlers: Provided, That if the product pounds of such receipts to be subtracted are greater than the remaining product pounds in Class II milk the balance shall be subtracted pro rata from the remaining product pounds in the several price subdivisions of Class I milk: And provided further, That a different allocation shall be made at the written request of the receiving handler if it does not result in a greater than pro rata allocation to Class I milk;

(7) If the remaining product pounds in Class I and Class II milk exceed the product pounds of milk, skim milk and cream in receipts from producers, subtract such excess pro rata from the remaining product pounds in each class. Any amount of excess so subtracted shall be called overage;

(b) Butterfat shall be allocated under the same procedure outlined for gross product pounds in paragraph (a) of this section.

(c) Divide the pounds of butterfat in each class or price subdivision by the hundredweight of product pounds in such class or price subdivision to determine the weighted average butterfat content of each class or price subdivision.

8. Delete the language of § 961.43 and substitute the following:

§ 961.43 Class I milk disposed of in the New York marketing area. The price to be paid by handlers for Class I milk disposed of in the New York metropolitan milk marketing area shall be the Class I–A price computed pursuant to the New York order less such payment as is required on such milk pursuant to the New York order.

§ 961.61 Plants subject to other Federal orders. A plant specified in paragraph (a) or (b) of this section shall be considered as a nonproducer milk plant under this order except that the operator of such plant shall, with respect to total receipts and utilization at such plant, make reports to the market administrator at such time and in such manner as the market administrator may require (in lieu of the reports required pursuant to §§ 961.50 through 961.54) and allow verification of such reports by the market administrator.

(a) Any distributing plant which would be subject to the classification and pricing provisions of another order issued pursuant to the act (except the Wilmington, Delaware, marketing order), unless a greater volume of Class I milk is disposed of from such plant to retail or wholesale outlets (except producer milk plants) in the Philadelphia marketing area than in the marketing area regulated pursuant to such other order.

(b) Any supply plant which would be subject to the classification and pricing provisions of another order issued pursuant to the act (except the Wilmington, Delaware, marketing order) unless such plant disposes of a greater volume of milk to producer milk plants under the Philadelphia order than to plants distributing in marketing area regulated pursuant to such other order.

10. In § 961.70 (a) change the reference "§ 961.35" to read § 961.34".

EXPENSES AND ASSESSMENTS

§ 1014.40 Expenses. The committee is authorized to incur such expenses as the Secretary may find are reasonable and likely to be incurred by it during each fiscal period for the maintenance and functioning of such committee and for such purposes as the Secretary, pursuant to this subpart, determines to be appropriate. Handlers shall share expenses on the basis of each fiscal period. Each handler's share of such expense shall be proportionate to the ratio between the total quantity of potatoes handled during a fiscal period by him as the first handler thereof and the total quantity of potatoes handled during such fiscal period by all handlers as first handlers thereof.

§ 1014.41 Budget. At the beginning of each fiscal period and as may be necessary thereafter, the committee shall prepare an estimated budget of income and expenditures necessary for the administration of this part. The committee may recommend to the Secretary a rate or rates of assessment calculated to provide adequate funds to defray its proposed expenditures. The committee shall present such budget to the Secretary with an accompanying report showing the basis for its calculations.

§ 1014.42 Assessments. (a) The funds to cover such expenses shall be acquired by the levying of assessments upon handlers as provided in this subpart. Each handler who first handles potatoes shall pay assessments to the committee upon demand, which assessments shall be in payment of such handlers' pro rata share of the committee's expenses.

(b) Assessments shall be levied upon handlers at rates established by the Secretary. Such rates may be established upon the basis of the committee's recommendations or other available information. Such rates may be applied equitably to each pack or unit. Such rates shall not exceed one cent per hundredweight.

(c) At any time during or subsequent to a given fiscal period the committee may recommend the approval of an amended budget and an increase in the rate of assessment. Upon the basis of such recommendations, or other available information, the Secretary may approve an amended budget and increase the rate of assessment. Such increase shall be applicable to all potatoes which were regulated under this part and which were handled by the first handler thereof during such fiscal period.

§ 1014.43 Accounting. (a) All funds received by the committee pursuant to the provisions of this subpart shall be used solely for the purposes specified in this part.

(b) The Secretary may at any time require the committee, its members and alternates, employees, agents, and all other persons to account for all receipts and disbursements, funds, property, or records for which they are responsible. Whenever any person ceases to be a member or alternate of the committee he shall account for all receipts, disbursements, funds, and property (including but not being limited to books and other records) pertaining to such committee's activities for which he is responsible and deliver all such property and funds in his hands to such successor, agency, or person as may be designated by the Secretary, and shall execute such assignments and other instruments as may be necessary or appropriate to vest in the designated successor, agency, or person the right to all such property and funds and all claims vested in such member or alternate.

(c) The committee may make recommendations to the Secretary for one or more of the members thereof, or any other person, to act as a trustee for holding records, funds, or any other committee property during periods when regulations are not in effect and, if the Secretary determines such action appropriate, he may direct that such person or persons shall act as trustee or trustees for the committee.

§ 1014.44 Refunds. At the end of each fiscal period monies arising from the excess of assessments over expenses shall be accounted for as follows:

(a) Each handler entitled to a proportionate refund of the excess assessments at the end of a fiscal period shall be credited with such refund against the operation of the following fiscal period unless he demands payment thereof, in which event such proportionate refund shall be paid to him; or

(b) The Secretary, upon recommendation of the committee, may determine that it is appropriate for the maintenance and functioning of such committee that some of the funds remaining at the end of a fiscal period which are in excess of the expenses necessary for operation during such period may be carried over into following periods as a reserve for possible liquidation. Upon approval by the Secretary, such reserve may be used upon termination of this part to liquidate the affairs of the committee: Provided, That upon termination of this part any monies in the reserve for liquidation which are not required to defray the necessary expenses of liquidation shall to the extent practical be returned upon a prorata basis to all persons from whom such funds were collected.

RESEARCH AND DEVELOPMENT

§ 1014.47 Research and development. The committee, with the approval of the Secretary, may provide for the establishment of marketing research and development projects designed to assist, improve, or promote the marketing, distribution, and consumption of potatoes.

REGULATION

§ 1014.50 Marketing policy—(a) Preparation. Prior to each marketing season the committee shall consider and prepare a proposed policy for the marketing of potatoes. In developing its marketing policy the committee shall investigate relevant supply and demand conditions for potatoes. In such investigations the committee shall give appropriate consideration to the following:

(2) Supply of potatoes by grade, size, and quality in the production area and in other production areas;

(3) The trend and level of consumer income;

(4) Establishing and maintaining orderly marketing conditions for potatoes;

(5) Orderly marketing of potatoes as will be in the public interest; and

(6) Other relevant factors.

(2) In the event it becomes advisable to shift from such marketing policy because of changed supply and demand conditions, the committee shall prepare a new marketing policy in accordance with the manner previously outlined. The committee shall submit a report thereon to the Secretary and notify producers and handlers of the contents of such report on the revised or amended marketing policy.

§ 1014.51 Recommendations for regulations. The committee shall recommend to the Secretary, grade, size, quality, and maturity regulations, or amendments thereto, or modifications thereof, whenever it finds that such regulations as provided in § 1014.52 will tend to effectuate the declared policy of the act. The committee also may recommend modifications, suspension, or termination of any regulation, or amendments thereto, in order to facilitate the handling of potatoes for the purposes authorized in § 1014.54. The committee may also recommend amendment, termination, or suspension of any regulation issued under this part.

§ 1014.52 Issuance of grade, size, quality, and maturity regulations. (a) The Secretary shall limit the shipment of potatoes whenever he finds from the recommendations and information submitted by the committee, or from other available information, that such regulation would tend to effectuate the declared policy of the act. Such limitation may:

(1) Regulate in any or all portions of the production area, the handling of particular grades, sizes, and qualities, of any or all varieties of table stock or of seed potatoes, or both, during any period; or

(2) Regulate the handling of particular grades, sizes, or qualities of potatoes differently, for different varieties, for table stock, for seed, for different markets, for different portions of the production area, for different packs, for different sizes and types of containers, or for any combination of the foregoing, during any period;

(3) Provide a method through rules and regulations issued pursuant to this part for fixing the size, capacity, weight, dimensions, or pack of the container, or containers, which may be used in the packaging or handling of potatoes, or both; or

(4) Regulate the handling of potatoes by establishing, in terms of grades, sizes, or both, minimum standards of quality or maturity.

(b) The Secretary may amend any regulation issued under this subpart whenever he finds that such regulations would tend to effectuate the declared policy of the act. The Secretary may also terminate or suspend any regulation whenever he finds that such regulation obstructs or no longer tends to effectuate the declared policy of the act.

(c) The Secretary shall notify the committee of any such regulation issued pursuant to this section and the committee shall give reasonable notice thereof to handlers.

§ 1014.53 Minimum quantities. The committee, with the approval of the Secretary, may establish, for any or all portions of the production area, minimum quantities below which shipments will be free from regulations issued pursuant to §§ 1014.40 to 1014.60 inclusive.

§ 1014.54 Handling for specified purposes. (a) The Secretary upon the basis of recommendations of the committee, or upon the basis of other available information, may modify, suspend, or terminate regulations issued pursuant to §§ 1014.40 to 1014.60, inclusive, in order to facilitate the handling of potatoes for the purposes specified below, whenever he finds that such actions tend to effectuate the declared policy of the act. Adequate safeguards may be established pursuant to paragraph (c) of this section to prevent such shipments from entering channels of trade for other than the specified purposes:

(1) Shipments of potatoes for the purpose of having such potatoes graded or stored within the production area generally or within any specified portions thereof;

(2) Shipments of potatoes for export;

(3) Shipments of potatoes for distribution by relief agencies, or for consumption by charitable institutions;

(5) Shipments of potatoes for livestock feed within the production area generally or any specified portions thereof; and

(6) For other specified purposes.

(b) Whenever the handling of seed potatoes is not subject to the same regulations as is the handling of table stock potatoes, issued pursuant to §§ 1014.40 to 1014.60, inclusive, the committee, with the approval of the Secretary, may prescribe adequate safeguards, pursuant to paragraph (c) of this section, to prevent diversion of such shipments from seed potato channels.

(c) The committee, with the approval of the Secretary, may prescribe adequate safeguards, authorized by paragraphs (a) and (b) of this section, which safeguards may include requirements that:

(1) Handlers shall file applications with the committee to handle potatoes pursuant to this section;

(2) Handlers shall obtain Federal-State inspection provided by § 1014.60 and pay the pro rata share of expenses provided by § 1014.42 in connection with potatoes handled under the provisions of this section: Provided, That such inspection and payment of expenses may be required at different times than otherwise specified by the aforesaid sections; and

(3) (i) Handlers shall obtain Certificates of Privilege from the committee for potatoes to be handled under the provisions of this section. The committee, with the approval of the Secretary, shall prescribe rules governing the issuance and the contents of such Certificates of Privilege.

(ii) The committee shall make monthly reports to the Secretary showing the number of applications for such certificates, the quantity of potatoes covered by such applications, the number of such applications denied and certificates granted, the quantity of potatoes handled under duly issued certificates, and such other information as may be requested by the Secretary. The committee may rescind or deny Certificates of Privilege to any handler if evidence is obtained that potatoes handled by him for the purposes stated in this section have been diverted from such purposes contrary to the provisions of this part.

(d) (1) The Secretary shall give prompt notice to the committee of any modification, suspension, or termination of regulations pursuant to this section, or of any approval issued by him under the provisions of this section.

(2) The Secretary shall have the right to modify, change, alter, or rescind any safeguards prescribed and any certificates issued by the Committee pursuant to the provisions of this section.

§ 1014.55 Price posting—(a) Recommendation. Whenever the committee finds that the declared policy of the act will tend to be effectuated by so doing, it may recommend that potatoes should be sold by handlers during specific periods only at prices filed by such handlers. Such recommendations shall include the time of commencement and termination of such price posting period and the manners in which such posted prices shall be filed.

(b) Establishment. The Secretary shall order that potatoes, or any grade, size, or quality thereof, shall be sold by handlers thereof only at prices filed by such handlers in the manner provided herein, whenever he finds from the recommendations and information submitted by the committee, or from other available information, that such regulation would tend to effectuate the declared policy of the act. Such order may require that a schedule of prices shall be filed with the committee by each handler of potatoes setting forth the prices by grades, sizes, and qualities thereof at which such handler shall sell potatoes during specified periods of time. Such order may also establish the time, and manner in which, such prices shall be filed, and provide the methods by which such prices may be changed by the handler who filed them. Whenever the Secretary issues such an order establishing a period or periods of regulation during which potatoes shall be sold by handlers only at posted prices, he shall notify the committee of the regulation and the committee shall give reasonable notice thereof to handlers.

(c) Price filing and posting. Whenever any such regulation becomes effective, each handler shall file with the committee a complete schedule of prices at which, during the specified regulation period, he shall sell potatoes, or any grade, size, and quality thereof, whichever is applicable in accordance with the regulation. All such schedules shall be posted in the office of the committee and at such other places as the committee may deem appropriate. Such schedules of prices shall become effective at such time as the committee, with the approval of the Secretary, may prescribe.

(d) Revision of filed price schedules. In the event any handler desires to sell the aforesaid potatoes at a price or prices different from those contained in his price schedule, such handler may file with the committee a revised schedule of his prices. The foregoing requirements of this section applicable to price schedules shall also apply to revised price schedules. Each such revised price schedule shall become effective at such time as the committee, with the approval of the Secretary, may prescribe.

(e) Manner of filing prices. The committee shall prescribe with the approval of the Secretary, a standard form or forms of price schedules, including revised price schedules, on which each handler shall state his prices, discounts, all other terms and conditions of sale, and such other information as may be deemed necessary by the committee, with respect to potatoes or each grade, size, and quality thereof, whichever is applicable pursuant to the aforesaid regulation. The committee shall cause the exact time and date that any price schedule or revision thereof is received by it to be written on the forms prescribed therefor.

INSPECTION AND CERTIFICATION

§ 1014.60 Inspection and certification. (a) During any period in which the handling of potatoes is regulated pursuant to § 1014.42, § 1014.52, or § 1014.54, or any combination thereof, no handler shall handle potatoes unless such potatoes are inspected by an authorized representative of the Federal-State Inspection Service, or such other inspection service as the Secretary shall designate, and are covered by a valid inspection certificate, except when relieved from such requirements by the Secretary pursuant to recommendations by the committee.

(b) Regrading, resorting, or repacking any lot of potatoes shall invalidate any prior inspection certificates insofar as the requirements of this section are concerned. No handler shall handle potatoes after they have been regraded, resorted, repacked, or in any way further prepared for market, unless such potatoes are inspected by an authorized representative of the Federal-State Inspection Service, or such other inspection service as the Secretary shall designate: Provided, That such inspection requirements on regraded, resorted, or repacked potatoes may be modified, suspended, or terminated under rules and regulations recommended by the committee, and approved by the Secretary.

(c) Insofar as the requirements of this section are concerned, the length of time for which an inspection certificate is valid may be established by the committee with the approval of the Secretary.

(d) When potatoes are inspected in accordance with the requirements of this section, a copy of each inspection certificate issued shall be made available to the committee by the inspection service.

EXEMPTIONS

§ 1014.65 Procedure. The committee may adopt, subject to approval of the Secretary, the procedures pursuant to which certificates of exemption will be issued to producers of handlers.

§ 1014.66 Granting exemptions. (a) The committee may issue certificates of exemption to any producer who applies for such exemption and furnishes adequate evidence to the committee: (1) That by reason of a regulation issued pursuant to § 1014.52 he will be prevented from handling as large a proportion of his production as the average proportion of production handled by all producers in said applicant's immediate production area; and (2) that the grade, size, or quality of the applicant's potatoes have been adversely affected by acts beyond the applicant's control and by acts beyond reasonable expectation. Each certificate shall permit the producer to handle the amount of potatoes specified thereon. Such certificates shall be transferred with such potatoes at time of shipment.

(b) The committee may issue certificates of exemption to any handler who applies for such exemption and furnishes adequate evidence to the committee: (1) That by reason of a regulation issued pursuant to § 1014.52 he will be prevented from handling as large a proportion of his storage holdings of ungraded potatoes, acquired during or immediately following the digging season, as the average proportion of ungraded storage holdings handled by all handlers in said applicant's immediate shipping area; and (2) that the grade, size, or quality of the applicant's potatoes have been adversely affected by acts beyond the applicant's control and by acts beyond reasonable expectation. Each certificate shall permit the handler to handle the amount of potatoes specified thereon. Such certificate shall be transferred with such potatoes at time of shipment.

(c) The committee shall be permitted at any time to make a thorough investigation of any producer's or handler's claim pertaining to exemptions.

§ 1014.67 Appeal. If any applicant for exemption certificates is dissatisfied with the determination by the committee with respect to this application, said applicant may file an appeal with the committee. Such an appeal must be taken promptly after the determination by the committee from which the appeal is taken. Any applicant filing an appeal shall furnish evidence satisfactory to the committee for a determination on the appeal. The committee shall thereupon reconsider the application, examine all available evidence, and make a final determination concerning the application. The committee shall notify the appellant of the final determination and shall furnish the Secretary with a copy of the appeal and a statement of considerations involved in making the final determination.

§ 1014.68 Review, records, and reports of exemptions. (a) The Secretary shall have the right to modify, change, alter, or rescind any procedure and any exemptions granted pursuant to § 1014.65, § 1014.66, § 1014.67, or any combination thereof.

(b) The committee shall maintain a record of all applications submitted for exemption certificates, a record of all exemption certificates issued and denied and the quantity of potatoes covered by such exemption certificates, a record of the amount of potatoes handled under exemption certificates, a record of appeals for reconsideration of applications, and such information as may be requested by the Secretary. Periodic reports on such records shall be compiled and issued by the committee upon request of the Secretary.

EFFECTIVE TIME AND TERMINATION

§ 1014.70 Effective time. The provisions of this subpart shall become effective at such time as the Secretary may declare above his signature attached to this subpart, and shall continue in force until terminated in one of the ways specified in this subpart.

§ 1014.71 Termination. (a) The Secretary may at any time terminate the provisions of this subpart by giving at least one day's notice by means of a press release or in any other manner which he may determine.

(b) The Secretary may terminate or suspend the operation of any or all of the provisions of this subpart whenever he finds that such provisions do not tend to effectuate the declared policy of the act.

(c) The Secretary shall terminate the provisions of this subpart at the end of any fiscal period whenever he finds that such termination is favored by a majority of producers who, during the preceding fiscal period, have been engaged in the production for market of potatoes: Provided, That such majority has, during such period, produced for market more than fifty percent of the volume of such potatoes produced for market; but such termination shall be effective only if announced on or before February 1 of the then current fiscal period.

(d) The provisions of this subpart shall in any event terminate whenever the provisions of the act authorizing them cease to be in effect.

§ 1014.72 Proceedings after termination. (a) Upon the termination of the provisions of this subpart, the then functioning members of the committee shall continue as trustees, for the purpose of liquidating the affairs of the committee, of all the funds and property then in the possession of or under control of the committee, including claims for any funds unpaid or property not delivered at the time of such termination. Action by said trusteeship shall require the concurrence of a majority of the said trustees.

(b) The said trustees shall continue in such capacity until discharged by the Secretary; shall, from time to time, account for all receipts and disbursements and deliver all property on hand, together with all books and records of the committee and of the trustees, to such person as the Secretary may direct; and shall, upon request of the Secretary, execute such assignments or other instruments necessary or appropriate to vest in such person full title and right to all of the funds, property, and claims vested in the committee or the trustees pursuant to this subpart.

(c) Any person to whom funds, property, or claims have been transferred or delivered by the committee or its members, pursuant to this section, shall be subject to the same obligations imposed upon the members of the committee and upon the said trustees.

§ 1014.73 Effect of termination or amendment. Unless otherwise expressly provided by the Secretary, the termination of this subpart or of any regulation issued pursuant to this subpart, or the issuance of any amendments to either thereof, shall not: (a) Affect or waive any right, duty, obligation, or liability which shall have arisen or which may thereafter arise in connection with any provision of this subpart of any regulation issued under this subpart; (b) release or extinguish any violation of this subpart or of any regulation issued under this subpart; or (c) affect or impair any rights or remedies of the Secretary or of any other person with respect to any such violation.

REPORTS

§ 1014.80 Reports. Upon request of the committee, made with approval of the Secretary, each handler shall furnish to the committee, in such manner and at such time as it may prescribe, such reports and other information as may be necessary for the committee to perform its duties under this part.

(a) Such reports may include, but are not necessarily limited to, the following: (1) The quantities of potatoes received by a handler; (2) the quantities disposed of by him, segregated as to the respective quantities subject to regulation and not subject to regulation; (3) the date of each such disposition and the identification of the carrier transporting such potatoes; and (4) identification of the inspection certificates and the exemption certificates, if any, pursuant to which the potatoes were handled, together with the destination of each exempted disposition, and of all potatoes handled pursuant to §§ 1014.53 and 1014.54.

(b) All such reports shall be held under appropriate protective classification and custody by the committee, or duly appointed employees thereof, so that the information contained therein which may adversely affect the competitive position of any handler in relation to other handlers will not be disclosed. Compilations of general reports from data submitted by handlers is authorized, subject to prohibition of disclosure of individual handlers identities or operations.

(c) Each handler shall maintain for at least two succeeding years such records of the potatoes received and disposed of by such handler as may be necessary to verify the reports he submits to the committee pursuant to this section.

MISCELLANEOUS PROVISIONS

POST OFFICE DEPARTMENT

[ 39 CFR Part 38 ]

POSTAGE METERS

NOTICE OF PROPOSED RULE MAKING

The Post Office Department proposes to place in effect the following amendment to Chapter I of Title 39, Code of Federal Regulations, which will incorporate in a new Part 38 thereof, regulations relating to the manufacture and leasing of postage meters.

The Postmaster General desires to afford patrons of the Postal Service an opportunity to present written data, views, or arguments for consideration by the Post Office Department prior to making the proposed regulations effective.

Written data, views, or arguments may be submitted to N. R. Abrams, Assistant Postmaster General, Bureau of Post Office Operations, Post Office Department, Washington 25, D. C., prior to May 15, 1956.

[SEAL] ABE MCGREGOR GOFF,
The Solicitor.

Chapter I of Title 39, Code of Federal Regulations, is hereby amended by the addition of new Part 38, to read as follows:

PART 38—POSTAGE METERS

§ 38.1 Authorization to manufacture and lease—(a) Qualification. Any concern desiring authorization to manufacture and lease postage meters for use by mailers under § 33.1 (d) of this chapter must qualify as follows:

(1) Satisfy the Department as to its integrity and financial responsibility.

(2) Obtain approval of at least one model postage meter incorporating all the mechanical features and safeguards specified in § 38.2.

(3) Have, or establish, and maintain under its supervision and control adequate manufacturing facilities suitable to carry out to the satisfaction of the Department the provisions of § 38.4. Such facilities shall be subject to inspection by representatives of the Department.

(4) Have, or establish, and maintain adequate facilities for the control, distribution and maintenance of postage meters, and their replacement when necessary. See §§ 38.4 and 38.5.

(b) Application. Any person or concern seeking authorization to manufacture postage meters may make application to the Department in person or in writing. Upon qualification and approval, the applicant will be authorized in writing to manufacture postage meters and to lease them to mailers. The name of the manufacturer will be listed in the Code of Federal Regulations.

(c) Suspension. The Department may require a manufacturer to suspend production and distribution of any or all his models of postage meters pending investigation to determine if his authorization should be revoked and will fully advise him of the facts which may warrant such action. The manufacturer will be given an opporunity to demonstrate or achieve compliance with all the lawful requirements within a reasonable, specified time limit.

(d) Revocation. Authorization may be revoked if the manufacturer engages in any scheme or enterprise of an unlawful character, fails in any of the qualifications in paragraph (a) of this section, or fails to comply with any of the provisions of this part.

§ 38.2 Specifications. Postage meters must incorporate all of the following mechanical features and safeguards:

(a) A postage meter may be either the detachable portion containing the printing die and registering mechanism of a mailing machine, or it may be complete in itself. In either case, it must be suitable for the mailer to bring to the Post Office for setting.

(b) A postage meter may be capable of printing one denomination of postage and registering the number of such impressions made (single denomination); or it may be capable of printing several denominations and registering either multiples of the smallest unit printed (multi denomination) or the currency value of the impressions made (omni denomination). The printing die or dies, counters, and counter-actuating mechanism must be inseparable in the unit brought to the Post Office for setting.

(c) In each postage meter there must be two accurate and dependable counting devices, one ascending and registering the total imprinted, the other descending and registering the balance of the last setting remaining unused. The descending register must actuate a locking mechanism preventing further operation of the meter after the register has reduced to an amount less than the largest denomination printable in one operation or to zero. The descending register must be so constructed as to be easily set at the Post Office for any amount of postage or number of impressions within its capacity, prepaid by the mailer.

(d) The entire mechanism must be encased in a substantial housing. The descending register must be accessible to the Post Office by means of a door equipped with a suitable lock and provision for a Post Office seal. The ascending register and all other mechanism must be so shielded as not to be accessible even when the door is open. The readings of both registers must be easily obtainable at any time between operations, either by visibility through closed windows, or by imprint on tape or card, or by a combination of the two methods. The housing must be of such construction that it is impossible to alter the readings of the ascending register (except by normal operation) or to gain access to the internal mechanism (except for setting the descending register as provided in paragraph (c) of this section) without mutilation.

(e) The printing die must either conform in design to one already in use or be approved by the Department. It must include the serial number of the meter and identification of the manufacturer, and be so constructed or shielded that it is not practically possible without proper registration in the ascending and descending register to obtain imprints therefrom fraudulently.

(f) The meter die must include a postmark to print the name of the city and state from which mail is dispatched and the date of mailing. The postmark must be printed at the left of but adjacent to the denomination stamp and may be either included in an overall design with the denomination stamp or separated from it. Provision must be made so that the date may be either printed or omitted as required by the Department on the various classes of mail. Provision may be made to print an hour of mailing either within or in a close position outside the postmark. Provision may also be made to print designations such as "Nonprofit Org.", and the like, adjacent to and in the same operation with the meter stamp. The denomination die must not be completely exposed at any time during the process of installing or removing postmark dies, daters, hour type or special designation slugs, or when changing the date.

(g) Provision may be made in a meter for a Meter Slogan or Ad Plate to print to the left of and adjacent to the postmark. The size and position of a Slogan or Meter Ad must be such that it will not interfere with or obscure the meter stamp or postmark, and it must be easily possible to install the plate without the meter stamp die being exposed. Plates must be made of suitable, durable material which will not soften or disintegrate while in use. They must be well fitted and so securely fastened to the printing mechanism that they will not become loose or detached or otherwise interfere with proper operation of a meter.

(h) The entire mechanism must be of such solid, substantial and dependable construction as to protect the Department amply against loss of revenue from fraud, manipulation, misoperation, or breakdown.

§ 38.3 Testing and approval—(a) Submission of each model. Each model meter proposed for manufacture must be approved by the Post Office Department after being tested by the National Bureau of Standards at the expense of the manufacturer. A preliminary working model may be submitted for tentative approval. No meters of any model may be distributed or used for payment of postage until a complete unit manufactured by production methods has been submitted, tested and approved.

(b) Furnishing specimen meter. One production model of each meter approved must be deposited with the Department and no changes affecting the basic features or safeguards may be made thereafter without Departmental approval.

(c) Tests after approval. Additional meters from current manufacture must be submitted to the National Bureau of Standards for test at the expense of the manufacturer as may be requested by the Department.

§ 38.4 Safeguards—(a) Materials and workmanship. All meters must closely adhere to the quality in materials and workmanship of the approved production model and must be manufactured with suitable jigs, dies, tools, etc., to assure proper maintenance and interchangeability of parts.

(b) Breakdown tests. At reasonably frequent intervals meters must be taken at random by the manufacturer from production and subjected to breakdown tests to make certain that quality and performance standards are maintained.

(c) Protection of printing dies. During the process of fabricating parts and assembling postage meters, the manufacturer must exercise due care to prevent loss or theft of serially numbered postage printing dies or component parts, such as denomination printing dies, which might be used in some manner to defraud the Government of postal revenues. All serially numbered printing dies produced should be accounted for by assembly into meters or by evidence of mutilation or destruction. Postage printing dies removed from meters and not suitable for reassembly must also be mutilated beyond the possibility of use, or be completely destroyed.

(d) Destruction of meter stamps. All meter stamps printed in the process of testing dies or meters must be collected and destroyed.

(e) Inspection of new and rebuilt meters. All new and rebuilt meters must be carefully inspected before leaving the manufacturer's meter service station.

(f) Keys and setting equipment. The meter manufacturer must furnish keys and other essential equipment for setting his meters to all post offices under whose jurisdiction his meters are licensed for use. Such items must be protected and shall not be furnished to persons not authorized by the Post Office Department to have them.

§ 38.5 Distribution—(a) Facilities. Authorized manufacturers must maintain adequate facilities for the distribution, control, and maintenance of postage meters. All such facilities are subject to inspection by Post Office Department officials or their accredited representatives.

(b) Controls. Each authorized manufacturer is required to:

(1) Retain title permanently to all meters of his manufacture except such as may be purchased by the Post Office Department for use in post offices.

(2) Lease his meters only to mailers to whom meter licenses have been issued by the post office.

(3) Supply only such meter slogan or ad plates as meet the requirements of the Department for suitable quality and content.

(4) Deliver meters to post offices or postal stations only—never to mailers until set and sealed at a post office.

(5) Take reasonable precautions in the transportation and storage of his meters to prevent their reaching the hands of unauthorized individuals.

(6) Report the loss or theft of any of his meters immediately to the local postmaster, the local police, and the Post Office Department, Bureau of Post Office Operations, and report likewise the recovery of any such lost or stolen meters.

(7) Report to the appropriate Regional Controller of the Post Office Department each time a meter is presented at a post office for initial setting or to be checked out of service—the report to include the name and address of the mailer, the post office or postal station through which it was handled, and the readings of both registers at the time the meter left or was returned to the manufacturer's possession.

(8) Maintain at his headquarters a complete record by serial number of all meters manufactured, showing all movements of each from the time it is produced until it is scrapped, and the reading of the ascending register each time it is checked into or out of service through a post office. These records must be subject to inspection at any time during business hours by officials of the Post Office Department or their accredited representatives.

(9) Cancel his lease agreement with any mailer whose meter license is canceled by the Department and remove his meter promptly.

(10) Maintain a record by serial number of all meter keys issued to postmasters as well as those sections of the manufacturer's establishment in which their use is essential, preferably in the form of signed receipt cards.

(11) Examine each meter withdrawn from service for failure to record its operations correctly and accurately, and report to the Post Office Department the mechanical condition or fault which caused the failure.

(12) Submit such other reports to the Post Office Department as may be required from time to time.

§ 38.6 Maintenance—(a) Replacement. The manufacturer must maintain his meters in proper operating condition for mailers by replacing them when necessary or desirable to forestall mechanical breakdown.

(b) Inspection of meters in use. The manufacturer must have all of his meters in service with mailers inspected at least once each six months. Such inspections must be sufficiently thorough to determine that each meter is clean and in proper operating condition, is recording its operations correctly and accurately, and that neither the Post Office seal nor any seal placed by the manufacturer to prevent access to the mechanism has been removed or tampered with. Any irregularities found in the operation of a meter at any time or any improper usage of a meter must be reported immediately to the mailer's postmaster, and appropriate steps taken to have the meter discontinued.

(c) Repair of internal mechanism. Repair or reconditioning of meters involving access to internal mechanisms must be performed only within a factory or suitable meter repair department under the direct control and supervision of the manufacturer. Meters must be checked out of service through the Post Office of setting before they are opened or any internal repairs are undertaken.

§ 38.7 Notice of proposed changes in regulations. Insofar as may be consistent with the public interest, before any changes are made in the regulations of this part, the Department will give notice of any proposed changes sufficiently far in advance of the proposed effective date to enable persons who manufacture, or who may be interested in manufacturing postage meters, a reasonable opportunity to be heard and to adjust their operations to accord with the proposed changes if they are adopted.

FEDERAL POWER COMMISSION

[Docket Nos. G-9740, G-9741]

IOWA ELECTRIC LIGHT AND POWER CO. AND LATERAL GAS PIPELINE CO.

NOTICE OF APPLICATIONS AND DATE OF HEARING

APRIL 5, 1956.

Take notice that Lateral Gas Pipeline Company (Lateral), an Iowa corporation with principal place of business in Security Building, Cedar Rapids, Iowa, and a wholly owned subsidiary of Iowa Electric Light and Power Company (Iowa Electric), filed, in Docket No. G-9741 on December 5, 1955, an application for a certificate of public convenience and necessity, pursuant to section 7 (c) of the Natural Gas Act, authorizing Lateral to acquire from Iowa Electric certain natural gas facilities and to operate the same as hereinafter described, subject to the jurisdiction of the Commission, all as more fully represented in the application which is on file with the Commission and open for public inspection.

And concurrently therewith, Iowa Electric, an Iowa corporation with principal place of business in Security Building, Cedar Rapids, Iowa, filed, in Docket No. G-9740 on December 5, 1955, pursuant to section 7 (b) of the Natural Gas Act, an application for permission to abandon the ownership and operation of the aforesaid natural gas facilities by sale thereof to Lateral as hereinafter described, subject to the jurisdiction of the Commission, all as more fully represented in the application which is on file with the Commission and open for public inspection.

Lateral proposes to acquire by purchase from Iowa Electric approximately 9.6 miles of 4½-inch pipeline, known as the Greenfield Lateral, extending from a point of connection with the transmission line of Natural Gas Pipeline Company of America Natural) in a northerly direction to or near the city limits of the City of Greenfield, Iowa, wherein Iowa Electric operates a distribution system and to operate the same for the purpose of transporting natural gas between said points for the account of Iowa Electric.

Iowa Electric proposes to abandon the operation of the Greenfield Lateral upon sale thereof to Lateral for its depreciated book value ($77,656) and to contract with Lateral for the transportation of natural gas from Natural's main transmission pipeline to the City of Greenfield for the account of Iowa Electric.

The applications state that Lateral will contract with Iowa Electric pursuant to the terms of Lateral's F. P. C. Gas Tariff, Original Volume No. 1, for the transportation of natural gas as hereinabove described, that said tariff is upon a cost-of-service basis, that the cost of transportation of gas will be no greater than the present cost of transportation by Iowa Electric and that the ownership and operation of the Greenfield Lateral are the only facilities and activities of Iowa Electric that would constitute it a "natural-gas company" within the meaning of the Natural Gas Act.

These related matters should be heard on a consolidated record and disposed of as promptly as possible under the applicable rules and regulations and to that end:

Take further notice that, pursuant to the authority contained in and subject to the jurisdiction conferred upon the Federal Power Commission by sections 7 and 15 of the Natural Gas Act, and the Commission's rules of practice and procedure, a hearing will be held on Monday, May 14, 1956, at 9:30 a. m., e. d. s. t., in a hearing room of the Federal Power Commission, 441 G Street NW., Washington, D. C., concerning the matters involved in and the issues presented by such applications: Provided, however, That the Commission may, after a non-contested hearing, dispose of the proceedings pursuant to the provisions of § 1.30 (c) (1) or (2) of the Commission's rules of practice and procedure. Under the procedure herein provided for, unless otherwise advised, it will be unnecessary for Applicants to appear or be represented at the hearing.

Protests or petitions to intervene may be filed with the Federal Power Commission, Washington 25, D. C., in accordance with the rules of practice and procedure (18 CFR 1.8 or 1.10) on or before April 23, 1956. Failure of any party to appear at and participate in the hearing shall be construed as waiver of and concurrence in omission herein of the intermediate decision procedure in cases where a request therefor is made.

[Docket No. G-9583]

OKLAHOMA NATURAL GAS CO. AND CONSOLIDATED GAS UTILITIES CORP.

NOTICE OF APPLICATION AND DATE OF HEARING

APRIL 4, 1956.

Take notice that, Oklahoma Natural Gas Company (Oklahoma) and Consolidated Gas Utilities Corporation (Consolidated), hereinafter referred to collectively as "Applicants", Delaware Corporations, having their principal places of business at Tulsa and Oklahoma City, Oklahoma respectively, filed on November 1, 1955, as amended March 19, 1956, a joint Application pursuant to section 7 of the Natural Gas Act, for authorization to exchange natural gas, as hereinafter described, subject to the jurisdiction of the Commission, all as more fully represented in the application, which is on file with the Commission and open to public inspection.

In the joint application as amended Applicants propose to exchange natural gas simultaneously at existing interconnections of their respective natural gas transmission systems as follows: (1) Consolidated will deliver gas to Oklahoma's Clinton (Western Oklahoma) system at an existing delivery point in Beckham County at an estimated volume of 10,000 to 15,000 Mcf per day and (2) Oklahoma will return equivalent volumes to Consolidated at an existing delivery point approximately 120 miles northeast of the Beckham County delivery point in Garfield County, Oklahoma.

Applicants state that under the proposed arrangement, Oklahoma will benefit by receiving additional natural gas, urgently needed to supply the increased cold weather requirements of its isolated Clinton system which supplies a number of communities in Western Oklahoma. Consolidated will benefit by having the gas returned to it approximately 120 miles closer to its principal markets.

Applicants further state that no new construction will be required and that under the proposed exchange no change in the total volume of gas available to the market of either Applicant is involved.

The exchange as proposed in the application will extend only from the date of first delivery until April 1, 1957.

This matter is one that should be disposed of as promptly as possible under the applicable rules and regulations and to that end:

Take further notice that, pursuant to the authority contained in and subject to the jurisdiction conferred upon the Federal Power Commission by section 7 and 15 of the Natural Gas Act, and the Commission's rules of practice and procedure, a hearing will be held on May 8, 1956, at 9:30 a. m., e. d. s. t., in a hearing room of the Federal Power Commission, 441 G Street N. W., Washington, D. C. concerning the matters involved in and the issues presented by such application: Provided, however, That the Commission may, after a non-contested hearing, dispose of the proceedings pursuant to the provisions of § 1.30 (c) (1) or (2) of the Commission's rules of practice and procedure.
